FOREWORD

David des Marest born of Huguenot parents in Picardie, France, with his wife, Marie Sohier, and their sons, Jean, David and Samuel, and their infant daughter, Marie, sailing from Amsterdam on the vessel, Bontekoe, arrived in New Amsterdam, April 16, 1663. The family name from earliest time in this country was generally written Demarest. After two years on Staten Island and twelve and one half years at New Harlem, David Demarest bought from the Indians, indenture of Sir George Carteret, Lord Proprietor of the Province of East Jersey, large tract of land on the Hackensack river, and made his home there. On that land many of his descendants of the Demarest name and of other names are living today. In the nearby country and throughout the United States the name has greatly multiplied.

It has seemed desirable and important, therefore, that records should be compiled, making clear and making permanently available such facts as might be assembled concerning the life, the forbears and the descendants of David des Marest, a man very significant in the making of our commonwealth. Some story of it all was told fifty years ago by the Rev. Dr. David D. Demarest, of the eighth generation, in his "The Huguenots on the Hackensack," a published address setting forth the valuable results of his original and painstaking research. That story has been the source and the inspiration of this enlarged study, this expanded family record.

It seems impossible to trace the family line in the old world with sure accuracy and adequate detail. The name runs far back and competent students have given the ample results of their researches; and close connection of David des Marest with known families of his migration time is reasonably clear.

The descendants in America in the recent generations are so numerous and they are so widely scattered that complete record of them is impossible. It has not been possible to attempt an entire tracing or to secure full information where tracing has been attempted. The male lines are given reasonably complete through the early generations and are largely developed down to the present day. The female lines are generally not extended beyond the immediate children. A great number of Demarest families of the present day, however, have not become known to this record.

The family name carries on in various forms additional to des Marets, des Marest and Demarest; it is somewhere Demorest or Demerest or Demaray; an especially frequent form in the south and middle west is Demaree. It differs sometimes among the members of an immediate family and even in the usage of one person. In this record no consistency of form is forced. The form of any signature or record is generally preserved, changed in some instances of minor importance or of plain mistake in writing. The given names also appear in diverse forms. There is not only some mere difference of spelling but as well the difference of language form. French forms tend quickly to give place to Dutch. The given names also, then, are not forced into uniformity. The glossary will make clear the variances and the correspondences. The records of the early time, it will be noticed, often give date of baptism without date of birth; baptism usually was within two weeks after birth. Until recent generations a son quite customarily took as a middle initial in his name the initial letter of his father's name; this record inevitably does not in many individual instances conform to the actual use or omitting of such middle initial.

The record is not only far from complete but as well here and there inaccurate, no doubt. Data received from different sources have not always been in full agreement. Names and dates in family Bibles, church records and burying grounds sometimes do not correspond. In some instances this record gives alternative names or dates. Some errors there are, no doubt, due to not quite correct information coming from the source depended upon or to the difficult form in which the information has come; others may be the fault of the compilers in copying or proof-reading of such a mass of names and dates. It is proposed that the copies of this published book be numbered and that the possession of each be known if possible in order that pages of substantial corrections or additions received may be sent in due time to each possessor of the book. To the specific genealogy an appendix adds much related material, both narrative and documentary, while much assembled material of substantial interest is excluded by the necessary limits of the book.

The generous assistance given the compilers in the preparation of the record is gratefully acknowledged. It is impossible to name all those who have thus shared in the work. It would be difficult to select those who have been greater contributors than others. It is at least proper to mention Mr. Sheldon Demarest Tilt of Warwick, New York, who allowed full access to the abundant material assembled by him in past years, and the Rev. Victor Barr Demaree of Hedrick, Iowa, whose recent inquiries, persistent and far-reaching in the middle west, have been a great service.

It is an agreeable incident of the record that it appears on the two hundred seventy fifth anniversary of the coming of the pioneer family.

NARRATIVE

NARRATIVE

THE name Demarest in this or other form has been in the story of France for centuries. Dr. H. J. Koenen and Mr. Louis P. deBoer trace it back to the time of the Crusades. Persons bearing it are conspicuous in state, church, literature, and warfare here and there in French history. Direct tracing of family line from the early bearers of the name down to the Reformation and through the period immediately thereafter to the David Demarest, father of the family in America, can not be affirmed as surely and fully accurate.

At the end of the 15th Century the des Marets name was largely established in northern France, in Picardie. There the Reformation gained large and strong following; at early date there were flourishing Protestant churches. Two brothers, Jean and Jacques des Marets, born respectively in 1518 and 1519, joined the Reformation movement. Probably others of this family name and of the same generation also became Protestants. At the time of the issue of the Edict of Nantes, 1598, a David des Marets, Sieur des Ferets, son of a Jean des Marets, was an elder in a strong Protestant church at Oisemont, near Amiens, of which Jacques De Veaux was pastor; in 1625 he represented the church in the provincial synod at Charenton, near Paris. The son of this David was Samuel des Marets, or Maresius, the great theologian, professor and writer. This family was no doubt closely related to the family of David who came to America. Oisemont, not far from Cambray, may fairly be called the family center in Picardie. The incompleteness of the records of the churches of that locality makes impossible the full confirming of some more or less accepted data. Visits to Oisemont and vicinity by Mr. Elmer W. Demarest and Mrs. Caro Lloyd (Withington) Strobel, a Demarest descendant, have been of special interest.

The two brothers, Jean and Jacques des Marets, faithful to their Protestant confession in the face of persecution, left their homes in the land of Cambray about 1567. Jean made his permanent home in Holland and became the father of the well known des Marets family of that country. The name appears in the church and civic records of its cities and villages everywhere: Amsterdam, Leyden, Delft, the Hague, and the less familiar places. A recent Minister of the Netherlands to the United States carried it in his name R. de Marees Van Swinderen. A book on this Holland branch of the family, by Dr. H. J. Koenen, in the Dutch language, was published in 1898. It carries the line back to the Crusades and contains much valuable data of different periods. It is quite plain that David des Marest of the migration to America was not descended from the Jean who went to Holland.

Jacques the brother of this Jean went to England, settled at Norwich and, with his family, joined the Walloon church there. He died there in 1604 at the age of 85. His wife was Antoinette de Suceur. They had three sons, Francois, Pierre and Jean. Other families of the Demarest name may also have gone to England. Protestant families of other names also in large numbers took refuge there. Queen Elizabeth was hospitable to the Huguenots, gave them special privileges. They were given a chapel in Canterbury Cathedral, and they had their church organization. French services are still held there. Elsewhere they had their places of worship and membership rolls. The Demarest name appears in some number in the registry at Canterbury, the registry at Norwich, and the registry at London.

Jacques des Marest had retained land at Cauroit or Cauroy near Cambray and at his death his son Francois inherited it. On September 10, 1605, Francois in the presence of his minor children Jacques, Jean, Elizabeth, Hester and Anna, through their guardians, Nicholas des Marets and Philip Cartier, also of Norwich, transferred his fief of Cauroit, no doubt to conserve it, to his Roman Catholic cousin, Jean des Marets, son of Nicholas, residing in the land of Cambray—which is the region of Calais. The eldest two children of Francois, children of his first wife, Elizabeth Herbecq, born about 1590 and 1592, after 1605 disappear from the records in England, their brothers and sisters remaining in the records at Norwich and later at London. It seems probable that they returned to France to regain if possible the family land. It is fairly to be argued that this Jean was the father of David of the migration to America, for David, born at Beauchamp in the Cambray and Calais region, and son of a Jean, was married at the Walloon church in Middleburg, Zeeland, July 24, 1643; and a Jean des Marets with his family joined the Middleburg church "from Calais," January 27, 1643. The argument that this Jean was the Jean, son of Francois, from England is interesting but not wholly convincing. Well sustained by dates and vicinities and religious movements, it lacks for one thing the sustaining evidence which would be afforded by finding the names Jacques and Francois in the generations succeeding David; these names do not maintain.

It is significant, however, that names do maintain in David's after generations found in a known family. The family of a Pierre des Marets, apparently a French refugee, appear in the records at Canterbury of the French church in the Cathedral at about the same time that the family of Jacques appears at Norwich. He was from Cormont in the land of Boulogne sur Mer in the Pas de Calais. In the Canterbury records is the marriage of a son, Jean: "Jean des Marets, fille de feu Pierre natif de Cormon en Boulonnois and Marie Perlin, fille de feu Maxis, natif de Canterbury, January 24, 1602." His wife died and he married "Francos de Vette, fille Nicolas, natif de Mirville, April 9, 1604." They had four children, their baptisms all recorded, the last in 1612. Then the family no longer appears in the records. It is fairly to be supposed that Jean returned to France, to his father's home at Boulonnois. This, in Pas de Calais, was not far from Beauchamp, where David was born in 1620. Again dates and vicinities and religious movements are fair evidence. The names are added evidence. The name of Jean's father was Pierre and each of our David's three sons had a son named Pierre (Peter); Jean had a sister Susanne and each of David's sons had a daughter Susanne; Jean had a sister and a daughter Marie and David had a daughter Marie, and two of David's sons each had a daughter Marie; Jean had a daughter Judith and David's son Samuel had a daughter Judith.

It may be, however, that David of the migration to America was not the son of either Jean, son of Francois, son of Jacques, or of Jean, son of Pierre. He may have been of a family that did not leave France at all in the earlier persecution, left it for the first in the time of the renewed persecution and first in the person of his father, Jean.

David des Marets, son of Jean, born in 1620 at Beauchamp, twenty-two miles west of Amiens in the district of Cambray, apparently lived there or in that vicinity with his family until the removal to Middleburg in 1642 or a little earlier. At that time, after a period of toleration given by the Edict of Nantes, persecution of the Protestants was again active and was driving thousands of the Reformed faith from their homes in France to lands nearby that welcomed them. In 1641 several Reformed churches in the land of Calais were destroyed. At Middleburg, on the island of Walcheren in Zeeland, the family joined friends who had preceded them, finding there many Walloons also and a flourishing Walloon church. The record of the church's membership says: Jean de Marets and his family from Calais, 27 January, 1643.

At Middleburg July 24, 1643, David, grown to manhood, married Marie Sohier, daughter of Francois Sohier. The witnesses to the marriage were Jean des Marets, Francois Sohier, Marguerite de Herville, and Marguerite Sohier; Jean's wife may have died; or, possibly, Marguerite de Herville may have been his wife. Two children were born at Middleburg and were baptized in the Walloon church. A few years later however, in 1651, David removed to Mannheim on the Rhine, drawn with others of the refugees at Middleburg by privileges offered by the Elector Charles Louis of the Lower Palatinate.

As early as 1554 and at various times later refugees from religious persecution fled to Mannheim. Walloons founded their Protestant Reformed Church there before 1600. Even there, however, safety and peace were not uninterrupted, and the church itself was disorganized from 1623. In 1648 at the end of the long period of wars, many Walloons returned to Mannheim; they were assured of some relief from taxes and complete religious liberty, "free as in Holland." From Middleburg came some of these settlers; with Walloons were some French, Huguenots. Among them was David des Marets with his family. A year after his coming, April 11, 1652, the church was re-organized. A sermon was preached. A consistory was elected. David des Marets was made an elder. In 1654 he signed an "attestation" for Louis Du Bois, a member of the church, who was planning to come to America, a document still extant (1937) in possession of Louis Du Bois of New Brunswick, N. J. Thirty-seven members were asking for such attestations. The Elector built for the refugees a church building called The Temple of Concord because Calvinists and Lutherans both used it. At Mannheim four children were born to David des Marets and Marie Sohier, one of whom died in infancy; they were baptized in the church there. A few years there and again, in 1663, in the anxiety of the time as to new hostility and possible Catholic supremacy, and drawn by the story of the land of promise across the sea to which so many Huguenot families had already gone, the family sailed down the Rhine to Amsterdam and there took ship for America. Their vessel was the Bontekoe or Spotted Cow. It arrived at New Amsterdam with its ninety passengers, two thirds of whom were French and Walloons, April 16, 1663. List of the passengers is given in the Documentary History of New York Vol. III: also the Genealogical and Biographical Record, October, 1883.

On arriving in America David des Marest settled on Staten Island, where there was a Huguenot colony, some of its families his friends no doubt, establishing his home on the eastern shore a little south of the Narrows. The French people had occasional services of worship under Rev. Samuel Drisius of the New Amsterdam Dutch Church; some years later a French church was organized. Little is known of the story of David there, except his two appointments under the provincial government, both of them almost at once. January 28, 1664: "The new Huguenot village on Staten Island is granted an inferior court of justice * * * David de Marest, Pierre Billiou and Walraven Lutten as the first body of magistrates." (Stokes' The Iconography of Manhattan Island. Vol. IV. pg. 232.) In the same year he was made one of the two delegates from Staten Island to the Provincial Assembly of New Netherland called by Governor Stuyvesant to consider the state of the Province and convening April 10, 1664, just before the surrender to the British. (Broadhead's New York, Vol. I pg, 729.) Perhaps he had from the beginning regarded this residence as temporary, while making choice of his best permanent location. He remained on Staten Island only two years. To his memory a tablet is erected and a column is dedicated in the Huguenot Memorial Church there.

It was probably in the autumn 1665 that he removed with his wife and three sons, and his daughter if still living, to New Harlem, north of New Amsterdam. As early as 1635 Jan Montagne and his wife, Rachel DeForest, and her brother, Henry DeForest, had settled there; but the Indians were troublesome and these earliest settlers, forbidden by Governor Stuyvesant to stay there if unprotected by stockade, retired to New Amsterdam. In March 1658 an ordinance was passed by Governor and Council authorizing a stockaded village; at once, August 1658, families from New Amsterdam broke ground there, staked out a village, awarded lots to settlers. The families locating there were in considerable part French and Walloons. No doubt David des Marest was again joining friends. In January 1666 a grant of land was made to him; he added to this by purchase. His farm and home were on the East River in the present 125th Street vicinity. Among his neighbors were the Delamater, Tourneur, Cresson, Oblinus, Waldron and Delavall families. Another child was born to him there who was killed by an accident when five or six years of age, was run over in the street by a horse and cart driven by a neighbor's boy.

He was apparently a leading citizen in the new community. He was chosen overseer and he was chosen constable. For an especially excellent service in the latter office, Governor Andros commended him and, directing his further actions, signed himself, "Your loving friend, E. Andros." He was frequently one of a small representative group signing documents for the community or voicing the interests of it. He served as curator or trustee of a Fordham estate. When the Dutch re-took New York in 1673, David des Marest was appointed by the burgomasters and schepens of the city one of the four magistrates, selected from eight nominated by general vote, to administer the affairs of the village. He was apparently of a quick temper, perhaps overjealous of his rights. On at least two occasions he had violent differences with neighbors and was thus himself called in question by court or magistrate.

As in every earlier place where he lived, he was here in devoted relation to his church. There was a French congregation with its French preacher. The Dutch church was in effect the official or state church; and taxes were levied for its support, for the salary of the voorleser, that is the schoolmaster, chorister, and service reader in absence of a minister. David des Marest, having paid this tax for some years, finally objected, declaring that Governor Lovelace had formally given exemption from this tax to the French people because of their support of the French worship. With him in this contention was Claude Delamater. The officials in authority refused to recognize such exemption. David des Marest then, 1677, paid all the taxes declared due and all obligations in the community, and after stay of twelve and a half years in New Harlem removed once again and finally to new home on the Hackensack River, then known as the Herring River. With him and his wife were now: his son Jean with his wife Jacomina de Ruine and four children; his son David junior and his wife Rachel Cresson and one child; his son Samuel: and perhaps the daughter, Marie. David's wife died just at that time, or certainly before his death. An old tradition says that, on a boat carrying up the river two sons and their mother of the "Demarais" family, the mother died, and that the Indians let the people land from the boat only when told that there must be a burial; and that she was buried on a knoll above the river. Later and until now the place has been known as the French burying ground. There, at the later Old Bridge, the present River Edge, the Demarest home was built, and the French church.

The episode of the taxes or any particular circumstance at New Harlem may not have been the determining factor in the new migration. It is quite sure that David des Marest had been for some time considering the start of a Huguenot colony. The land in New Jersey which he had now secured from the Indians, the sale confirmed by the Lord Proprietor in the so-called French Patent, lay between the Hackensack River and the Palisades and between the present North Hackensack and River Edge on the south and the present Closter and Demarest on the north; its area and boundaries can be approximately traced from the ample wording of the Indian deed, somewhere spoken of as six miles long and two miles wide. The intention was that a group of French families should follow to occupy the land. Only a few came; their names are still there—La Rou, Du Rij, de Veaux, Lozier. David and his sons having located at once at the present River Edge, south of the centre of the patent, Jean soon made his home at the south end; and David Jr. made his home at the centre, at the Flatts, now Oradell; and Samuel or his immediate descendants lived at the north end. Two early houses of the family are still standing at River Edge. Demarest mills were built and served the family groups and other families locating on the patent. The land was cleared and cultivated. Additional land transactions were carried through by David des Marest, by his sons also, sometimes with some controversy with other families. With the Indians they had little trouble. The families descending were large; they quickly spread out in Bergen County and in neighboring counties of New Jersey and New York.

As always, connection with the church was a vital interest. On leaving New York for New Jersey in 1677, David des Marest and his family united with the Dutch Reformed church of Bergen, now Jersey City. For the occasional service there the Sunday drive was twenty miles and return. Always longing for the French worship and coveting a church nearer home, they formed in 1682 a French Reformed church, its building erected near the original des Marest home and near the French burying ground. It was known as the French Church of Kinkachemeck, Kinderkamack, probably organized by Rev. Pierre Daillie, who preached and administered the sacraments for the scattered French in wide area. Of this church then the family were earliest members, their occasional preacher being Mr. Daillie or Rev. Pierre Peiret. The church lived for about fifteen years. In 1696 Pierre Daillie went to Boston to become pastor of the Huguenot church there; it was no longer possible for the French congregation to have its French preacher and worship. The Hackensack Dutch Reformed church had been organized in the meantime, in 1686, "the nearest church previously being the newly formed French Society of Kinkachemec." The family of David Jr. passed from the Hackensack church to the Schraalenburgh church nearer home when it was organized in 1724: later, this became two congregations known as the South church and the North church, the two places now called Bergenfield and Dumont. In the recent years, the family descended from him, from whom the compilers of these records are also descended, living in the old home, The Flatts, have become members of the Oradell church, organized at their very door, its building erected on land at the time still owned by them.

With the passing of the years, by all the natural avenues of dispersion, the name has gone to every part of this country and into Canada, and into every connection of church life. One group migration is an adventure of dramatic interest, the migration at the Revolution time of Demarests, with Bantas, Rikers, Voorhees and others, to Pennsylvania, Adams County, Conewago, and on to Kentucky and thence more widely in the middle west, early in the nineteenth century, now a very large body of descent virtually all spelling the name Demaree.

Mention should not be omitted of early occurrence in New Netherland and New York records of the same name, not apparently within the immediate family of David des Marest. In the passenger list of The Fox, August 1662, is the name, Pieter de Marc (the c no doubt a mistake for e) from Rouen. In the passenger list of The Faith, March 1662, is the name Lysbeth Harmens. (Gen. and Biog. Rec. Vol. VI, pg. 155.) In the record of the Dutch church of New York, December 2, 1663, is the baptism of Jacques, child of Pieter de Mareets and Lysbeth Harmens. In the record of the Dutch church of New York, November 27, 1692, is the marriage of Jacques Meri from Roche (New Rochelle no doubt) and Cornelia, daughter of Garret Janse Roos and widow of Elias Provoost; in her father's will her husband's name is Jacob de Maree. (Gen. and Biog. Rec. Vol. VI, pg. 8.) Of this Pieter de Mareets and his son Jacques no further record is known. It is not known that they had descendants, that the name passed down at all from them.

THE NAME AND GIVEN NAMES

The name, Demarest, appears in many different forms in old world use and in this country. Many instances of unusual spelling in the early days in this country are no doubt simply variances in record rather than established family usage. The form especially established and prevailing form here since earliest days is Demarest. The only other forms now having at all well known use are Demorest, Demaree, Demeree and Demaray.

The following forms are familiar in records abroad or here:

des Marets	de Mareest	De Marees	Demorest
des Marest	Des Marets	De Mare	Demerest
des Marais	Des Marest	Desmarets	Demarias
de Marest	Des Mareets	Desmarest	Demaries
de Maret	Des Maretz	Desmares	Demarie
de Maree	Des Marey	Desmarett	Demaree
de Mare	Des Mare	Desmaretz	Demeree
de Marais	De Marets	Demarets	Demare
de Mareets	De Marest	Demarest	Demaray

The given names occurring in the family line, the first century and a half in this country, have constant repetition in the various branches and in the several generations, a faithful maintaining of characteristic names. There is a continuance of the French and Dutch with change to English forms or equivalents progressing through the years. Some of these names, variances and equivalents are:

EXPLANATORY NOTES

The generations are numbered from David des Marest, the 1663 pioneer, as the First Generation.

The names are numbered in sequence through the several generations. Names beyond the Ninth Generation, with their tenth generation children, are not numbered.

Descendants in female line, that is bearing other name than Demarest, are not numbered and as a general rule are carried only to the first generation of the name.

The number given with a name in minor place at record of birth appears in major place in the next generation if record of the name continues.

Names and numbers of children who died in infancy or youth appear only at record of birth, not in record of next generation.

Names appearing in birth record and as to which there is no known record of early death and no known later record are ordinarily given their major place in the next generation.

The occasional use of the question mark or of alternative in parenthesis indicates doubt as to accuracy or variance in records.

Line of descent can be readily traced to the First Generation by tracing any number in point through the number of parent, generation by generation.

FIRST GENERATION

CHILD OF JEAN DES MAREST AND (?) MARGUERITE DE HERVILLE

1 DAVID[1] married Marie Sohier July 24, 1643, at the French church, Middleburg, on the Island of Walcheren, Zeeland. She was the daughter of Francois Sohier from Nieppe, a town of Hainault. They lived at Middleburg from the time of their marriage until 1651. They then removed to Mannheim in the Palatinate. In 1663 they migrated to America. Locating on Staten Island, they remained there two years. There David des Marest was appointed at once, 1664, a magistrate, also delegate with Pierre Billiou to conference concerning protection from the Indians; also delegate to the Provincial Assembly of New Netherland. In 1664 he removed to New Harlem where he remained twelve and a half years. There he was chosen overseer, constable, schepen. In 1677 the family removed again, to the French Patent on the Hackensack. Marie Sohier des Marest died, it is thought, just at this time. Some account of the life in each place is given in the narrative and in the appendix of this compilation. David des Marest died in 1693. His will was made August 26, 1789, probated July 30, 1697. An earlier will had been made jointly by him and his wife when they were in New Harlem, February 1, 1672. The witnesses to the probated will were Paull Richard, Giles Gaudineau, Peter Legrand, Peter De Lattoy. He left to his maid Anna Counk, housekeeper no doubt after the death of his wife, one hundred acres of land. His whole estate with this exception he left to his three sons, Jean, David and Samuel, equal heirs. The three sons were to be executors; but the son David had died; so "Jean Durie our cousin" represented the children of David Jr., he later marrying the widow. See narrative and appendix.

SECOND GENERATION

Children of (1) David Demarest[1] and Marie Sohier

2 Jean[2] married (1) Jacomina DeRuine, born in the Province of Hainault, France, September 9, 1668, at New York. He married (2) Marretje Van Winckell, widow of Peter Slot, March 23, 1692. He married (3) Magdalena Laurens, widow of Jean Tullier, December 20, 1702, at New York. Jacomina DeRuine was the daughter of Simon Druine (1615-1678) and Magdalena Van Derstraaten. The notice reads; "Jan De Marest j. m. Van Walcheren, Zeeland, Sept. 9, 1668, Jacomyne Drinus Van Bylanderzy in Henegouwe." The notice of Jean's second marriage reads: "Jean de Marets widr Van Jacomina Driel, Marretie Winckle wid. Jan Peter Slot d'eerste Wonen de of Hackensack en twde athier March 23, 1692, married in de Franschi Kerk." She was the daughter of Jacob Wallings Van Winckell and Trientje Jacobs, born about 1643 at Hoorn. Her first marriage was February 2, 1663, to Peter Jansen Slot, son of Jan Pieterson Slot; they were members of the Bergen church, then moved to Esopus, then returned and became members again at Bergen. Jean joined the Dutch church of Hackensack, July 10, 1696, by letter from the French church of Kinderkamack. When living with his family and his father at New Harlem he was active in the life of the settlement. In 1670 he was elected constable. When his father and brothers and he removed to the Hackensack some of the land was patented to him and he built a house the exact location of which is not known. Later he inherited the house built by David his father on the west side of the Hackensack and the Little Mill. This house he in turn left to his grandson David, son of his son David who had died. In 1683 Jean was commissioned Lieutenant of Militia for the County of Bergen. He was concerned in many property transactions. He died October 16, 1719. His will is dated March 29, 1713, probated November 10, 1719; it is on file at Trenton. A codicil is dated September 30, 1719. The witnesses to the will were Joost DeBaun, Case DeBaun, Coenrad ———; and to the codicil Ryer Ryerson, Paul VanderBeck, James Cryst. The executors were his son Peter and Abraham Brower. Each of the daughters was to receive 140 florins. Peter bought the mill.

4 DAVID married Rachel Cresson, daughter of Pierre Cresson April 4, 1675 She was born at Delft about 1656. The marriage notice March 7, the banns apparently, reads: "April 4, 1675, David DeMareez de jonge j. m. Van Mannheim, Rachel Cresson, j. d. Van Delf bijde wonende op. N. Haerlem." He was received by the New York church May 30, 1672; she was received December 7, 1673. He died before or in August, 1691; a legal paper of that date speaks of the heirs of David Des Marest jr. Tradition says that he was killed by a falling tree. He left no will. After his death his widow joined the Hackensack church from the French church of Kinderkamack which she and her husband had joined from the Bergen church. David having left no will, Jan Durie, cousin, was appointed to look after the interests of the children and he later married the widow. At Jan Durie's death, his will dated June 10, 1698, administration was granted his wife Rachel. He had married before and his surviving children, minors, were all by his first wife. Samuel Demarest was appointed their guardian and Jan Des Marest was a witness. Rachel Cresson married a third time: Roeloff Vander Linde April 25, 1702, at Hackensack; and she survived him. David's name appears often in the Harlem Records. He subscribed toward the salary of the parish clerk and school master, the voorleser; and later he refused to make such subscription. He was in the watch organized against the Indians and he is spoken of as a "former fence master." With his father David Sr. he contracted March 12, 1677, to sell their property in Harlem to Paulus Richards. They reserved the right to occupy their dwellings until May 1, 1678. David Jr. settled his accounts in full with the town April 23, 1677, his father making his settlement three days later, and soon after left for the Hackensack. He was received into the Bergen church, October 7, 1677, with all others of the family save his father who kept his membership in the New York church.

29 Benjamin b. probably about 1691 and baptized in the French church.

Excerpt from the will of the parents of Rachel Cresson 1673: Pierre Cresson and Rachel Closs his wife both being sound of body do give & c. and whereas their daughter Susannah enjoyed as a marriage portion the value of 200 guilders so the testators will that at the decease of the longest liver each of the other children then living shall draw the like 200 guilders and our youngest son Elie, if he is under the age of 16 years, also a new suit of clothes becoming his person from head to foot.

5 Samuel married Maria DeRuine (b. Jan. 1, 1662, at New Harlem), daughter of Simon DeRuine, sister of his brother Jean's wife, August 11, 1678, at Bergen. He united with the New York Church March 2, 1676. He was received on certificate by the Bergen church October 7, 1678. Opposite his name in the New York church registry, however, is this entry without date: "Overgeschreeven Franschelpse," his connection later with the French church of Kinderkamack. His dismissal and his wife's from the Bergen church was June 11, 1680. His still later connection was with the Dutch church of Hackensack. He died in 1728. His will, dated May 10, 1727, was probated October 19, 1728. The witnesses were David Demarest, sen., Lukans Vanhooven, Benjamin Demarest. He signed his name Samuel desmarest. He had made an earlier will January 28, 1695, not recorded of course; this he signed Samuel Des Marest. The witnesses to the will were Andries Thybaut, Pierre Joubert, Jean Tullier. It bears also the mark of Daniel Ravatt and the name of Jan Durie. In the Hackensack church he was chosen an elder 1701 and again 1713, serving two years each time; and he was chosen church master 1706, serving a year. Lands on the Hackensack were surveyed for him at various times. Simon was perhaps a favorite child: "And bequeath unto my well beloved son Simon and to his heirs and assigns forever all that farm or plantation which I do live upon in these presents with all the buildings, orchards, gardens thereunto belonging."

7 Maria who was baptized at Mannheim and came as an infant with the family to America has been thought of as dying in childhood at New Haerlem since her father, the record shows, paid for a funeral pall at a certain time, or that she died in the early days of the settlement on the Hackensack, since she is not mentioned in her father's will. It is possible however that her life was not so short and that she is the Mynno Demarest, not otherwise identified, who married Abraham DeVeaux in 1688. His name, Abram DeVouw, appears in the membership roll of the Hackensack church 1694, the only record of him at Hackensack. Later he lived at Tarrytown where he served twenty years as deacon and elder in the Sleepy Hollow church. He was the son of Nicholas De Veaux and Marie See, daughter of Isaac See, Sr., born at Mannheim in 1667. If Maria Demarest was the Mynno Demarest whom he married, she was 26 years of age and he 21 at the time of the marriage. Descendant: Ida Dudley Dale, Randall Manor, Staten Island.

THIRD GENERATION

Children of (2) Jean Demarest[2] and Jacomina de Ruine

9 David[3] married Antie Slot, daughter of Jan Slot and Altie Jans, about 1695 in the French church at Kinderkamack. She was born probably between 1675 and 1680. They joined the Dutch church of Hackensack from the French church of Kinderkamack April 5, 1696. David died by 1706, for his widow married Jonathan Hart September 7, 1706, at Hackensack, "he of Southold," L. I. The will of (2) Jean Demarest mentions four granddaughters and one grandson, children of his son David. The father of David's wife, Jan Pieterson Slot, came from Holstein, Denmark, about 1684 and settled in Harlem. His son Pieter married Marretie Walling Van Winckell who after his death became the second wife of (2) Jean Des Marest in 1692. Their daughter Annatie married Jean's eldest son David about 1695. David des Marrett appears in the record of the French church, New York, as one of the witnesses to the marriage of Ellie Pelletreau and Esther Gouin, October 19, 1692.

43 Leah bap. Nov. 26, 1699, Hackensack
44 David bap. Nov. 9, 1701, Hackensack
45 Rachel bap. Dec. 10, 1703, Hackensack

10 Jan married (1) Debora Heyet (?) probably about 1700. Of what family she was is unknown, and there is no record of the date of the birth or of the baptism of two of her children. She died not many years after her marriage. Jan then married (2) Golah Pattison, widow of William Pattison, the exact date of this marriage being also unknown. William was the son of William and Mary Pattison and he had a sister Elizabeth. He was living as late as 1699.

Probably Jan Des Marest moved to the vicinity of Tarrytown soon after his first marriage and the birth of his first child Jan in 1701. His sister Rachel had married Thomas Hyer, or Hyatt, of Appoquiminy in Pennsylvania, now in Delaware, and was living at Tarrytown where Jan was a witness at the baptisms of two of her children in 1705 and 1707. On December 9, 1702, Frederick Philipse of the Philipse Manor purchased from Jan Des Moritz a large boat called Unity. (Gen and Biog. Rec. July 19, 1927.)

Another sister of Jan's, Jacomina, had married John Stewart of Chester County, Pennsylvania; and after brief stay there they had settled at Appoquiminy Hundred near what is now New Castle, Delaware, the former home of her brother-in-law Thomas Hyatt. Here they were joined by the Hyatts of Tarrytown who were accompanied by Jan Des Marest, the brother, probably at that time a widower, and his three children, his youngest child named Jemima evidently after her aunt Jacomina whose name later was written Jemima. Jan bought land of William Grant of Appoquiminy, the deed dated January 15, 1708, in which deed his name is spelled Damories and he is stated to have been of St. George's Hundred (History of Delaware 1609-1888, Thomas Scharf. Vol. II, ppg. 661, 1014, 1106). This is the first mention of a Hundred except Duck Hundred in 1689. William Penn patented a tract of 400 acres adjoining Cantwell's grant to Bazaliel Osbourne. The heirs of Osbourne assigned it to a John Healy, July 13, 1704. Cornelius Cooper was the next owner and he sold it to John Demarest Oct. 5, 1716. The tract next passed to Charles Robinson. (Scharf's History of Delaware. Vol. II, ppg. 611 and 1015.)

That the second marriage of Jan Demarest was after 1699 is shown by the fact that William Pattison Sr. by his will dated January 18, 1699, devised one hundred acres of wood in St. George Hundred to his daughter Elizabeth and his son William and his son's wife Golah. This was part of a tract of 400 acres granted in 1686 or 1687 to the father of William Sr., his name also being William. The will is not recorded but it is referred to in Deed Book G pg. 211. John Demarest with others owning land in St. George Hundred gave to Floren Lorency, August 29, 1713, the right to dam a stream for a mill (Court Records of Wilmington). By 1723 Jemima, the daughter of Jan had married Abraham Martin; and Jan Demarest and Golah his wife, and William Pattison, son of Golah by her first husband, and Mary his wife deed to Jemima the woodland mentioned in the will of William Pattison Sr. 1699. John Demarest of Appoquiminy, yeoman, and Golah his wife conveyed to Francis Laud, January 9, 1725-26, a plantation of 400 acres on the south side of Appoquiminy creek; but they evidently continued to reside on the tract. John was living therefore in 1726 but he died before 1731.

John Demarest's will was dated March 6, 1720. It cannot be located but it is referred to in a deed dated April 22, 1731, being quoted as devising a certain tract of land on St. George's creek in St. George Hundred, about 300 acres, to his two sons John and David. There were apparently five sons and one daughter. On the day of the above deed, April 22, 1731, John and David the sons cede each to the other 144 acres, evidently a partition of the father's estate. John makes his mark but David writes his name David Demarest. The father's will is also mentioned in a deed February 19, 1737, as leaving, apparently, the special tract of land to his three sons John, Solomon and Illy equally, as well as certain meadow lands to all his six children. By this deed David, Solomon and Illy and their sister Jemima Martin convey lands to Charles Robinson. John had apparently died before 1737 or had moved from the vicinity. The son Golin had died without a will March 1732.

After 1737 there is no known continuance of the Demarest family name in that Delaware locality. The daughter of Jemima Martin is the only one of the family of Jan Demarest who can be traced.

11 MARY married Jacobus Slot, eldest son of Petrus Slot and Marretie Van Winkle about 1695. He was baptized February 17, 1669, at Bergen. They lived on the east side of the river near Hackensack. They joined the Dutch church of Hackensack from the French church of Kinderkamack April 5, 1696. There is a stone in the French burying ground at River Edge marked M. S. 1726 age 51 (or 61); it may mean Mary Slot.

14 RACHEL married Thomas Heyer, eldest son of John Heyer or Hyatt May 9, 1702, at Hackensack. She was his second wife; his first wife was Elizabeth Ryke. Rachel joined the Hackensack church on confession April 4, 1702. By the will of her father she received land east of the Hackensack. Thomas Heyer was probably born at Appoquiminy, Pennsylvania, now Delaware, where his father John Heyer lived. He and his wife lived, however, at Tarrytown, N. Y. after their marriage until 1707; they probably went to Delaware in 1707 or 1708. At Appoquiminy Hundred, New Castle County, Delaware, a Thomas Hyatt was elder in Drawyer's Presbyterian Church in 1727 and the same name appears as of the treasurer of the church in 1739. No further trace of this family has been found.

15 JACOMINA married (1) John Stewart son of Sir John Stewart of Stirling, Scotland March 29, 1700, at Hackensack, "she of Hackensack, he of Chester Co., Pa." He had left Scotland on account of religious differerence with his father. He was a Presbyterian: so he came into the French Huguenot Colony. She married (2) Richard Walkinson or Wilkinson of Delaware. Jacomina was called Jemima after the family went to Delaware. In an affidavit made November 20, 1752, James Christie a brother-in-law says that he knew John Stewart in Edinburgh in 1698, who was then on the ship Unicorn bound for the West Indies, intending to settle there. Later they were both on board the ship Caledonia. Both ships arrived at New York August 16, 1699. (Darien Expedition, Macaulay's History of England Vol. 5, Chap. 24.) James Christie found John Stewart at Hackensack in the fall of 1699 where in the spring of 1700 he married Jemima DeMorest daughter of John DeMorest. Two years later James Christie married Magdalena, a sister of Jemima. In October 1703 John Stewart moved to Appoquiminy where he died.

It has been stated that John Stewart and his family settled first in Chester County, Pennsylvania, where John Stewart's home had been but the mention of them there is probably of simply a visit on the way to Delaware. They purchased property near St. George, Appoquiminy.

John Stewart made his will February 19, 1723; such is the statement in the affidavit of James Christie. It is indexed at Wilmington but it cannot be found. There is a record that Richard Walkinson by right of his wife Jemima Wilkinson, formerly wife of John Stewart and executor of John Stewart's Estate late of St. George Hundred, fuller, rendered on account of the Estate which was settled in 1733. Personal Estate inventoried at 168 pounds. The son David exchanged his land for land at Port Penn, Delaware. The farm on which John Stewart had his fulling mill is even yet sometimes called "the fulling mill farm." John Stewart bequeathed his Scottish rights to his children. His son James arranged to go to Scotland to prove the rights, was taken ill and died at New York on the eve of departure. Family Record at one time in possession of Miss Mary Stewart, Port Penn., Del., now deceased. Descendant: Mrs. Margaret W. Janvier, New Castle, Del. Letters 1903 &c.

17 PETER married (1) Maretie Meet May 14, 1709, at Hackensack. She was the daughter of Jan Meet and Gretje Mandiville. The marriage notice says that both were of Hackensack. They were both received on confession of faith by the Hackensack church July 6, 1712. Maretie must have died soon after the birth of her last child in 1720. Peter Demarest married (2) Maria Batton, October 15, 1722. She was the daughter of Jacques Batton and Margrietje Sans, baptized April 2, 1704, at Hackensack, the one parent being named, Margryt widow of Siague Batton. Peter Demarest received from his father a farm east of the Hackensack near the present River Edge. It included the French burying ground land. He was executor of his father's will and received by it for his trouble carpenter's tools of his father. Peter died August 31, 1763, and his widow married Barent Cole August 14, 1767, the license issued August 10 (New Jersey Archives). She died January 6, 1794, according to the family record. Peter's will is dated April 1, 1763, probated October 2 or November 16, 1763; it is recorded at Trenton. It is a very long and interesting document containing 24 items. In it he speaks of his wife Mary and directs that she shall have the use and improvement of his estate real and personal as long as she lives or is not married. Should she marry and necessity so require she is to have the privilege to return to her children who shall be obliged to give her a reasonable maintenance. He leaves 100 pounds to be divided into twelve parts 1/12 to each of his 9 living daughters and 1/12 to the children of each of three deceased daughters. After various bequests to his children and daughters he makes his wife and two friends executors of his estate. He had two daughters named Mary, one the child of each wife, both mentioned in the will. He mentions with his wife Mary these sons: Peter, Jacobus, John, David and Samuel. He mentions these daughters: Mary, Trintje, Sara, Lea, Margaret, Lydia, Mary, Anna, Hester, Jacquemina,, Elizabeth. The last three: their shares are given to their children. Rachel probably had no children as her name is not mentioned in the will. He gives to his eldest son, Peter P., his walking cane and silver buckles as a birthright; also 20 pounds New York currency because he has no trade; also certain woodland and clear land; and his seat in the "meeting house." The cane was of malacca with ivory top and silver band and bore the letters P. D. M. R. To his son Jacobes he gives land "where he now lives," share in other land, his carpenter tools, farm implements, wearing apparel. To his twelve daughters he gives all his movable estate. Peter lived at New Bridge, had the Little Mill, a man of ability and of wealth. He is buried at the French burying ground. Many interesting items of him were found in a trunk in the house of Squire Jacobus Demarest, New Bridge; they are now deposited with the Bergen Co. Historical Society, Hackensack; also in part printed in the Proceedings of the Society.

CHILDREN OF (4) DAVID DEMAREST AND RACHEL CRESSON

20 DAVID married Sara eldest daughter of Rev. Guiliam Bertholf and Martyntie Hendriekse Vermeulen April 24, 1697, at Hackensack. She was baptized at Sluis, Walcheren, April 8, 1677, where her parents were married, April 15, 1676. He joined the Hackensack Church by letter from the French church and letter from the New York church July 10, 1696. They lived east of the Hackensack. Both are buried in the old French burying ground. The inscriptions on the stone are D. D. M. R. 1759, aged 83 yrs. 8 mos.; S. D. M. R. 1758, aged 81 yrs. 4 mos. The will of David is dated November 8, 1758, probated March 4, 1760; it is filed at Trenton. In it he speaks of his eldest son David as guardian of William's son David and to him he gives a seat place in the church. He speaks also of David and Jacobus, sons of Jacobus. These sons of David Demarest, William and Jacobus, had died earlier. He also leaves bequests to his daughters Rachel, Mary, Elizabeth, Sara, Anna, Martintie, or their children. Sara the daughter of Elizabeth was given her grandmother's seat in the church. The general property was divided into nine equal shares. The witnesses to the will were Johannes Demarest and Peter Demarest. David Demarest was a man of position and influence, of public office. High Sheriff of Bergen Co. 1714. Justice of the Peace 1721, 1722, 1738, 1744, Judge of Court of Pleas and Quorums 1738-49. Member of 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th Provincial Assemblies of New Jersey, 1738-46, one of the two representatives of Bergen Co. Member of the Board of Freeholders of the County. He was a large land owner in Bergen Co. and Essex Co.

Extracts from Muhlenberg's Diary: On July 22, 1751, he called on an "old Reformed man who for many years had been a member of the Assembly of the Province and who honestly desired to be an Israelite without guile. He welcomed me with tears," &c. "On the 27th May (1752), I visited the oldest gentleman of the Government, Mr. Du M. (David Demarest, du Maree.) He declared that by my four sermons he had been roused anew and the power of the Divine Word inwardly strengthened. It was, it is true, complained of by some of his co-religionists (Dutch Reformed) that he went to our Church (Lutheran) and at the same time continued his mite towards the salary, but he could not help it and must have nourishment for his soul. He showed me a French Martyrs Chronicle which together with the Bible he read for his daily edification "&c. "On the 20th of July, 1752, I took leave of a family of French descent who were inclined to unite themselves with our congregation, and of the old gentleman of the Government, Mr. D. du M. (David Demarest)" &c." Monday the 27th (Aug. 27, 1759), I was invited to visit an old Reformed Man because he was sick and desired once again to see me. His ancestors fled hither from France. He himself is a sensible and well read man of five and eighty years, has as Assemblyman been useful to the Commonwealth and seems in religious matters to be liberal and an especial lover for the Divine Word. (Long recital of religious conversation.) We took a sorrowful leave of each other until which God grant we joyfully meet again in a better life."

22 SUSANNA married (1) Peter Lubbertse Westervelt son of Lubbertse Westervelt and Belitie Poulouse April 22, 1704, at Hackensack, "both of Hackensack." He was baptized April 18, 1682, at Bergen. She united with the Hackensack church by confession April 5, 1701. He united, probably July 3, 1715. Both were members at Schraalenburgh in 1733. She married (2) William Teller.

24 JACOBUS married (1) Lea DeGroot March 8, 1707, at Hackensack, daughter of Petrus Jacobus DeGroot and Belitje Van Schaick, "born at the Bowery on the Bay," baptized January 16 (17), 1687, at New York. An old family record gives the date of the marriage as March 30, 1707. The DeGroot family and the Van Schaick Family lived in New York at the Bouwerie but Peter DeGroot with his wife Belitje Van Schaick and his brother Jan and his wife joined the Hackensack church by letter from New York, October 12, 1695. Jacobus Demarest and his two brothers Daniel and Benjamin married three sisters. Jacobus and his wife Lea DeGroot and Daniel and his wife Rebecca DeGroot joined the Hackensack church July, 1708. Benjamin joined April 8, 1711; Elizabeth DeGroot joined April 2, 1715. Lea DeGroot Demarest died December 3, 1718.

Jacobus then married (2) Margrietje Cozine Haring, the banns published September 26, 1719; the old family record dates the marriage

October 13, 1719. She was the daughter of Cosyn Haring and Maria Blauvelt, born April 12, 1700, her grandfather Jan Pietersen Haring came to New Amsterdam April 15, 1660, and at Whitsuntide, 1662, married a young widow Margaretta Cozine born in Haarlem, Holland, in 1634. This was the first wedding in the Dutch church on the Farm called the Bouwerie which church was situated where St. Marks Church now stands, 11th St. and 2nd Ave. The farm of Jan Pietersen Haring was 100 acres extending from the Bowery Lane westward to beyond Bedford St., both sides of Broadway. He died December, 1683. In 1685 his widow married Daniel DeClark; and in the following year she moved to Tappan with her seven Haring children. Her son Cornelius bought a farm of several hundred acres from Samuel Demarest, Sr., near the present Haworth.

According to an old family record Jacobus died March 24, 1763, aet over 84 years. His second wife Marguerite Haring died February 3, 1789, aet. 88-0-20. The will of Cozine Haring dated September 13th, 1733, probated June 16, 1743, he of Tappan, leaves property to a daughter Grietje, wife of Jacobus Demarest, all the northeasterly half of plantation "where I dwell at present adjoining land of Cornelius Smith, also one half land which belongs to said farm or plantation known as Little Mountains." The will also mentions his wife Marretie. The witness to the will is David Demarest. The old Dutch Family Bible of Jacobus has been in the possession of Miss Margaret Demarest of Oradell, the record in Dutch dating from 1707.

26 Daniel married Rebecca DeGroot, daughter of Peter J. DeGroot, and Belitje Van Schaick August 2, 1707, at Hackensack, baptized at the church at the Bay, Bowery, February 11, 1685. She joined the Hackensack church on confession July, 1708; both were members of the Schraalenburgh church in 1733. Daniel Demarest owned the large farm called The Flatts, in the later-called Harrington Township, now Oradell and vicinity, inherited from his father David Demarest Jr. His death is recorded in the Family Bible: "Peter D. Demarest's father died March 30, 1767, aged 82 yrs. 1 mo. 30 days." His wife's death is recorded: "Peter D. Demarest's mother died September 16th, 1764, aged 80 yrs. 7 mos. 16 days." The age thus given would place her birth at February 1, 1684. This must be one year incorrect or the given date of baptism February 11, 1785, needs the one year correction. He was deacon at Schraalenburgh church, signed call for first pastor, Domine Mancius, 1731. Family Bible in possession of W. H. S. Demarest, New Brunswick, N. J.

30 MAGDALENA married Cornelis Epke Banta, his second wife, November 18, 1699, at Hackensack. He was the son of Epke Jacobse Banta, the first of the name Banta that came to this country, 1659, five sons with him. The name of his mother and the date of his birth have not been ascertained. Cornelis Banta's first wife was Jannetje DuPri, a niece of Samuel Demarest and a cousin of his second wife, Magdalena Demarest. She was the daughter of Jan DuPri of Staten Island. After the death of his second wife he married a third time, Abeltie Slot, widow of Adam Van Norden. His will dated April 13, probated June 20, 1719, is recorded at Trenton, Book A, pg. 123, given in full in Banta Genealogy pp. 11-12. His two brothers-in-law Samuel Demarest and David Demarest are named executors. By his first wife he had several children. By his second wife Magdalena Demarest he had six children. She died about 1714.

31 David married Matie Debaun November 10, 1705, at Hackensack. She was the daughter of Joost DeBaun and Elizabeth Drabbe; "born New Utrecht," baptized at Brooklyn May 4, 1690. They were charter members of the Schraalenburgh church; they joined the New York church May 25, 1752. His will probated February 13, 1761, speaks of his wife Maatie and leaves to her the use of his whole estate. (She had died when the will was probated.) To his eldest son Samuel he leaves a broad-axe. To his sons Christian and Jacob he leaves all land not already given to his daughter Elizabeth wife of William Campbell; to her he had given the deed for the house lot. To his son Joost and to his daughters Rachel and Annatie, each, he leaves thirty (fifty ?) pounds; and to his daughter Mary wife of Thomas Ekkeson he leaves seven pounds. Bonds of his brother-in-law Jacobus Peake and of his cousin David Demarest are to be paid. His wife is made executor. The witnesses are Andries Van Buskirk, David Demarest and Simon Demarest.

Some of this family removed to New York. The eldest son Samuel went to Conewago and on to Kentucky. He declined to serve as executor of his father's will. He joined the New York Church, May 25, 1752. N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record Vol. 66 No. 1.

32 Jacomina married (1) Samuel Helling (Helm ?) November 10, 1705, at Hackensack. He was, probably, the son of Hendrick Teunis Hellmick and Grietje Samuelse. She married (2) Cornelis Van Hoorn Jr. son of Cornelis Van Hoorn, elder in the Lutheran church, and Margaret Vanderburgh, the banns published July 16, 1711, at Hackensack. She joined the Hackensack church on confession October 7, 1704. The marriage took place in the Protestant Lutheran church "at our meeting" in Hackensack. Probably the second marriage was not agreeable to her father for in his will dated May 10, 1727, he leaves her share of his property to her Helling children, "she being disobedient to me." He leaves her however a Negro boy Daniel. She spelled her name DeMaree. This may have caused trouble with her father. The will of Cornelis Van Hoorn Sr. dated March 22, 1726, probated March 24, 1728, is at Trenton; it mentions his wife Margaret and seven children, among them Cornelis who married Jacomina Demarest and a daughter Annatie who married Samuel Demarest brother of Jacomina.

He was the son of Joost DeBaun and Elizabeth Drabbe, a brother of Maatie DeBaun who married Judith's brother Samuel. He lived only a year or two after the marriage. She married (2) Pieter DuRy (Durie), July 21, 1711, at Hackensack. His father was Jan Durie whose second wife was Rachel Cresson, widow of David Demarest, uncle of Judith. He came with his father, a brother and two sisters to America between 1680 and 1690. Durie Family Book. Harvey's History of Bergen County. Christian DeBaun and Judith Demarest his wife were charter members of the Schraalenburgh church, coming from the Hackensack church.

35 PETER married Margrietje Cornelise Herring, daughter of Cornelis Herring and Catherina Flierboom, September 14, 1717, Hackensack. She was baptized October 14, 1697, Tappan. He died May, 1772. His will is dated March 10, 1770, probated March 24, 1774. In it he speaks of his wife Margrietje and his daughters Maria, Catalyntie, wife of Daniel Christie, and Sara wife of William Christie. To his eldest son Samuel of Closter he gives the large Bible and the old shooting gun and sword for his birthright. His son John had died, so his share of the property was given to his son John, also a new Dutch Bible and new gun and sword. Peter Demarest and his wife were among the organizers of the Schraalenburgh church. Cornelius Haring (Herring) father of Peter's wife was Judge of Common Pleas, Orange Co., N. Y., 1727. Member of Provincial Assembly, New York from Orange Co., 1727-37. The family had lived in New York City, had a farm about the present Bleecker Street. With fifteen other families they removed to Tappan, entering on a Grant of land from Governor Dongan, 1686, about the present Orangetown. May 30, 1719, Cornelis bought land from Samuel Demarest, father of Peter; and there Peter and Margrietje made their home. Peter also inherited land from his father.

They joined the Tappan church April 10, 1722, and the Hackensack church March 6, 1727. They lived in Rockland Co. His will is recorded June 10, 1761, dated May 6, 1754, and is on file at Trenton (Liber G. pg. 423). In it he gives to his wife Vroutie the use of his real and personal property while she remains a widow. To his son Samuel he leaves 28 shillings, also sixty pounds to be paid from the sale of personal estate——if not enough, it must be made up by the other sons. Cornelis is to have land at Kinderkamack bought of David Ackerman. Jacob to have land "where my improvements are on which I live." Daniel being lame is to have his loom and a Negro boy to do his work. Daniel, John, Petrus and David are to have land at Kinderkamack bought of Nicolas Ackerman. Catalynte wife of Seba Banta and Maria wife of Nicholas Ackerman are each to have sixty pounds. His wife and his two eldest sons are made executors.

CHILDREN OF (10) JAN DESMAREST AND DEBORA HEYET

46 JAN went with his father Jan to Delaware and he is mentioned in several legal papers recorded at Wilmington. There is no mention of him later than 1737; it is assumed that he moved to another part of the country. He probably married; and a certain Elizabeth Demarest was probably his daughter. She married, about 1744, John Browning of Culpepper County, Virginia, who was enrolled in the Culpepper Co. infantry, Revolutionary War. His father was born in Caroline County, Virginia, in 1700, married Elizabeth Lloyd in Maryland in 1723 and died in Culpepper County in 1775. He was descended from Captain John Browning born in England about 1588, sailed the ship Abigail, settled at Elizabeth City, Virginia, 1621. The children of Elizabeth Demarest are given here since she was quite surely the daughter of Jan and since no other or further descent from him is known. (Browning Gen. ppg. 449, 461, 462, 499.

A John Demarest married a Lydia Moore February 26, 1791; the marriage is recorded in New Castle County Marriage Bonds. This suggests the return of the family to Delaware. Mrs. Frances R. (E. S.) Garrett, Birmingham, Alabama, letters, 1930-31, descended from John Browning and Elizabeth Demarest.

47 DAVID went with his father to Delaware. He is mentioned in his father's will and in other legal papers but not after 1737.

48 JEMIMA went with her father to Delaware. She married Abraham Martin of St. George Hundred May 17, 1723. Jan DesMarest and Golah his wife gave a certain tract of land to Jemima wife of Abraham Martin which had formerly been the property of Golah's first husband, William Pattison. Probably this was her share of the parents' property given at the time of her marriage as she is not mentioned in her father's will. An Abraham Martin was treasurer of Drawyer's church from 1731; he may have been the Abraham who married Jemima Demarest. A descendant: Rev. C. H. B. Turner, St. Peter's Parish, Lewes, Del., Letters 1921.

CHILD (MARTIN)

John Martin married Ann Holliday, daughter of William Holliday and Anna his wife. Orphans Court Records Deed Book Z. pg. 23. He had four children: Mary who married Jacob Caulk; Margaret who married Thomas Holliday; Dinah who married Charles Robinson; Ann who married Charles Corey. Deed Book H. pg. 440, Deed Book Q 2 pg. 163: "Came into court Mary Caulk formerly Mary Martin a minor, orphan, daughter of John Martin late of this Co. and chose for her guardian Jacob Caulk, her husband."

CHILDREN OF (10) JEAN DEMAREST AND GOLAH PATTISON

49 GOLIN is mentioned in his father's will and in various legal papers. He died without leaving a will March 6, 1732.

50 ILLY is mentioned in his father's will.

51 SOLOMON is mentioned in his father's will. Letters of administration, granted John Jones November 17, 1751, Register of Wills, New Castle Co., Del., show that Solomon Demarest was a resident of that county.

55 PETRUS (banns Feb. 23) married Altie (Elinor) Van Hoorn, daughter, probably, of Lucas Van Hoorn and Aalti Sieberse Banta March 27, 1740, in the Protestant Lutheran church at Hackensack; the marriage is recorded also in the registry of the Dutch Reformed church of Hackensack. She was baptized February 6, 1715, at Hackensack, Elsie on the register. His home was probably at River Edge. He died New Bridge September 5, 1780; was buried in the old French burying ground. He was a farmer, more especially a tavern keeper. Many papers relating to him are in the collections of the Bergen County Historical Society. He could not write his name; his signature was always PD. An indenture of May 1, 1767, is between Isaac Vrooman and others and "Peter Peterse Demarest, farmer." A record reads: "Quarter Session, April term 1766. To the Honorable Court in and for the County of Bergen, we the under subscribers recommend Peter Demarest of the Precinct of Hackensack that he is a person of good repute for honesty and temperance and is provided with two good spare feather beds more than is necessary for ye familie's use and is well accommodated with house room, stabling and pasture, agreeable to an act of Governor and general Assembly of the Province of New Jersey made and provided for that purpose.

"Peter Demarest, John Christie and Willem Christie do jointly and severally acknowledge themselves to be justly indebted unto our Sovereign Lord the King, his heirs and successors in the sum of twenty pounds proclamation money of New Jersey to be levied upon them and every (?) of their goods and chattels on the conditions following:

"The condition of the above Recognizance is such that whereas the above bounden Peter Demarest is licensed by the Court of General Sessions for ye County of Bergen to keep a Tavern or Public House in and at the place where he now dwelleth in ye Precinct of Hackensack in ye County aforesaid if therefore the said Peter Demarest shall not game himself or suffer any person to game in his house for money or the value of money but shall during this time in all things respecting himself as a Public housekeeper use and maintain good order and rule and find and provide good and sufficient entertainment for man and provisions for horses then the above Recognizance to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

"Taken and acknowledged before me by order of Court June Term 1766. William Provoost, Clk."

In 1757 he, Peter Pieterse Demaray, bought of David Johannes Ackerman of Tapan a slave boy three years old for twenty pounds. On October 4, 1768, he bought of the Perry brothers a negro wench named Hasi, age about forty, for thirty pounds. Other records with other persons are as follows—chiefly bonds, obligations indentures and etc.: June 19, 1745, Will Ludlow; August 12, 1748, George Duncan; August 19, 1748, Mark Phaffer; March 24, 1749, George Duncan; May 15, 1756, Isaac Verveelen; October 22, 1756, in re Andries Van Boscark against Andre Carter; October 2, 1759, Laurens P. Abraham Ely and John Marselas; May 1, 1767, Abram Accoman; March 1, 1768, Peter Zabriskie; October 3, 1768, John Perry of Orange County; June 5, 1770, Simpson Person; January 7, 1772, Philip Livingston in re Isaac Vrooman; May 27, 1772, Catrina Demarest, Ex. of David Demarest; May 1, 1773, Laurens Van Boskerck; January 1, 1776, John Demaree, Richard Waldron, Isaac Vrooman; July 20, 1777, Isaac Vrooman. An indenture July 20, 1767, between Peter P. Demarest (Innkeeper) and Abraham Ely is of land at Teaneck near New Bridge; it is signed by John, Jacobus, David P., Samuel P. Demarest. With his brother he entered into an agreement concerning the property they had inherited: "Articles of agreement made and concluded this sixteenth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and sixty eight between Peter Peter Demarest, John Demarest, Jacobus Demarest, David Demarest and Samuel Demarest, all of Hackensack in ye county of Bergen and Province of East Jersey are as follows. Namely whereas we have made a division of all ye lands that was our honored Father Peter Demarest deceast which lands lieth in ye Township of Hackensack we Ourselves and our Heirs, Executors, Covenant, Promise and engage to each other and their Heirs, Executors and Administrators in ye penal sum of One Thousand Pounds Proclamation money that we and our heirs, Executors ad administrators shall and will from time to time and at all times thereafter Pay our equal Proportion (according to our division) of costs and charges to defend our said against all ye lawful claims and Demands of any Person or Persons whatsoever. In witness hereunto we Set our Hands and Seals the day and date above said.

Signed and sealed in the presence of us

Witnesses: Jacobus Van Buskirk, Par Parmyter, Peter P (his mark) Demaree, John Demaree, Jacobus Demaree, David Demaree, Samuel Demaree."

He gave a receipt to his mother: "Hackensack, Sept. the 26th, 1768. This day received of my mother Mary Cole as an executrix of my father Peter Demarest Last will and Testament Twenty Pounds current money of New York according to the said will. I say received by me Peter P. Demarest his mark."

He bought land adjoining that which he had, May 1, 1773, for which he paid forty-one pounds, three shillings current money of New York.

He wrote his will October 29, 1764; it was probated nearly four years after his death, June 3, 1784. Nov. 25, 1800: "The heirs of Peter P. Demarest, having divided his land, for fear the widow may make trouble, entered into an agreement by which they divide any loss which may come to them in that way. William Ely, (grandson of Peter Demarest,) agrees to pay one half, Jacobus J. Demarest (husband of Elizabeth Ely) and John J. Paulison (husband of Allie Ely) each one quarter. It is further agreed that while the said widow shall be contented to receive a support from the heirs in place of right to real estate she shall be at liberty to board or live with any of the heirs as she shall from time to time choose or prefer, her board, doctor's bills and money for wearing to be paid by the heirs according to the aforesaid proportions provided board does not exceed $37.50 per annum." 56 RACHEL married Hannis (Johannes) Loots, son of Jan Loots and Hilletje Pouwels, January 1, 1736, at Hackensack. His parents were married October 12, 1695, at Hackensack. His father was born at Narrits (Norwich) England. Rachel probably died young as she is not mentioned in her father's will probated 1763. Hannis Loots died January 6, 1764; is buried at the South church Schraalenburgh.

57 TRIENTJE married Lourense Verwey, May 4 (banns Apr. 8), 1738, at Hackensack. His home is given as Peremis (Paramus), hers as Hackensack. She was living in 1763 being mentioned then in her father's will. The family apparently removed to New York, most of the children being baptized there.

CHILDREN OF (17) PETRUS DEMAREST AND MARITIE (MARIA) BATTON

59 MARGRIETJE married Jan Roelofse Bogert May 1 (banns March 28), 1742, at Schraalenburgh; the home of each was at Hackensack. He was the son of Roelof Janse Bogert and Elisabeth Bertholf, baptized June 21, 1719, at Hackensack. He and his wife joined the church there on confession September 4, 1745. She died November 18, 1790, or, if the family record be accepted, January 6, 1790. She spelled her name DeMarest.

60 ELIZABETH married Lourens VanBuskirk August 25, 1742, at New York. She died before 1763 as her share of her father's estate was given at that time to her child. Lourens Van Buskirk probably was the son of John Van Buskirk and Geesie Juransee Westervelt, was probably of Hanover, Mercer County, New Jersey, born in 1724. He was apparently a Tory, helping to recruit the Loyalist Company of Dr. Abraham Van Boskerk; and he seems to have settled later at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia. It is said that a vessel, in which he was, foundered in the Bay of Fundy, March 9, 1787, his life being saved; that the sum of 235 pounds was awarded him, his claim having been 474 pounds 10 shillings. John VanBuskirk, presumed to have been his father, was killed in the Revolutionary War. (N. J. Historical Society Proceedings, Vol. 12, Part 1.)

63 JOHN married Willemptie Bogert about 1754. She was the daughter of Jan Bougaert and Antjen Westervelt, baptized June 30, 1774. She died February 10, 1813 (1812). John Demarest died May 14, 1809. They are buried in the old French burying ground. They probably lived near New Bridge. Their eldest son Peter lived at Schenectady for a time, perhaps permanently, and in a letter written at "Schanactada" December 30, 1793, to his cousin William Ely at New Bridge he says: "I was at my father's a few days ago, they desired of me to send their kind love."

"Jan Demarest was a Revolutionary soldier serving as a private in Bergen Co. Militia 1777-81, Hackensack Company. It is said that his wife Willemptie Bogert was a strong and fearless woman. They lived in the neighborhood where the plunderings and persecutions by Tories were a constant menace. She is said to have guarded well her husband's property even to chaining the horses and cattle from the marauding parties." Bergen County Historical Society, Papers and Proceedings No. 11, 1915-1916. In this pamphlet are many papers which relate to this branch of the Demarest Family.

It was probably this John Demarest who is mentioned in the Minutes of the Provincial Congress and the Council of Safety of the State of New Jersey, ppg. 63, 115, 116, 117, 164, 169, 183, 197, 282, 325, 445, 552. Representative of Bergen in the General Assembly January to February, 1775, also in May, 1775. Member and President of Bergen County Standing Committee of Correspondence May 12, 1775, and one of four members to act in recess of the committee August 29, 1775. Deputy to the Provincial Congress May to November, 1775, and January to March, 1776. At the session of the Provincial Congress in New Brunswick, 1776, it is "ordered the records in the Secretary's Office in Perth Amboy removed to New Brunswick and further ordered that John Demarest of Bergen attend the papers, books and records and deliver the same to Charles Petit at Burlington and take his receipt."

John Demarest's will dated February 2, 1808, probated October 20, 1808, is recorded at Trenton. In it he mentions his wife Willemptie still living, his sons Peter, John and Jacobus and his daughters Ann, Maria, Margaret and Cornelia. To his eldest son Peter he leaves his Bible, his loom, etc.; to John he leaves his long fowling piece and silver buckles; to Jacobus a fuse.

John Demarest and a David Demarest appear in public record in connection with a proposed charter for the Churches of Hackensack and Schraalenburgh. In rough draft of minutes of the Council of New Jersey are these notes:

"Friday, the 13th of June, 1766.

A Petition from Johannes Demarest and Sundry other Inhabitants of Bergen County Complaining of the Injustice they Apprehend they Suffer by the Exercise of the powers granted by a late Charter to Dom: J. H. Goetius and others praying that they may be heard thereon Ordered that the Consideration of the said Petition be refer'd to Thursday next at four o'Clock in the Afternoon And that Johannes Demarest or other of the Petitioners give notice thereof to and leave a Copy of this Order wth the Revd J. H. Goetius and Peter Zobrisco on the Morrow and desire them and the Ministers and Elders of each of the Churches concerned in and having Objections to the Charter afs^{d} to attend the Council at the time Appointed."

"Thursday the 19th of June, 1766.

The Petition of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of Hackensack in the County of Bergen was again Read And Agreeable to an Order of Council on Friday the 13 Instant David Demarest and others attended to Support the Petition by them delivered and laid before the Council and the Parties on the other side of the Question likewise Attended, but at the request of the Petitioners the hearing was put off till to Morrow ten o'Clock."

An affidavit of Johannes Demarest, recited in the New York Weekly Museum Number 90, Saturday, January 30, 1790, is of interest.

On the 22nd day of September in the year of our Lord 1767, I Johannes Demarest, Coroner of the County of Bergen, and Province of New Jersey, was present at the view of the body of one Nicholas Tuers (?), then lying dead, together with the jury I summoned to inquire. At that time a negro man named Harry belonging to Hendrick Christian Zabriskie was suspected of having murdered said Tuers but there was no proof of it and the negro denied it. I asked him if he was not afraid to touch Tuers. He said no he had not hurt him and immediately came up to the corpse lying in the coffin; and then Staats Storm one of the jurors said: "I am not afraid of him." and stroked the dead man's face with his hand which made no alteration in the dead person and (as I did not put any faith in any of those trials) my back was turned towards the dead body when the jury ordered the negro to touch the dead man's face with his hands and then I heard a cry in the room of the people saying "he is the man"; and I was desired to come to the dead body; and was told that the negro Harry had put his hand on Tuers' face and that the blood immediately ran out of the nose of the dead man Tuers. I saw the blood on his face and ordered the negro to rub his hand again on Tuers face; he did so and immediately the blood ran out of the said Tuers nose at both nostrils near a common spoonfull at each nostril as well as I could judge. Whereupon the people all charged him with being the murderer but he denied it for a few minutes and then confessed that he had murdered the said Nicholas Tuers by first striking him on the head with an axe and then driving a wooden pin into his ear; though afterwards he said he struck a second time with his axe and then held him fast till he had done struggling and when that was done he awaked some of the family and said that Tuers was dying he believed he believed.

JOHANNES DEMAREST.

64 JACOBUS married Maria (Maritie) Smith, daughter of Philip Smith and Rebecca Earle, February 26, 1758, at Schraalenburgh. She was born, April 1, 1741; she died October 12, 1829; Jacobus Demarest died October 21, 1807. They are buried in the old French burying ground. He was a justice of the peace, and his papers are at the Historical Society at Hackensack. His family record is in Dutch Book 10, pg. 61; other items are ppg. 41, 55, 58, 61. His will dated July 17, 1805, is at Trenton. In it he mentions his wife, Mary, six children living and three grandchildren, the children of his son, David who had died; he also mentions his son-in-law, William Ely. Among the papers of "Squire Jacobus," as he was known, at the Historical Society is his family record in Dutch; in it are written the dates of birth, his own, his wife's, those of his eight children; added to these: "My father, Peter Demarest, died 31 August, 1763, aged 80 years; Our daughter Rebecca died Nov. 18, 1790; My mother Demarest died Jan. 6, 1794; my son David Demarest died Sep. 10, 1803."

He suffered damage at the hands of the British; Nov. 23, 1776, "Taken from Jacobus Demoray by order of Colonel Monckton 4 waggon loads of hay. Corporal Sampson, Quartermaster Richardson." There were also taken from him "14 sheep, 3 heffers, 5 hogs, 2 pigs." His loyalty to the patriot cause is mildly attested: "The Bearers John (brother of Jacobus) and Jacobus Demarest have always so far as has come in the compass of my knowledge been reputedly friends to the Present Government established under the authority of the people and have suffered considerably from the enemy. Peter Wilson. To the Commisary of Prisoners, Bergen Co. Jan. 28, 1782, Book 3, pg. 64 re receipt." A receipt of November 3, 1807, reads: "Received of Mary Demarest the Sum of Twelve Shillings for making a coffin in full of all demands to date. Jacobus J. Demarest."

Another receipt, November 21, 1807: "Received of Mary Demarest the sum of three dollars and twelve cents for tending the funeral of Jacobus Demarest Decease." Albert N. Van Voorhis."

The effects of Jacobus Demarest were sold at auction, December 4, 1807, "late of the County of Bergen situate on the east side of the New Bridge in the township aforesaid." His heirs divided his estate; and they signed an agrement concerning the provision for the widow: "Know all men by these presents that whereas the heirs of Jacobus Demarest Esq. late of the County of Bergen and State of New Jersey deceased have made a division of some part of the real estate of the said deceased, and whereas the widow of the said Jacobus Demarest is Intitled to the use and improvement of all and singular the said real and personal estate during her widowhood according to the last will and testament of the said deceased and whereas the said widow has consented to the Division aforesaid, and in lieu thereof we the subscribers do promise and engage to beare and pay our Equal proportion in supporting the said widow in sickness and in health as long as she shall remain unmarried and chooses to keep house, provided we the said subscribers our heirs, Executors or Administrators shall peaceably and quietly hold occupy and enjoy our respective shares, and if the said widow should at any time hereafter (in an unmarried state) Elect or choose to live or board with any of the said heirs or any other persons we the said subscribers promise to pay annually to the said widow or to her order our Equal Dividend of twenty-five pounds in lieu of her right in said estate Provided as before we the said subscribers our heirs, executors and administrators shall peaceably enjoy our respective shares in said. In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals the twenty-eighth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven.

PETER DEMAREST
PHILIP DEMAREST
JACOBUS DEMAREST
WILLIAM ELY
JAMES HEATON."

Heirs of Jacobus Demarest, his sons, Peter, Philip and John as guardian for the children of the brother, David, deceased, gave receipts to William Ely, January 7-8, 1810. John's receipt: "John Demarest acknowledges as guardian of David Demarest's children, Maria and David their share of the personal estate of Jacobus excepting their dividend of a cupboard, a bed with its appurtenances, a Pew in Schraalenburgh church, and some furniture, together with a note of hand against David Demarest amounting to twenty-two pounds." The other receipts make similar reservations. James Heaton and John J. Turse also acknowledge legacies to their wives, daughters of Jacobus and Sally Helms, second wife of David for her son, William, a minor under fourteen years of age. The house of Jacobus Demarest at New Bridge was rented from his son Jacobus by ( ) John G. Demarest for 60 dollars a year in quarterly payments. Now very old it is still standing. It was illustrated in Bergen Co. Historical Papers and Proceedings, 1915-1916.

65 David married Hester, daughter of Abram Brouwer and Elizabeth Ackerman, probably in 1760. She was baptized January 20, 1740, at Hackensack. Both joined the Hackensack church, March 21, 1756. Her father from Bergen and mother from Hackensack were married October 11, 1723, at Hackensack. She was great great great granddaughter of Rev. Everardus Bogardus and Anneke Jans. David lived at Preakness. He wrote his name Demaree. His will, August 2, 1815, was probated November 28, 1820. It mentions sons Peter, David and James and daughters Elizabeth widow of James Westervelt, Mary wife of Matthew Bogert and Elizabeth who had died leaving four children. To Peter was left a large clothing chest; to David was left a large Dutch Bible. Toward the end of the Revolutionary War he enlisted and served with brief time until the end, a Bergen troop, John Outwater, Captain 1780.

CHILDREN OF (20) DAVID DEMAREST AND SARA BERTHOLF

70 DAVID married Maritie Lozier, June 3, 1721, at Hackensack, both of Hackensack. She was the daughter of Nicholas Lozier and Trintie Slot, baptized, May 11, 1701, at Hackensack. An old paper gives date of marriage as June 23; it may be that the recorded June 3 was the date of the banns. She died March 30, 1728. Banta Gen. pg. 24.

David married (2) Catherina Van Houten, (banns January 8) February 7, 1729. She was the daughter of Nicholas Van Houten and Margaret Haring; born February 4, baptized April 15, 1712, at Tappan. David's will was written December 18, 1763, with codicil written March 28, 1767; it was probated February 24, 1768, at Trenton (Liber L. pg. 246), so his death was probably at about that time. He made his wife Catherine executrix. Two of his children, David and Samuel, went with an early migration to Conewago, Pennsylvania, near Gettysburg. He was a member of the first recorded Provincial Assembly, New Jersey, 1730.

New Jersey Archives, Vol. 33, pg. 112: "Will of David Demarest of Hackensack, Bergen County yeoman. Wife Catrina; she to manage the plantation where I now live while my widow; eldest son Nicholas the mare I gave him when he married and the land he now has so as to make 25 a., he paying my daughter Elizabeth 11 pounds, and to my daughter Gertee 11 pounds and to my daughter Lidia 11 pounds; my sons Petrus, David, Gileyam and Jacobus each twenty-five acres of land called the Gore. Sons Samuel and Garret the plantation where I live except 25 a. to Nicholas; wife Catrina 100 pounds which I had from her father Van Houte; daughter Sara 25 pounds, daughter Trintie 50 pounds, daughter Marya 50 pounds. 76 LYDIA married Jan Wouterse Van Schryven; the date is uncertain. They were members of the Schraalenburgh church before 1733. She died very soon after marriage leaving no children. Jan Van Schryven married later Maria Hoesen; their son Willem was baptized December 2, 1733, at Schraalenburgh. Moreover this was probably his third marriage. Lydia Demarest was probably his second wife as a Jan Van Schryven who joined the Hackensack church on confession April 12, 1719, married a Gertrude Marus, they having five children baptized at Hackensack 1716, 1717, 1720, 1722, 1724. One of these children was Debora, baptized 1717; a child of hers was baptized November 25, 1734. Jan Van Schryven and Maria Hoesen his wife were witnesses at this baptism.

77 Elizabeth married Jan Andersen, January 23, 1736, the banns January 3, at Schraalenburgh. He came from Scotland in 1733. History of Bergen County.

CHILDREN OF (24) JACOBUS DEMAREST AND LEA DEGROOT

81 DAVID married Greetje Abrams Haring, born January 5, baptized January 14, 1714, at Tappan, daughter of Abram Haring and Dirckje Talema. David lived at one time at Old Hook. From 1738 to 1748 he held the office of Justice of the Peace. Bergen Co. Hist. Soc. Proc. He died February 9, 1800, aet. 94; is buried at the South church Schraalenburgh. He was apparently a member of the Tappan Church in 1736. Abraham Haring of Orange County in his will, March 10, 1752, probated May 5, 1772, leaves 100 pounds to his daughter Margaret (Greetje) Demarest.

Possibly she was David's second wife. A David Demarest married Annatie Van Zyl at New York August 16, 1733; they had a child Maria baptized February 10, 1734, at Schraalenburgh.

CHILDREN OF (24) JACOBUS DEMAREST AND MARGRIETJE HERRING (HARING)

87 JOHN married Rachel Zabourisky (Zabriskie) March 7, 1744, in Bergen County. She was the daughter of Joost Zabriskie born at Hackensack and Christina Meby (Mabie) born at New York who were married November 1 (registry), 1712, at Hackensack; she was born March 19, 1725. John (Johannis DeMorest) joined the Schraalenburgh church August 19, 1742, by letter from the Tappan church. He then lived in the old house at Old Bridge, River Edge, now known as the Gurd House which was probably built by his father. He died February 1, 1783. In his will, August 19, 1782, probated June 11, 1784, on file in Trenton, he mentions his wife Rachel and four children, Jacobus, Casparus, Christina and Margaret. Folio M. pg. 249. A third son Joost was doubtless living but he is not mentioned. John's widow married Arent Schuyler (b. Feb. 3, 1715) August 2, 1788, in Bergen County. He was the son of Philip Schuyler of the Schuyler Tract near Pompton and Hester

Kingsland. This was his second marriage also; his first wife was Helena VanWagenen. His license to marry Rachel Zabriskie Demarest was dated August 1, 1788. New Jersey Archives. He died November 22, 1806, at Pompton. She died April 16, 1813, in her 88th year. Varying dates appear in related records.

The dates of birth of the children of John Demarest and Rachel Zabriskie are recorded in the old Dutch Family Bible of his son Casparus lately in the possession of Miss Margaret Demarest of Oradell.

89 GERRIT married Jacomina Helms, daughter of Teunis Helms and Margrietje Blauvelt, 1747. She was born January 3, baptized February 3, 1730, at Tappan. She died August 9, 1816, over 86 years of age; is buried at the North church; her name on the stone is Gemyma. An old Dutch spoon holder such as was used in the kitchens of the old Dutch homes in Bergen County made by Teunis Helms with T. H. 1741 rudely carved upon it is in the possession of his great great great grand children the Demarest family of New Brunswick, New Jersey. In their possession also is an old old wedding token that was worn across the forehead. It is in two parts like a buckle; on one part are the initials G. D. M. R. Gerrit DeMarest) and on the other the initials I. D. M. R. (Jacomina DeMarest).

Teunis Helms was suspected of being a Tory. Eager's History of Orange County says that he harbored parties of Tories in his home near the Ramapo Valley. Gerrit Demarest died December 17, 1798; is buried at the South church. His will, February 7, 1798, filed at Trenton, mentions his eldest son Teunis who had died, his daughters Jacomyntie, Maria, Margaret wife of Hendrick Banta, Mary wife of (261) Peter Jacobse Demarest and Lea wife of (706) Peter P. 94 Peter married Annatie Durje (Durie) September 28, 1764, record in old family Bible, the license given August 22, 1762. She was the daughter of Jan Durie and Angenietie Bogert, born February 16, baptized March 29, 1741, at Schraalenburgh. Peter died June 14, 1808. His will dated the same day and probated November 14, 1808, is on file at Trenton. In it he mentions his wife Annatie, his son James P., his daughters, Mary wife of Nicausey Kip, Margaret wife of Wiert Banta, and Martyntie and Ragel unmarried. Ragel married Henry Nangle two years later. Peter's wife Annatie died March 4, 1820. They are buried at the North church Schraalenburgh. The will of Jan Durie of Hackensack dated February 16, 1773, mentions his daughter Annatje wife of Peter Demarest.

97 DAVID married (1) (135) Marritje (Maria) Samuelse Demarest the daughter of Samuel Demarest and Annatie VanHoorn October 29, 1736, the banns September 25. She was baptized February 20, 1715, at Hackensack. Apparently she died before 1759 as David married (2) Annatie Terhune Aug. 7, 1759. It is possible that these marriages were his second and third, that he is the David Demarest who married Annatie VanZyl August 16, 1733, in New York, who had a child by that marriage Maria baptized February 10, 1734, at Schraalenburgh. Abram VanZyl and Rachel VanBlarcom his wife had a daughter Annatie baptized March 24, 1717, at Hackensack.

99 ARIE married Marritje Ackerman October 25, 1739, at Hackensack, the banns October 22. She was, possibly, the daughter of David Ackerman and Gerebreght Romeyn, baptized January 1, 1719, at Hackensack. Arie Demarest in his will, May 1, 1781, probated September 10, 1785, filed at Trenton, Folio 29, pg. 468, mentions himself as of New Barbadoes; he mentions his wife Maria, his sons Daniel, David, Samuel, Richard, Niclaes, his daughter Sitje and his granddaughter Saartie daughter of his son David. To his eldest son Daniel he gives a weaver's loom and a dagger for a birthright. Maria Ackerman may have been his second wife for Zietsche would seem to have been her eldest child.

106 PETER married Osseltie Vander Linde, October 21, 1735, at Hackensack, the banns September 20. She was the daughter of Peter Vander Linde and Geesie Roelofse Westervelt, baptized at Hackensack, February 6, 1715. She died September 13, 1748. (Family Bible.) Pieter married (2) Annatie Van Deuse (Van Deusen), January 23, 1760. (Family Bible.)

She was the daughter of Abraham Van Deursen and Lucretia Bogardus, baptized, October 27, 1708. This was apparently her second marriage, Smith the name of her first husband. Lucretia Bogardus, her mother, was the daughter of Willem Bogardus and Walburger deSille, widow of Frans Kreger, or Cregier, and the grand-daughter of Rev. Everardus Bogardus, the second minister on Manhattan Island, and Anneke Jans, his wife, early owner of present Trinity Church land. (N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Record, July, 1925.) Peter's sons Daniel and Benjamin died within two days of each other, February, 1760, from smallpox brought, presumably, by the second wife who came from New York just before. Peter Demarest lived at The Flatts, now Oradell, probably in the house built by his father Daniel. He died July 22, 1770, aet. 56-2-0. The Bible is now in the possession of the Demarest family of New Brunswick.

113 DANIEL married (1) Cornelia Lyddeker June 9, 1752, at Schraalenburgh. She was the daughter of Gerred Lydekker and Weentje Terhune, baptized March 13, 1734. She died July 21, 1780; is buried at the South church Schraalenburgh; the stone gives the date of birth as February 26, 1734. Daniel married (2) Helena Van Voorhesen widow of John Hopper, November 26, 1790, at Schraalenburgh. A Revolutionary soldier (?). She was born 1736; she died 1823. They had no children. They were received at the Schraalenburgh church, August 26, 1753. In 1764 he was a member of consistory at Hackensack. In Schraalenburgh again, deacon 1784; elder 1785; Overseer of the poor 1788. He died November 9, 1802. His will, November 2, 1802, is filed at Trenton. Liber K. pg. 130. In it he speaks of his wife Lena, his son Garret, and his daughters Rebecca and Baeletje. Rebecca had died leaving two sons and one daughter and a grand-daughter all of whom are mentioned in the will. To Garret was left a Bible and an eight-day clock. A brother's son Peter J. Demarest is also mentioned. Abraham Lydekker brother of Garret in his will dated November 12, 1767, mentions his niece Cornelia Demerest, also her sister Gertrude Demerest wife of David Demarest who had died. Johannes Demarest his brother-in-law is executor.

She was the daughter of Peter VanderLinde and Geesie Westervelt, baptized May 20, 1717, at Hackensack. Her twin sister Feytie married Peter's cousin (110) Jacobus Demarest. The family lived probably in the Ramapo Valley or near Monroe or Cornwall, New York. At Goshen, Orange County, June, 1755, the following Demerests, the name of each so spelled, all over 21 years of age signed the Pledge: Samuel, Benjamin, David, Jacob, Peter. The names correspond. One of the brothers John had gone to New York to live it is supposed.

Samuel and his wife Lea were members of the Schraalenburgh church in 1733. About 1768 all of their children except the youngest daughter who remained in Bergen County with her husband, went "west" to Conewago with the first migration. Samuel and Lea, though 61 and 55 years of age respectively, threw in their lot with the children, went with them. They remained at Conewago about ten years. Then a company left there for Kentucky, 1779, or 1780. Hendrick Banta, son-in-law, was restless and joined the movement. Antie Demarest was his second wife; in all he had 21 children. Twelve of these children and many grandchildren went with him. With him also went Samuel Demarest, father-in-law, and Lea his wife, and their son Samuel; also their son Peter and his wife Mary Allen and their son Peter and perhaps other children. In the list of "Intendens" are Samuel's sons-in-law Jacobus Westervelt, Daniel Harris, Benjamin Slot, Jacob Smock. Letters written by Samuel and Lea from Conewago and Kentucky to her brother Pieter, New Bridge, N. J., are of great interest.

Conewegen, April 20, 1772.

Dear and much loved brother and sister,

These lines will serve to let you know that by God's grace we are still in reasonable health and that our wish is that this letter may find you well. All our children are tolerably well; there is little to write at present. You may imagine that we are already becoming invalids, for our days are nearly past; and yours too are passing swiftly; our life is but as a passing shadow. Yet it is the time that the Lord grants us to prepare for an endless eternity." &c. &c. Then a wish that certain money, her share, be sent to her, and an enclosing of receipt. "I do indeed desire to see you before I die if that be possible. Nothing further except hearty greeting from us to you and your wife and all our brothers and sisters." SAMUEL AND LEA DEMAREE.

Connewagen, Aug. 6, 1772.

Respected and much loved brother and sister,

I must not let this opportunity of writing you something slip by; and so I let you know that, by God's grace we are all reasonably well and hope that these lines may find you in health. I should rejoice to see you, but I do not expect ever again to do so, unless you should happen to come here, for our days are passing by. I do not think I shall abide here much longer, my time seems almost gone. I am here in a strange land, away from all my friends and acquaintances and I have never yet been in a place where it would have cost me less pain to die than here. I pray the Lord may prepare us both that we may see each other hereafter. My dear brother, my desire and wish from you is that you would forward me the little money left by my deceased father. I am in great need of it. Nothing further—except greeting from me and Samuel to you and your wife, and to Maria and Abraham and all my brothers and sisters. Greeting also from Trientje and Jacob.

LEA DEMAREE.

Virginia (Kentucky), April 16, 1773.

Dear and much loved brother,

With this opportunity we take occasion to let you know that we are well and hope that this letter may find you in good health. We have just moved to here from Conewegen on a place belonging to Jacob Vanderveer and since Abraham DeBaan and our Minister were coming to the Jerseys we put a receipt in this in this letter, asking you also to send that money if you please with Abraham Debaun, Rev. Cozyn will convey it here. So soon as he arrives at home he will preach here. The money will be due during this summer, and if you could send my full portion, I should feel happy. I shall send you a receipt as soon as you let me know what the amount is. Nothing further now for lack of time, except greeting from us and our children to you, dear brother and sister, and greet personally all our brothers and sisters and mother.

SAMUEL AND LEA DEMAREE.

Later

When you go to Hackensack, be so kind as to ask my brother Peter for the little money that was due last fall. I sent the receipts for two years in a letter with Abraham Debaun when he went to Hackensack. Peter said at that time that it was of no use to him. It amounts to £2-10-0, the sum due last fall. LEA DEMAREE.

Addressed to Hendrick Banta at Connewegen.

125 JOOST married Maria Meyer. He inherited from his father a farm near Hackensack. He was a member of the Schraalenburgh church in 1733. He was given the freedom of the City of New York November 21, 1749; he had probably gone there to live. His death followed the next year. He was buried at New York September 14, 1750. His widow probably returned to live in the Schraalenburgh neighborhood as she joined the church there on confession 1751.

129 PETER.

130 JACOB married Rachel Sikaer (Siaker in marriage notice), January 12, 1749, at Schraalenburgh. They went to live, apparently, in the neighborhood of Wawarsing, New York, after 1760. He and his son David probably signed the Pledge at Goshen, June 8, 1775. He may have been the Jacob whose land "at Hackensack River, beginning on the line of Peter Wilson running to the Hackensack River" was confiscated, August 25, 1784. Harvey's History of Bergen County. There was also a Jacob Demarest who had a judgment sale, Morris County 1778-9, Bergen County 1784. Harvey, Volume 1, pg. 127. His will, September 9, 1780, probated April 7, 1793, is recorded at Goshen. It mentions his wife, his son David, and his daughters Rachel and Catherine; the latter's husband is to receive none of the money.

138 SAMUEL married (111) Lea Demarest, daughter of Daniel Demarest and Rebecca DeGroot, September 29, 1742, at Schraalenburgh. His will, October 15, 1761, probated April 6 (June 30), 1762, is filed at Trenton. (Liber H. pg. 154). He described himself as of Hackensack, yeoman; he leaves to his wife the use of all his real and personal property while she remains a widow. To his eldest son Samuel he leaves a Dutch Bible. He mentions his six sons, Samuel, Daniel, Cornelius, David, Petrus and Jacobus and one daughter, Rebecca. His land was to be sold when his youngest child became of age and divided among all his children. Inventory was made, December 12, 1761, by Johannes Demarest and John Benson, and the estate was appraised as 290 pounds, 5 shillings. He disposes of property in Bergen Co. and in Morris Co.

145 SAMUEL married Margrietje Brinckerhoff, November 19, 1747, at Schraalenburgh. She was the daughter of Hendrick Brinckerhoff and Mary Westervelt, born October 4, 1729, baptized October 26, 1729, in the Tappan Church. Her father was born October 21, 1705, son of Dirck Brinckerhoff and Margrietje Banta, married Mary Westervelt November 1, 1728. Her grandfather was Hendrick Jorise Brinckerhoff who purchased property on the east side of the Hackensack River June 17, 1685. Jorise Dirckson Brinckerhoff, the ancestor of the entire American family which emigrated from Dreuthe in the United Provinces, lived for a time at Flushing in Zeeland and came to this country in 1638 where he obtained a grant of land on Long Island March 23, 1746. He was an elder in the Brooklyn Dutch Reformed Church at the time of his death, January 16, 1661. She was born October 4, 1729. Samuel in his father's will, is called "of Closter"; he was given the large Bible, old shooting gun and sword for birthright. Samuel's will, dated September 11, 1802, probated March 22, 1808, is filed at Trenton. Since he does not allude to his son, Jacob, born in 1759, it is safe to assume that he had died. At that time, 1802, his daughter Margrietje, was unmarried; she later married Samuel Cole. All of Samuel Demarest's sons served in the Revolutionary War. This family suffered greatly in the Revolution especially in the burning of their house and barn at Closter in a Tory raid. (Letter of May 10, 1779, Closter, N. J., in New Jersey Archives). They are buried at the South church. He died March 14 (6), 1808; she died March 21, 1802. He himself was a captain in the Bergen Co. militia; he enlisted 1776, was discharged 1781. He was an elder in the Schraalenburgh Church of which he and his wife became members March 7, 1757. He was "Sammy the Miller," located at the old mill between Demarest and Cresskill that ground grist for Washington's army.

Extract from a letter dated Closter, May 10, 1779: "This day about one hundred of the enemy came by way of New Dock, attacked this place and carried off Cornelius Tallman, Samuel Demarest, Jacob Cole and George Buskirk, killed Cornelius Demarest, wounded Jeremiah Westervelt, Douwe Tallman, etc. They burned the dwelling houses of Peter Demarest, Matthias Bogert and Cornelius Huyler, Samuel Demarest's house and barn and Cornelius Bogert's and John Westervelt's and John Banta's barns. They attempted to burn every building they entered but the fire in some places extinguished. They destroyed all the furniture, etc., in many houses and abused many of the women. In their retreat they were so closely pursued by the militia and a Continental troop that they took off no cattle. They were of Buskirk's corps, some of our Closter and Old Tappan neighbors, joined by a party of negroes, first in order to grace the British Arms." New Jersey Archives.

Samuel Demarest's house was located in Old Closter or what is better known now as the Yerrington Place in the Demarest N. J. Borough at the junction of Anderson Avenue and Closter Road. It is said of Samuel that he stood in the old Dutch doorway as Van Buskirk's men came up in the above raid and defied them. Without hesitation they applied the torch to his house, killed his son Cornelius and wounded his son Hendrick. Hendrick's life was saved it is said only by one of the women of the household rushing to the rescue (probably his wife who was Belitje Tallman) as he had been so badly wounded as to fall to the ground and by her aid escaped further injury. Cornelius' body it is said was buried by the women near his father's house. Samuel Demarest, the father, was taken prisoner and confined in the Liberty Street prison, otherwise known as the Sugar House in New York.

Peter's house was burned to the ground. Samuel's (the father) house was partially saved by the heroic efforts of the women. The barns were entirely destroyed. Samuel afterwards received from the Continental Congress by an act dated December 20, 1781, for property destroyed by the British between the years 1776 and 1782 one hundred eighty-eight pounds three shillings two pence and Peter his son nineteen pounds three pence.

The women to take part in this affair were Margaret Brinckerhoff Demarest the mother, Rachel Durie, son's wife, Janetje Brinckerhoff, son's wife, and Belitje Tallman, son's wife.

Belitje Tallman's father, Cornelius Tallman, was also made a prisoner and taken to the Sugar House Prison in New York; and her grandfather, Douwe Tallman, was wounded so badly that he died the next day; he was buried in the burial ground now known as the old Closter Cemetery at Demarest, N. J.

Samuel Demarest received from his father the family Bible and his old shooting gun and sword as his prerogative right on the death of his father Peter. He also received "All that farm or plantation whereon he lived, lying and being at a place called Closter with the Mill, houses, barns and all other appurtenances belonging."

146 Fytie (Sophia) married Daniel Christie, July 26, 1745, at Schraalenburgh. He was the son of James Christie and Magdalena Demarest, both of Schraalenburgh, baptized February 5, 1725, at Hackensack. They joined the Schraalenburgh church on confession, March 11, 1762. Fytie is mentioned in her father's will, probated May 24, 1774.

166 MARIA married Abraham Eli (Ely), September 26, 1764, at Schraalenburgh. She died probably early in 1780 soon after her father. Abraham Ely married (2) Caterina ———. The grandfather of Maria, Peter Demarest, and his wife were sponsors at her baptism. Her daughter Maria was living in 1809: she probably never married. Her daughter Altie and her husband John Poulison joined the Schraalenburgh church in 1797 and the Hackensack church in 1800. She died May 2, 1802; he died December 19, 1852; they are buried in the French burying ground. John Poulison after Altie's death married Abigail Van Orden. Bergen Co. Hist. Soc. 168 PETRUS married Elizabeth Brouwer. She left him and then appeared as his widow. John Pettit and Elizabeth Brouwer were married March 10, 1801, by Rev. John N. Abeel, a minister of the Protestant Dutch church in the City of New York. June 1, 1801, John N. Abeel certifies that on March 10, 1801, he married John Pettit and Elizabeth Brouwer, she affirming herself to be the widow of Peter Demarest. Marriage certificate and articles of separation 1808 are given in Bergen County Historical Proceedings. 1915-1916, No. 11, pg. 35. Petrus left a will dated October 24, 1819; he leaves property to his brother James and to two sons of James, also to his sisters Anna, Margaret and Caty, who had married, respectively, David Anderson, John Toers, and Peter Allen; he also remembers two sons and three daughters of his sister Maria Van Liew, who, it is inferred, had died. Petrus apparently lived at one time at or near Schenectady. He wrote from "Schanactada," December 30, 1793, to his cousin William Ely at Hackensack, New Bridge.

Articles of separation, 1808:

Peter J. Demarest, Elizabeth Brouwer, formerly his wife, and John Pettit of the other part.

Unhappy difference between them, and she having eloped about seven years past and joined in marriage with John Pettit—they agree to live separate and apart. Peter shall not frequent in converse without her consent. She may go where and with whom she will. At her death he will claim nothing that was hers. Pettit and Elizabeth shall defend, keep harmless and indemnify Peter. She is to have no claim on Peter or his estate since her elopement and separation.

Signed by all three

169 JAN (JOHN) married Annatie Hopper. Jan J. Demarest and Annatie Hopper, his wife, were members of the Schraalenburgh church in 1800. Records in Washington show his service in the Revolutionary War, the pay given him shown on the payroll records. He served under Major Goetchius. His widow applied for a pension. His daughter, Rachel Demarest Purdy, applied for a pension in 1842, stating that she was 54 years old and that her brother had died. A letter of Robert S. Goulde to I. S. Edwards, Commissioner of Pensions, dated Hackensack, April 1, 1842, says in part: "I know if there ever was a meritorious case before you it is this. The said John was so violent a Whig of the old stamp that he scarce ever drew breath in his own house through the whole war, and his wife Nantie has often made expresses to Pompton and other places for our Army."

176 Philippus married Maria Oblinus about 1780, daughter of Hendrick Oblinus and Caterina Blauvelt of Tappan; born November 22, baptized December 19, 1762, at Clarkstown. Philippus was a soldier enlisting in the Bergen County militia at the age of 16; a copy of his pension certificate is at Trenton. Served in the army for several years, it is said, and imprisoned in the old Sugar House New York for a time. Philippus was commonly called swart Philip, black Philip, because of his dark or swarthy complexion. After 1811 when most of his children were grown he went west by covered wagon to Battle Creek, Michigan, taking with him his youngest two children Margaret and Jacobus, leaving the others at Clarkstown—except the oldest, Sara Mabie, who lived in New York. Family tradition says that he always returned to New York to celebrate the Fourth of July. He died at Sodus Corners, Wayne Co., New York, March, 1845.

177 John (Jan) born at New Bridge, studied at the celebrated school of Dr. Peter Wilson, Hackensack. He married Sara Christie (b. Jan. 7, 1764, d. Nov. 27, 1839), May 13, 1788. He studied theology under Rev. Solomon Froeligh and became a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Earlier in life, however, in the Revolution he served for three years in the militia of Bergen County. He was pastor of churches from 1790 to 1820, successively the churches of Niskayuna, and Boght, of Minisink and Mahakemack (Port Jervis) and of Ponds and Wyckoff. He was of strictest principles in theology and in use of the sacraments; and in 1822 he seceded from his church to ally himself with the then forming "True Dutch Reformed Church." Later he went to New York, died there April 8, 1837. With his wife he is buried at the French burying ground. In 1820 on retiring from pastorate he settled on a farm at Old Tappan. On the land owned by him was the grave of Major John Andre, tried and executed there as a spy. In 1821 under the auspices of the Duke of York, it was planned to bring the remains back to England for place in Westminster Abbey. The British consul at New York and others arriving at Tappan were met with generally hostile feeling, but by Mr. Demarest with friendly spirit and with cooperation which made possible the work of removing the remains from his land. He later received a snuff box, made of cedar from the tree near the grave, lined with gold bearing the inscription "From his Royal Highness the Duke of York to mark his sense of the Rev. John Demarest's liberal attention upon the occasion of the removal of the remains of the late Major John Andre, at Tappan, on the 10th of August, 1821." Major Andre's sisters sent him a silver sacramental cup bearing his name and title. Where these singularly notable relics now are is unknown. Appendix. New York Observer. Proceedings of New Jersey Historical Society. "John Demarest while a lad living in New Jersey during the Revolutionary War was carried off by a Hessian trooper. The boy observed that the horseman was unsteadied by liquor; while they were fording a stream he reached down and gave a pull to the trooper's foot which unhorsed him and he fell into the water. John seized the rein, turned the horse about and galloped home. As the Hessian never appeared to claim his property, the horse remained in the boy's possession. In the saddle bags was found a goodly supply of King George's gold which helped the boy secure an education in the preparation for the ministry of the Reformed Church." 191 DAVID married Annatye (Hannah) VanSaun, April 16, 1797, at Acquackononck (Passaic), daughter of Samuel VanSaun and Leah Zabriskie of Lower Preakness, born June 9, baptized July 4, 1779, at Totowa (Paterson). She was born in the old VanSaun house which was Lafayette's Headquarters when Washington occupied the old Dey house. David Demarest succeeded his father-in-law as resident and owner of this house; and his son Samuel was born there. The house was built in 1770 on the site of an older one built, it is said, by Johannes deReimer who settled in Preakness in 1717; part of it is still standing, the land now being known as the Aaron Laawe farm. Annatje died May 3, 1838; David died February 20, 1856. They are buried in the old Kip burying ground in Lower Preakness. History, Preakness church.

CHILDREN OF (70) DAVID DEMAREST AND CATHERINE VAN HOUTEN

206 DAVID married (1) Gertrude (Charity) Lydecker, daughter of Garret Lydecker and Weintje Terheune about 1751. She was baptized May 16, 1731, at Hackensack, the record giving her mother's name as Brouwer, a clerical mistake no doubt. She died between 1758 and 1760. David married (2) Magdalena Voorhees or VanVoorhees, widow, December 6, 1760, at Hackensack. Helena (Magdalena) Van Voorhees was the daughter of Lucas Albertse Voorhees and Helena Vander Schure; born March 21, 1732. By her first marriage she had a daughter Elizabeth who married Gilbert Brinckerhoff. Soon after this marriage, probably about 1770, as the last baptism of a child at Schraalenburgh is in March, 1769, David and his wife, together with others of the Demarest family with other neighbors, migrated to Conewago, Pennsylvania, near Gettysburg. David's two children by his first wife (the other two probably had died) and four by his second wife were with him, also the stepdaughter, Elizabeth VanVoorhees. The family settled on a farm at the, later, battlefield of Gettysburg. The location of David's farm and that of his son David are shown on an old surveyor's map. Nine of the children were married at Conewago. The families, generally, however, removed after a time, some to central New York, some to Ohio, to Indiana, to the further west. David spelled the name Demaree and the descendants have continued this. David Demaree is said to have been a Revolutionary soldier. Known for his mild and gentle character and religious devotion, he came toward the end of his life under a mental cloud, doubting his salvation. He died at Conewago and is buried in what is still known as the old Dutch Cemetery. The inscription on the stone, seen by W. H. S. Demarest in 1936, reads: "In memory of David Demaree born in the East of Jersey in Bergen County in November, 1731, and departed this life November, 1808, aged 77 years." His will, February 1, 1785, a codicil November 28, 1801, probated January 7, 1809, is on file at Gettysburg. The will mentions his wife Lena; sons David, Garret, Cornelius, Luke, Albert; daughters Charity (Gertrude) Hannah, Catherine, Sarah. The will mentions the stepdaughter Elizabeth as wife of Gilbert Brinckerhoff; daughters, Charity as wife of Hezekiah Houghtaling, Hannah as wife of Thomas Johnston, Caty as wife of Mathias Van Tine, Sarah as wife of Samuel Commingore.

213 SAMUEL married Susanna Brouwer, December 1, 1768, at Schraalenburgh. She was born March 2, baptized March 22, 1747, daughter of Daniel Brouwer and Maritie Konig (King) from New York. They were members of the Schraalenburgh church, 1772. They, with their young children, moved to Conewago, Pa. With them were Susanna's father and a group of relatives and friends. Samuel Demaree was a man of means and of good education for the day. He gave good education to his children and each received a farm from him. The spelling, Demaree, was adopted apparently at Conewago and was maintained by all descendants thereafter in Kentucky and beyond. The will of Daniel Brewer (Brouwer), February 2, 1791, recorded Mercer Co., Ky., Book 1, pg. 495, makes his son-in-law Samuel an Executor. Peter and John Demaree were witnesses. It mentions 8 children, 3 of them: Susannah wife of Samuel Demaree; Mary wife of Samuel Demaree Jr.; Phoebe wife of Cornelius Demaree. To each he gives ⅛ of his estate, mentioning lands in Kentucky and Pennsylvania to be sold and the money divided. Samuel and his family went from Conewago to Kentucky at uncertain date, 1782-1792. He purchased land on Azariah's Creek, 207½ acres, from George Scott May 23, 1792. (Mercer Co. Book 1, pg. 372). Samuel Demaree and Susanna his wife lived at first at Harrod's Station where was a fortifying against the Indians. He became active and forward in the colony, a zealot in religious matters. He wrote letters deploring the state of religion, states his devotion to the Dutch Reformed Church, but his favorable thought at the time toward the Presbyterian. He felt that he had a call to preach and was approved by the "Society" to exhort and proceed as probationer; but he was never ordained. Two at least of his sons, David and Samuel, in turn went on to the Low Dutch Tract in Shelby Co. Before 1785 this tract of perhaps 10,000 acres had been purchased from Squire Boone, brother of Daniel Boone. At that time a company went from Mercer Co. to enter upon the tract, near the present Pleasureville. Working through the wilderness, when a few miles from Hoagland's Station they built a log cabin. In the company was Jacob Banta, grandson of Samuel and Lea Demaree. Indian troubles breaking out, he started for Harrod's Station for reenforcements and on the way was attacked and killed by Indians. Demarees were possibly with him, certainly moved to Shelby Co. then or a little later. Samuel himself went there at some time. He owned about 2000 acres of land in Shelby Co. and Henry Co. He died near Pleasureville early in 1811. His will dated December 20, 1810, probated Shelby Co. March, 1811, mentions the goods, chattles and lands which "under a smiling and beneficent providence I have acquired"; gives to his sons David, Samuel, Cornelius, daughters Mary and Caty; his books "to be divided among them as they may agree"; "I will that my unfortunate and insane son Daniel Demaree be humanely and well taken care of at the joint expense of all my legatees during his insanity and in case of his recovery he be provided with horse, saddle and bridle and be otherwise decently provided for as soon as my legatees or their executors shall think it safe and proper to trust him therewith"; "I charge and enjoin each and all of my children that in case they cannot agree among themselves on any point, they refer their dispute to a testator and avoid the vexation and expense usually attending a lawsuit." The sons David, Samuel, Cornelius were made executors of the will.

218 JACOBUS married Catherine Lozier, November 16, 1751, at Schraalenburgh. She was probably the daughter of Jacobus Lozier and Maria Durie, baptized January 13, 1734, at Schraalenburgh. Jacobus Demarest lived at first at Schraalenburgh, in the old house on the Flatts, now Oradell, later known as the Van Saun house. He moved to Sugar Loaf, bought 800 acres of land near Warwick, Orange County, New York; and there many of his descendants still reside. He had a large family all of whom grew up and married. One son at the age of eighteen migrated to Canada. Another settled in Sussex County, New Jersey. (Probably) Jacobus was a private in Col. John Hathorn's Company, Orange County Militia, 4th Regiment; also a private in Col. Ann Hawk Hays' Company Orange County Militia, 2nd Regiment. He was a signer of the Revolutionary Pledge at Goshen. (N. Y. in the Revolution, ppg. 158, 163. Headley's History of Orange Co. D. A. R. Nat. No. 118,300.) Jacobus and his wife are buried in Belcher's burying ground, now Locust Hill Cemetery, near Warwick. His stone reads: born Dec. 25, 1732, d. Jan. 29, 1803. Her stone reads: born Jan. 10, 1731, d. May 10, 1791. The 1731 is probably a mistake for 1734. The will of Jacobus, December 5, 1801, probated February 25, 1803, is filed at Goshen, Orange County. Wills Liber C., pg. 6. It mentions his sons David, Nicholas, John, Gilliam, Jacobus, daughters Margaret, Mary and granddaughter, Catherine Bone (Bowen), leaves land in Warwick Vicinity by specific description to each. To Gilliam "one hundred acres of land which I won in the fifty Township of Catrauqua (?) in upper Kennedy (Canada)." His children and their descendants spelled the name Demarest. His own spelling varied.

223 ABRAHAM married (243) Margrietje Demarest, the license given October 22, 1763. He lived at Old Bridge, River Edge. He removed to Hackensack and kept the Mansion House, was the innkeeper during part of the Revolutionary War. About 1781 he purchased a large farm on the Schraalenburgh-Tappan road, lying on both sides of the road to Old Hook. There he kept a general store until his death. Also until 1809 he kept a tavern where the elections and other public transactions were held. In April, 1787, he added to his farm by purchases from the Harings and the VanHorns. He was a man widely known, his store and tavern patronized by people from miles around. From 1781 to 1799 he held many offices, commissioner of appeals, road master, justice of the peace. He was very active in the North Church, Schraalenburgh, deacon and elder. His wife died June 13, 1834, aet. 90. He died June 9, 1824, aet. 85-9-1. Abraham's will, June 20, 1815, probated August 17, 1824, is filed at Trenton. It mentions his wife Margaret, son David, daughters Rachel, Margaret, Christina, sons-in-law, Jacobus D. Demarest and Henry DeMott, and Peter I. Smith. His son Joannes is not mentioned; he probably had died.

307 DANIEL died February 24, 1760.

308 PETER P. married Lydia Hopper, May 27, 1762, at Paramus, daughter of Gerrit Hopper and Hendrickje Terhune, born August 5, 1744. Peter died November 11, 1804. His widow married ( ) Peter D. Demarest, son of David Demarest and Margrietje Haring, a widower; his first wife, Annatie Van Horn died August 24, 1805. Lydia Hopper Demarest after her first husband's death and her second marriage signed an interesting document; in it she gave up all right of personal property to her only surviving child, Peter, but reserved the right to return to the homestead, the Flatts, now Oradell, should her second husband die or any circumstance make this desirable. Her second husband died July 26, 1812, and she did return to the old home; she died there August 15, 1823, aet. 71-6-22; she is buried beside her first husband at the North church. Her second husband is also buried at the North church beside his first wife. Peter P. Demarest was a large land owner. He had inherited the homestead and it remained in the possession of the family until about 1900. The house he lived in was the second on that site. It was torn down and a third one built on the same site in 1819. This, with the land, was bought by Mayor Hugh J. Grant of New York City about 1900. Later, however, the house was secured by John G. Demarest of Oradell who was born in it; he took it down and re-erected it on a new site not far away, a house of fine proportions and especially fine interior wood work.

At the North church on the stone to the memory of Peter P. Demarest is reference to psalm 103 vers 9; and this verse:

How fresh so eer we seem our day like grass or flowrs must fade away,
If you pas by and Read the line, prepare for death you se the sygn.

Gerret died January 24, 1833; is buried in the old burying ground of the old Dutch Reformed church of Acquackononk, Passaic. The date of his wife's death is unknown. Members at Schraalenburgh from 1786; he a deacon. He was the first of the Demarest family to settle in Passaic County, where now is Cedar Lawn Cemetery. His will, November 29, 1831, probated March 5, 1833, recorded at Trenton, mentions children, Daniel, David and Cornelia, wife of John A. Post, also a grandson, Garret Post. It names him "of Acquackonek, Essex Co."

326 Benjamin married (215) Lydia Demarest, both of Hackensack, at Schraalenburgh. She was the daughter of (70) David Demarest and Catherine Van Houten. Benjamin was a Loyalist and is probably the one spoken of in Eager's History of Orange County: "The persons who harbor gangs (Tories) are Benjamin Demarest, Teunis Helme, John Haring, Johnstone under the mountain." The mountain may have been Storm King, as they lived, it is understood, in the vicinity of Cornwall, New York. Probably he is also the one of that name who signed the Pledge at Goshen, June 8, 1775, having, it would appear, a change of heart.

327 Peter married Margrietje Banta, daughter of Jan Banta and ( ) Sara Demarest, baptized October 28, 1741. She survived her husband and it is probably she who married Cornelius Stagg and with him joined the Schraalenburgh church by letter, December 9, 1787. Banta Gen., ppg. 40, 79.

328 David, if correctly identified, married Phoebe Austin, about 1770. She is identified as the daughter of Jonathan Austin Jr. and Charity Odell of Dutchess Co., N. Y., Frederickstown of the Philipse Patent. Record of her birth is not found but she is quite surely of this family since names of her children correspond so largely with the names of Jonathan Austin's children, there also being a Phoebe in the next generation, presumably named for Phoebe the wife of David Demarest. Jonathan Austin Jr. had moved to Dutchess Co. from Rye, Westchester Co. before the Revolutionary War. He died before 1777, his wife Charity Odell surviving him many years. Their children were: Jonathan, m. Sarah Black; Smith m. Martha Brewer; Job; Robert m. Elizabeth Lane; Isaac m. Ann Curry; Anna m. Stebbins Howe; Rebecca; probably, Phoebe m. David Demarest.

David Demarest apparently lived near Cornwall, went to Dutchess Co., lived there, at Frederickstown, the early years of his married life, until 1790. U. S. Census of that year records him as head of a family, 1 male over 16, 3 males under 16, 3 females. About that year, it must have been, he moved with his family to Greene Co., to Hunter in the Catskill Mountains, living there probably until his death, about 1844. Some one writes: "What sent them to such a barren locality—with mountains on each side and only a small stream the Beaver-Bushkill running through a small opening along whose bank it was almost impossible to drive a team—we are unable to tell but possibly they were in sympathy with the English in the Revolutionary War." His children scattered. Moses went to Central New York, adopted the name Dimorier, his descendants continuing it. Smith went to Canada, age about 16, spelled his name Demorest, his descendants there retaining it so.

329 JOANNES (John) apparently went to the vicinity of Cornwall, N. Y., there married Anipel Thorpe, daughter of Abner Thorp and Eunice Brown, born November 20, 1754, probably at Woodbridge, New Jersey, where her parents had married and had lived for a time. Sometime after 1783 John and his wife, with Abner Thorpe and his family, returned from Cornwall, N. Y., to New Jersey, to Woodbridge; later they lived, probably, at Shrewsbury and elsewhere in Monmouth County. A stone in the Mt. Pleasant graveyard at Freneau, Monmouth Co., reads: "Anniple Demarest, wife of John Demarest in the 59th year of her age"; she died March 8, 1813. What family they had is not clearly known. It has been said that they had no children. On the other hand it may be their family recorded in the U. S. Census 1790, New Cornwall Town; John Demarest head of family, 2 males above 16, 2 under 16, 3 females. It is especially thought that a Eunice Demarest who married Greer Brown was his daughter; they had, it is said, five children: John G., James, Andrew, Ephraim, Israel. They lived in Virginia. John and his wife adopted, it appears, his nephew Charles, son of his brother David of Hunter, N. Y., who it is said, became his heir; he married, if correctly identified, Abigail Thorpe, sister of his uncle's wife.

A quit claim, April 23, 1820, to John B. Thorp, son of Abner reads: "from Samuel C. Demarest and Mary Demarest of New York City, heirs of Abigail Demarest, which Abigail was the daughter of Abner Thorp." Also, record at Freehold; Samuel C. Demarest and Mary Demarest, heirs of Abigail Demarest, sell interest in land, October 11, 1827.

The Thorpes and Browns were of the original settlers of Woodbridge. Abner Thorpe, later of the Precinct of Cornwall, N. Y., signed the Goshen pledge of loyalty; and, November 23, 1775, was Pathmaster in the Cornwall district under the Committe of Safety and Observation. Later, living again in New Jersey, he is said to have been "French war correspondent for General George Washington who visited him on his farm in Monmouth Co." His tombstone reads: "Abner Thorpe, personal friend of George Washington, the Father of his Country." A descendant is Mrs. Adolph (Mary B.) Schmuck, Indianapolis and New York City.

330 SAMUEL lived, probably, in Dutchess Co., New York.

345 MARIA

CHILDREN OF (123) SAMUEL DEMAREST AND ANTIE LOSIER

346 DAVIDT is of not perfectly clear record. It is he, probably, a widower, who married Mary Cosine, widow, August 16, 1787, Tappan. And she probably was Mary Brower, widow of Rev. Cornelius Cosine—who, it appears, only a year later married Samuel Demaree.

347 NICLAES married Saurine Ackerman, July 22, 1753, at Tappan. She may have been a widow as, in the baptismal records of her children, her name is often written Semmie Moore or More, so written at the first of these, 1754. The father and stepmother of Niclaes Demarest removed to Conewago, Pennsylvania, about the time of the Revolutionary War; and he probably removed to Rensselaer County, New York, near Albany, at about the same time, perhaps earlier. At the baptisms of the two children at Schagticoke, the mother's name is given as Simie Ackerman. Niclaes is undoubtedly the Nicholas Demarest who is listed as of the Line, 2nd Regiment of Albany County. His son, Samuel, was of the 5th Regiment, Albany County Militia. A John Demarest and a David Demarest were also in the service, Albany County; but their place in the Demarest family has not been definitely determined. The record of the children is in a Bible in possession of Mrs. Joseph Valerre, East Main Street, Amsterdam, N. Y.

348 ANTJIN married Hendrick H. Banta, January 24, 1751, at New York, son of Hendrick H. Banta and Gertrude Terheune, born 1718. He was a widower, having earlier married Rachel, daughter of Abram Brouwer and Leah Demarest; they had six children, all baptized at Hackensack. Hendrick Banta and his second wife, Lea Demarest, removed to Bedminister, Somerset County, where he was an elder in the church, 1758. Several of his children were born and baptized there, without doubt. Before 1770, they removed with a New Jersey colony to Conewago, York County, Pennsylvania, near Gettysburg. About 1780 they moved again, with others of the colony to Boonesborough, Kentucky. He died in Shelby County, Kentucky, 1805. His wife survived him and by his will his property is left to her. Banta Gen. ppg. 49, 60. Her will, May 24, leaves all her property to her son John. A descendant N. B. Mavity, French Lick, Ind.

New Year's Greeting to My Respected Uncle Pieter Demare and ——.

It is vanity of vanities that mortal man is troubled with; and the year that is past has dutifully reminded us of this. But now on the other hand at the beginning of this new year, we are led to think what it may please God graciously to give to my dear and worthy uncle. My wish is that God may grant My dear and worthy uncle health and prosperity besides, and a most blessed New Year.

To my worthy and beloved uncle

355 SAMUEL married Mrs. Mary Brewer Cozine, January 15, 1788 (b. Sep. 4, 1764, in Somerset Co., N. J.), widow of Rev. Cornelius Cozine who preached to the Dutch congregation at Conewago, the first settled pastor there, 1772, Rev. David Rice, pioneer Presbyterian preacher, officiating. He was known as Samuel, Jr. He was of the migration to Kentucky. He purchased 207½ acres of land on Azariah's Run, Mercer Co., May 23, 1792. Records Book 1, pg. 372. He removed later to Indiana, died at Madison, Ind., 1826. His will dated June 21, 1826, probated September 6, 1826. He is identified as the Samuel Demaree Jr., referred to in various records.

The Brewer and Cozine families went to Kentucky, until then part of Virginia, about the same time. The will of Cornelius Cozine, dated February 9, probated May 23, 1787, Harrodsburg, leaves his estate to his wife Mary and the children, Daniel, Cornelius, Anna, Sarah. Daniel Brewer, grandfather was appointed by the Court guardian of the children; after his death Samuel Demaree and Samuel Demaree Jr., step father, were named guardians; they made annual reports as to property and income. In 1791 Sarah Cozine, age 15, and one of her brothers were kidnapped by Indians; the boy was killed and she was held captive; after five years, 1796, she escaped and found her way back to her mother's family. When they, Samuel Demaree and Mary (Brewer) Cozine Demaree, went to Indiana, she went with them, about 1812, having married Jesse Blanton, October 28, 1800, at Shelbyville. Demarees and Blantons settled on Indian Kentuck Creek about 6 miles northeast of the present Madison, Ind. Alarmed by the Pigeon Roost massacre by Indians near Henryville, Ind. they hastened back to Kentucky, but when the Indian troubles subsided they returned to Indiana. Sarah Cozine Blanton, probably a widow, lived in her later years in a home built for her near the home of Samuel Demaree's son, William Underwood Demaree, known to all as Aunt Sally. She was regarded as eccentric for her following some Indian ancestors or habits of her captivity time, would kindle a fire in the Indian way and in the summer live in a tent or wigwam. She was still living in 1855.

Within a few years after settling on Indian Kentuck Creek Samuel Demaree had acquired most of the land on both sides of the stream for a distance of 8 or 10 miles, had built saw, grist and paper mills, water power. He made trips to Kentucky to dispose of his lands there. About 1823 he began deeding his land in quarter section tracts to his several grandchildren. He died in 1826, his will dated June 21, probated September 6, 1826, about 15 days after his death. The will gave remaining 320 acres of his estate to Mary (wife or daughter?) and Daniel; also the mills. There "seems to be conclusive proof that Mary Brewer, Mary Cozine, and Samuel Demaree Jr's. wife were one and the same person."

359 RACHEL married (1) Gerardus Ryker (Ryckman) (b. Nov. 16, 1740, Closter, N. J., d. Sep. 15, 1781, Bullskin, Shelby Co., Ky.) November 20 (17), 1762, at New York. They went to Kentucky, settled in Shelby Co. Their three sons moved to Jefferson Co., Ind.; descendants still live there. (Letter: Paul La Bathe, Monadnock Building, Chicago, Ill.). Gerardus Ryker was a Revolutionary soldier; lieutenant in Col. Teunis Dey's Bergen Co. Regiment, Militia; Ensign in Major Mauritius Goetschius' Battalion, N. J. Troops. Rachel married (2) John Van Cleave (b. 1739 in New Jersey, d. May 12, 1812, in Jefferson Co., Ind.). He was the son of Aaron Van Cleave and Rachel Schenck, married at Middletown, N. J., September 24, 1734. Aaron lived for a time in New Brunswick, N. J.; was for a time captain of a trading vessel, plying between Perth Amboy and Boston and intermediate points. His brother Benjamin made the iron hinges for the doors of the Old Tennant Church, Monmouth Co., N. J. In 1751, Aaron with his family removed to North Carolina, settling in Rowan Co. at the forks of the Yadkin. There in 1759, he purchased the farm of Squire Boone, father of Daniel Boone and Squire Boone Jr. His daughter Jane, sister of John Van Cleave who married Rachel Demaree, married Squire Boone, Jr. She and five brothers, John, Aaron Jr., Benjamin, William, Ralph, went with the Boones to Kentucky. There John married Rachel Demaree.

CHILD OF (140) DAVID DEMAREST AND BELITIE WESTERVELT

389 JOHANNES probably married Nancy ———. Johannes (John) is mentioned in the will of his father David, dated April 4, 1803, as married and having chldren. In the absence of other or further record of him, and since his half sisters, Belitie and Annatie, married Roelof and Jacob Brinckerhoff, respectively, and migrated with the colony from New Jersey to Conewago, it is reasonably supposed that he, John, went with them or followed them there or went directly to Kentucky, and settled at Boonesborough; that he is the John known as John of Boonesborough who, tradition says, was John D. (son of David), a Revolutionary soldier. This John migrated to Kentucky with his three sons, Petrus (Peter), John and Jacobus (James) about 1782-83. Later it appears that Peter remained in Mercer County while John settled in Henry County, and James in Shelby County. Identity is not sure. A John with his wife Nancy gave deed to Jacob Vories, March 5, 1797, for 150 acres of land on Salt River, west side, which he had purchased previously, 1791, from James Thompson and his wife Ruthey of Lincoln County. CHILDREN OF (140) DAVID DEMAREST AND MARGRIETJE DURIE

390 BELITJE married Roelof Brinckerhoff, probably in the autumn of 1770. He was the son of Joris Brinckerhoff and Martyntie Bogaert, born November 10, baptized November 22, 1748, at Schraalenburgh. At the time of his birth his father lived about where the present railroad station, Demarest, now is. In 1770 his father with his family moved to Pennsylvania and settled near Gettysburg. He, Roelof, returned to Bergen County where he married Belitje Demarest and where their first child was born. Then he went back to Pennsylvania, to Conewago, where the rest of his children were born and baptized. In April, 1793, Roelof, with his family, together with his brother, Jacob, who had married a sister of Belitje Demarest, and with eight other families, left Conewago for the Genesee Country, as it was known; and after a difficult journey they reached Cayuga County and settled near the foot of Owasco Lake. It took them over two months to make the journey. When they reached their destination, the only house there was that of Colonel John S. Hardenbergh, who later married the eldest daughter, Martyntie, of Roelof and Belitje Demarest Brinckerhoff. The house stood where the city of Auburn now is. Hendrick (Henry R.) the fourth son, served in the war of 1812 with the rank of Colonel. Roelof Brinckerhoff was a leader in every interest of the new settlement. He died February 28, 1830, at Niles, N. Y. His wife died a few years later. Brinckerhoff Gen., ppg. 39-42. Banta Gen., pg. 29.

The Hardenbergh family, distinguished in the old world, had distinguished place in America from Colonial time. They received Patent for land on the west side of the Hudson River, hundreds of thousands of acres in the area of the now Ulster, Orange, Delaware and Sullivan Counties. Col. Johannes Hardenbergh was forward in the civic and military affairs of the Colony and the State. His son, Rev. Dr. Jacob Rutsen Harderbergh was the first president of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.

Isabella Demarest Hardenbergh (b. 1853, d. 1908), wife of Frank Augustus Miller of the Mission Inn, Riverside, Cal., was a descendant of Henry R. Brinckerhoff, son of Roelof Brinckerhoff and Belitje (Isabella) Demarest. "The first Brinckerhoff arrived in New Amsterdam 1638. The first Hardenbergh arrived previous to 1664. And the Demarests, French Huguenots, whose profoundly social conscience was so to influence America, sent their first representative to New Amsterdam in 1663." Frank Augustus Miller, by Zona Gale, 1938.

392 ANNATIE married Jacob Brinckerhoff, February 25, 1779, in Bergen County, son of Joris (George) Brinckerhoff and Martyntie Bogaert, born February 25, 1756. He had gone with his father to Conewago in 1770 and had returned to Bergen County; where he married; he then went back to Pennsylvania and lived on a large farm adjoining that of his brother Roelof. With his brother he moved on to Cayuga County, New York, and settled at Brinckerhoff Point. He died there, November 13, 1829. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Brinckerhoff Gen. Banta Gen.

397 Petrus, of Hackensack, married (1) Rachel Durie, daughter of Jan Durie and Jannetie Peeck, born May 20, baptized June 9, 1751, at Schraalenburgh. They lived at Schraalenburgh. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War; he is probably the Peter Demarest whose house and barn were burned in raid by Tories, November 10, 1779. The date of his wife's death is not known. It appears, however, that he married (2) Rachel Banta, March 14, 1795, at Schraalenburgh. He died May 30, 1833; is buried at the South church. His will, August 10, 1825, probated June 24, 1833, mentions wife Rachel, children Samuel, Peggy, Wyntie, Rachel, Effie. The Bergen Co. Census, 1850, gives an Abraham aet. 67, wife Margaret aet. 44; possibly he was a son in this family and his wife, Margaret Hopper of Ponds.

857 Samuel P. b. Dec. 18, 1799, bap. Jan. 19, 1800
There has been an understanding that a Samuel b. March 9, 1778, ancestor of family at Ponds (Oakland) was of this family. This seems to be a mistake, since, in this family, Margaret was born in 1778 and Samuel was born in 1799.

398 Hendrick married Belitie Talman, daughter of Cornelius Talman and Marytie Brouwer, born February 21, baptized March 8, 1752, at Schraalenburgh. Hendrick was a soldier in the Revolutionary war; he was wounded in a raid by the Tories, May 9, 1779. He died June 8, 1819, aet. 69; is buried at the South church. His widow married (2) Peter Cole, June 1, 1828, at New Prospect. She died August 1, 1833.

CHILD OF (150) JAN DEMAREST AND SALOME GOETSCHIUS

404 JAN married Catharina Oothoudt, about 1780, at Catskill, New York, daughter of Henry Oothoudt and Neeltje Van Bergen, m. 1761, baptized at (old) Catskill, November 12, 1763. Jan had probably gone with Goetschius relatives from Bergen County to Catskill, his father having died when he was very young. His grandfather left to him his father's share of estate. Jan spelled his name, deMarest. He was a sea captain. He died at New Orleans, 1801. The family lived on Jefferson Heights, between the present Catskill and old Catskill, and nine members of it are buried there. Catharina Oothoudt is said to have married (2) David Bancroft and to have had a child, Jan Demarest Bancroft. The dates are unknown. It somewhere appears that David Bancroft died in 1801. Correction or explanation of the thrice given date, 1801, is unknown. Jan had land transactions at Auburn, N. Y., 1799-1801, Onondaga and Cayuga Counties.

Proposal from William Demarest, Widower, to Antie Demarest, daughter of John Demarest and Willemptie Bogert and widow of David Anderson:

Dear Madam:

After my Love and Best Compliments to you, I hope you will pardon me for taking so Early an opportunity to right to you It is not that I have any thought or Desires to keep any company at Present, But your sober and modist behaveyour ever sinse I have ben acquainted with you Causes me to Bear you much upon my mind. Therefore as you are uppermost in my Effection, I Sepos eif you Don't take care you will be the first I shall make Sute to, but let us turn our Eyes from folly and consider the Hands of Providence in all hs Dealings with us and Pray that it may engage us more and more in his service. We have Both felt the rod of affliction and I hope that God will Sanctify it to us for our Spirit and Everlasting good and if it should Please God to make us a Comfort to each other I hope it will be so, But if not I hope we shall both be better satisfied with God's will than our own. Therefore after further acquaintance if we don't agree, I hope we both get better suted, if this is not agreeable I hope it will not be offensive I have men'ed no Name for a trusty Hand was to deliver (?) it Madam I Remain Your Effectionate friend.

458 Annatie married Jacob Ekkeson. She is buried in an old burying ground at Saddle River. The inscription on the stone reads: "born March 8, 1757, died November 28, 1847, wife of Jacob Ekkeson."

459 Petrus.

460 Cornelius married Ann (Ekkeson?). They lived at Brighton, now in Rochester, N. Y. He spelled the name Demorest. He died June 5 (Cemetery record June 1), 1845, aet. 84-4; is buried in the M. E. church yard, Brighton. His will is filed in Rochester, Monroe Co. On the stone at his grave are the lines:

Blessed vision came. The God of Light
On silver wings appeared in sight.
He touched my brow, night's darkness fled
And sunlight on my path was shed.

The grave adjoining Cornelius Demorest's is of Peter Demorest his son, as stated by the sexton; there is no stone at this grave, however, and the burial records were lost in a fire which destroyed the church.

963 Petrus b. 1790 (?)
964 Maria (Mary)
965 Margaret 966 Sarah

This Cornelius Demorest probably is the same man who under the name of Cornelius A. Demarest served as a private in the Bergen County Militia; being born in 1761 he would be about the right age for such service during the war of the Revolution. It is believed he was born in either Bergen or Sussex County. Cornelius Demarest resided at N. Y. City at least 25 years and probably much longer. This is evidenced by licenses to keep a cart issued by the Mayors, N. Y. City, to him, the earliest of which is dated May 1, 1801, and the latest May 4, 1826; in some of these the name is spelled Demarest. These licenses were in the possession of Mr. William C. Demorest, New York.

461 SUSANNA married Thomas Ekkeson. She is buried in an old burying ground at Saddle River. The inscription on the stone reads: "born Aug. 16, 1766, died Nov. 8, 1849, wife of Thomas Ekkeson."

CHILDREN OF (206) DAVID DEMAREE AND GERTRUDE LYDECKER

540 DAVID married Elizabeth Schlegel, 1772 or 1773, probably at Conewago. She was the daughter of Daniel and Barbara Schlegel, the name of Swedish origin, Delaware. Daniel was the eldest son of Christopher Schlegel, who came to America in 1700, to Pennsylvania in 1709, and Anna Maria Aistrin married May 15, 1718, Holy Trinity Church (Old Swedes), Delaware. He came into court in matter of his father's estate, December 2, 1772, who died intestate. Daniel's will was probated April 14, 1794. Elizabeth Schlegel was born August 4, 1753; died April 18, 1835. David Demaree lived between Swift Run and Conewago Creek, near Princetown and Oxford, Adams County, Pennsylvania, on his farm there; he was a carpenter and a tanner. The location of his farm and of the farm of his son David is shown in an old book of the surveyor of that time. Part of the land where the battle of Gettysburg was fought belonged to David and part belonged to Adam Essick whose son, Jacob Essick, married a daughter of David; and David lived in a house that at the battle time looked over the battlefield. David died June 21, 1830, aet. 78, at Gettysburg. He is buried in an old graveyard near there, Hunterstown. (His father is also buried there; the stone at his grave reads: In memory of David Demaree, born in the East of New Jersey Nov., 1731, and departed this life in November, 1808, aged 77). His family Bible was in the possession of B. F. Demaree of Newport, Pennsylvania. The first six children are recorded with dates of birth. He is said to have been a Revolutionary soldier. It is also said that he set his slaves free. The will of David Demaree was dated January 10, 1829, probated August 18, 1830. His wife had received land from her father Daniel Slagle (Schlegel). The will divides the estate into eight parts, mentions only seven heirs, the eighth shown however to be Samuel by the abstract of a deed. The seven heirs named are: sons, David and John; daughters, Charity wife of Daniel Albert, Elizabeth wife of Jacob Essick, and Barbara; Elizabeth McDowell daughter of daughter Maria; heirs of Magdalena wife of Cornelius Berkaw namely, Mariah, David, Abraham, Sarah, Margaret, Elizabeth, John. Barbara is given special bequest of a house. Several members of the family give power of attorney to Jacob Essick.

They were married at Conewago; and four children were born and baptized there. They then, after 1789, removed to Kentucky, Mercer Co. She died in 1811. Cornelius married (2) Polly Waddle, September 24, 1808. She died; and he married (3) Sally Saddler at Brighton, Ill. He and his second wife were members of the Old Cane Meeting, he elected ruling elder, 1801. He and John Curry, son-in-law, each paid $80. for pew in the Presbyterian Church, Harrodsburg, 1822. Various purchases of property by him in Salt River, McAfee Run, and Harrod's Run are recorded. Deed Book 3, pg. 32; 4, pg. 169; 12, pg. 418. Also sale of property on Salt River. Deed Book 6, pg. 281. His will, May 14, 1838, probated 1847, at Mercer Co. Court House, Harrodsburg, mentions his wife Sally, two sons, five daughters, step-daughter, and two children of eldest daughter, Magdalena, deceased. Will Book 12, pg. 408.

Femmetie (Phoebe) Brower had two children by her first husband David Banta: a son, born June 26, 1777, drowned at two years of age in Pennsylvania; and Maria (Polly), born August 19, 1778, who went with her mother and stepfather to Kentucky, and who married Jacob Banta. They had six children. They sold their farm in Kentucky, 1832 or 1833, moved to Tazewell Co., Ill.

567 David married Rachel Bruner, daughter of Peter Bruner and ———, March 12, 1791, born April, 1774, died February 12 (22), 1847, in Johnson Co., Ind. Jacob Bruner was one of the signers of the original Constitution of Kentucky. In his will, July, 1801, Mercer Co., he mentions daughter, Rachel Demaree. David went with his parents to Conewago, later to Kentucky, Shelby Co. He was in General Harmer's campaign, 1793. In 1801 he was appointed by the Governor one of the six magistrates of Shelby Co.; and in 1804 he was elected presiding judge, which position he held for several years. He was known as Judge Demaree. He died August, 1814. In will dated August 16, probated October, 1814, George Washington is the last child mentioned. "I do hereby certify that I have given my consent that a license should issue for a marriage to be solemnized between David Demarest and my daughter, Rachel Bruner. Given under my hand and seal this 7th day of March, 1791. Peter Bruner." He was most devoted and generous in connection with the Presbyterian church, a man of property.

592 GILYAM (Guillaume) when a boy of 10 or 12, during the Revolution, carried provisions to the British camp near his father's home in Orange Co., N. Y. The family was loyalist and lost the land they had there. With his father he went to Dutchess Co. during the war. With three older brothers, or certainly with his brother David, he went in 1790, at the age of 21, to Canada, crossing Lake Ontario in a small sailing vessel with a number of loyalists. He founded a settlement bearing still the name Demorestville. He was Major, 3rd Battalion, Prince Edward Militia, War of 1812; was called home by the sudden death of his wife, 1813, leaving an infant child with several older children. He was connected with the Commissary Department of the Royal Force. He died December 10, 1848, at the home of his daughter, Prince Edward Co., a few miles from Demorestville. This was, in 1915 at the start of the World War, a small and not very prosperous village. There was, however, a large enlistment from the village and its vicinity and an extraordinary proportion of deaths and disabilities from the service over seas. He and his descendants spelled the name Demorest. Gilyam Demorest married (1) Jane Davis of Adolphustown, Canada, 1793. She died April 23, 1813. He married (2) Hannah Burdette, September 25, 1815; she was seventh in descent from Stephen Burdette, Rear Admiral of the fleet of France, belonging to the Protestant Alliance opposed to the Catholic League. All the children were born at Demorestville, Prince Edward Co., Ontario.

From "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte," published by Ralph & Clark, Ltd., Toronto, Canada, 1906. The Demorest Family.

One of their sons (sons of Jacobus Demorest and Trientje Lozier), Guillaume Demorest, born Feb. 16, 1769, in Orange County, lived in Dutchess County till 1790, whence he emigrated to Canada. He came by way of the Mohawk Valley and crossed the lake in a small sailing craft to Adolphustown, where he taught school for two years and where, in 1793, he married Jane Davis, daughter of Robert and Elizabeth Davis of Adolphustown. The newly wedded couple moved to Prince Edward County in the spring of 1794, having purchased the previous year from the Government, lots 38 and 39, 1st concession of Sophiasburg. Here a village sprang up and was named after its founder, Demorestville.

"Here our pioneer in due course of time built a grist mill, a saw mill, a linseed oil mill and a church. Although his family—thoroughly indoctrinated in the Presbyterian faith by a long line of Huguenot ancestors—still held by the church for which they had given up home and fortune, Guillaume Demorest presented the church and the lot in which it stood to the Methodists, who were then, as now (1906), numerically the strongest body in Sophiasburg. Later on the pioneer was admitted with that body, and for many years before his death was one of the ablest local preachers in Prince Edward County. He received a magistrate's commission, and Squire Demorest was in the beginning of the last century the leading man in the most progressive settlement on the Bay of Quinte. A detailed story of his life would be the history of the early settlement of Sophiasburg.

His first wife, Elizabeth (Jane) Davis, bore him five children. The oldest of these was Catherine, born 1794, who married an educated young Englishman of good family—Erastus Howard—a union that, blending as it did the best blood of England and France, gave a long list of distinguished names to the learned professions in Canada. This family not only furnished to Methodism a fine church edifice but many clergymen as well. Nor has Methodism alone drawn from this rich stock of talent. The English Church, the Bar of two provinces, the Bench of the State of Iowa (Judge Thomas Giverson), the medical and teaching professions have all been enriched by the broad culture and tolerant spirit of many descendants of the truth-loving old Huguenot. After the death of his first wife, in 1813, Guillaume Demarest married Hannah Burdette, of Kingston, a lady also of noble Huguenot descent. Our Pioneer died at Demorestville in 1849."

CHILD OF (308) PETER P. DEMAREST AND LYDIA HOPPER

706 PETER P. married (264) Lea Demarest, daughter of Gerrit Demarest and Jacomina Helms, May 30, the banns, May 9 (15?), 1790. Recorded at the church of Hackensack, Rev. Warmoldus Kuyper, "both living in the community of Schraalenburgh." She died October 2, 1832, aet. 61-8-10. Peter was the only one of his father's children to grow up; so he inherited the old homestead, the Flatts. In 1819 the house of that time was torn down and a new one built on the same site. While this was being built the family lived in the spacious granary nearby, fitted up as a dwelling for the time; and in this the third grandson was born that year. Peter P. Demarest was a leader in the community life and in the church of Schraalenburgh. His only child Daniel P. died in 1822, aet. 31. His four children all under ten years of age, remained with their mother in the new house with their grandfather. They were brought up by him with greatest affection and generosity, becoming themselves citizens and churchmen of character and usefulness like his own. He died January 15, 1847, aet. 82-1-6;is buried with his wife at the North church. His land and the house he built were sold late in the century to the Hon. Hugh J. Grant, Mayor of New York. The house, however, has been re-acquired by his great grandson John G. Demarest and re-located by him a half mile away still of the Flatts, now Oradell, of the best architectural detail of its time.

733 Charles is of not surely known record. Apparently, in early life, from Hunter in the Catskills, he visited his brother, Smith, in Canada. It is probable that then, returning to this country, he went to live with his uncle and aunt, John Demarest and his wife Anipel Thorpe, at Woodbridge, New Jersey. The supposition concerning him is further, that he married Abigail (or Eunice) Thorpe, youngest daughter of Abner and Eunice Brown and sister of Anipel Thorpe who married his uncle; she was born about 1784. The further inference is that Charles Demarest and Abigail Thorpe had a son, Samuel. An agreement recorded April 23, 1820, in Book P-2, page 474, office of the County Clerk, Freehold, is a quit claim from Samuel C. Demarest and Mary Demarest, his wife, of New York City, as heirs of Abigail Demarest, daughter of Abner Thorpe, to Colonel John Brown Thorpe, apparently a brother of Abner Thorpe.

734 Smith married (1) Abbie Calverly about 1798. At 16 years of age he joined a company of relatives and friends who, about 1798, left New York State to settle in Canada. In the party was his cousin Guillaume Demarest, son of Jacobus Demarest, whose home was at Sugar Loaf, near Warwick. Also in the party were Calverlys from Newburgh. Smith Demaree, whose home was at Hunter, probably married Abbie Calverly before the family's leaving Newburgh, about 1798. They located at Frontenac, later called Kingston. The men were employed in the construction of government works, notably Fort Henry. From Frontenac they moved up the Bay of Quinte to the mouth of the Myers or Moira River and again six miles up the river to the present site of Foxboro. At that time the country was dense forest. Indians were numerous. On an island in the river the settlers buried their dead. Smith Demaree (as he spelled his name) was among the first settlers, leader, a powerful man in physique and in spirit. He built a log cabin. Five daughters were born to him. His first child, a daughter, had been born and had died at Kingston. His wife, Abbie Calverly, died in 1812. In the following year he married (2) Jane Thompson, August 19, 1813. She was born August 8, 1794. She died April 28, 1864. His affairs prospered and he built what was considered a fine home. The village was named Smithville; later it received the name of Foxboro. Nine more children were born to him, five sons and four daughters. He died July 25, 1854; he is buried near the village, and the stone at his grave can be seen. He left a great many grandchildren and great-grandchildren in Canada and widely elsewhere. During the last three years of his life his name, which had always been written Demaree or Demeree, appears in land deeds as Demerest. His daughter, Letisha left definite direction that on the stone at her grave the name should be Demeree. Ref. Mary Miller, Foxboro, Ontario, granddaughter of Letisha Demeree Snider.

735 MOSES married (1) Sarah Smith. She died about 1820, probably at Hunter, N. Y. He then married (2) Eunice Huddleston. Soon after his second marriage he moved with his family from the old home at Hunter to Colesville, Broome County, and later to Perch Pond Hill, where he built a log house, one mile west of the school house. He spelled his name Dimorier. Tradition says that when still at home, a young man, he read about a famous general of that name and suddenly one day told his father that he was going to give his name that form. His father told him that he had no right to do so; but he did make the change; and his descendants maintained it. All the other children of his father used the form Demaree. He died 1873, aet. 91.

740 JOBE AUSTIN married Ellen (Nellie or Eleanor) Schermerhorn, February 5, 1815, daughter of Jacob Schermerhorn, who lived about four miles from Prattsville, New York, on Schoharie Kill or Creek. She was born July 18, 1799. Jobe Austin Demarest obtained a fair education and became a school teacher at Lexington, a few miles from Prattsville. Ellen Schermerhorn, who became his wife, was a scholar in his school. They located at Hunter, a little further down the Schoharie, building a log house there. Later they moved to Durhamville, Oneida County, but returned after that to Greene County, locating near the Big Rocks, three or four miles from Prattsville on the west side of the creek. Jacob Schermerhorn gave his daughter ten acres of land there, adjoining his large estate, and built a log house in which she and her husband lived for a time. However in 1844 they moved again, now to Boone County. They went to the town of Sanford; then purchased a farm of 123 acres near the place now called Howe's. There were twelve children in the family. The father and one son, Joshua Albert, went ahead as the journey started. They went by stage and on foot by way of Delhi, Hamden, and Deposit. They stopped at houses along the way, repairing clocks and tin ware. Walking from Deposit, they arrived at their new home, seven miles from Afton, the 1st of May. The rest of the family arrived on the 23rd of May. Their home was a new small frame house. They had to clear the land, enduring privation and hardship while establishing themselves. The children, one after another, married and moved to other localities. The father and mother remained until 1873 when they went to Masonville to live with their oldest son, Jacob; and after a year they returned. They died just at this time; Ellen Schermerhorn Demarest, August, 1873, aged 74-5; Jobe Austin Demarest, March 19, 1874, at the home of his son, Albert. They are buried in the Plains graveyard near Nineveh.

855 RACHEL.

A line of present day family is given as from a Samuel P. Demarest born March 9, 1778, son of a Petrus Demarest and Rachel Durie. That the record belongs here is not perfectly clear. For a daughter Margaret was born to Petrus Demarest and Rachel Durie, it appears, September 23, 1778; and there is the Samuel P. son of Petrus Demarest and his second wife Rachel Banta. The needed correction or explanation will appear in time no doubt. Meantime this earlier Samuel P. is recognized here and the descent given from here in the succeeding generations.

855a SAMUEL P. DEMAREST, born March 9, 1778, married Maria Garrison (b. May 17, 1783, at Ponds, N. J., d. Mch. 19, 1850), November 7, 1801, daughter of Gerrit Garrison and Maria Gerritse Garrison. He made his home on the Garrison Land at Ponds; became the owner of it, where his grandson, Dr. P. E. Demarest now lives. He died July 13, 1837. With his wife he is buried at the Old Ponds church. His will, 1833, was probated August 30, 1837, recorded at Hackensack.

877 CORNELIUS T. was graduated from Columbia College A. B. 1804. He studied theology under the professors of the Dutch Reformed Church, Drs. Livingston and Froeligh, and was ordained to the ministry. In 1813 he was given the degree of A. M. by Columbia. He was pastor of the church of Whitehouse, N. J., 1808 to 1813, and of the Church of English Neighborhood, 1813 to 1824. He then seceded from the denomination to share in the forming of the "True Dutch Reformed Church." He served the church of that connection at English Neighborhood until 1852 (with Hackensack from 1839), and the church of King Street, New York, from 1852 to 1862. He was a leader in the church secession, very vigorous in its promoting, and was suspended from the ministry by his old denomination. He was a writer of ability and fervor; sermons and discussions are printed. He was a trustee of Queen's College from 1812. He married Margaret Lydekker (b. Aug. 1, 1791, d. June 27, 1883), January 21, 1808, at the South church. He died December 26, 1862.

962 Catherine married Aaron Ackerson of Sussex Co., N. J. Memo. of David Lozier Demorest gives four children: William, Aaron, Cornelius, Edward.

963 Petrus married Jane Brouwer, February 7, 1810, at Newton, Sussex Co. He went with his father to Brighton, now in Rochester, Monroe Co., New York, about 1816. He died April 27, 1837, in a fire which destroyed his house on his farm there. His child Catherine, twelve years old, also perished in the fire. This Petrus Demorest, father of Wm. Jennings Demorest, is tentatively identified and here recorded as the son of the above Cornelius Demorest and Ann Ekkeson. He was of Sussex County family; he was married there; that family spelled the name Demorest; and the locating at Brighton, N. Y., was by family from there. It has been somewhere recorded that this Petrus was the son of a Cornelius who married Femmetie Brouwer. This is evidently an error since this was a Kentucky family, spelling the name Demaree. They went from Kentucky to Illinois, locating at or near Brighton; the will of Cornelius is dated Brighton, Ill. The error in this identifying has apparently arisen from the two occurrences of the place—name, Brighton.

A Description of the sad catastrophy of the burning of the house and part of the family of Peter Demorest at Brighton, N. Y.

The Postmaster will please deliver this as soon as received with speed to the care Mr. Dealing Worcester Street, N. Y. opposite Baptist Church.

Send this Michael as soon as you read it (what you wish) to my Father and Mother and then write to us soon. We are now with sister Leet receiving all the kindness that can be offered from sympathizing friends and neighbors.

Brighton April 28, 1837.

Dear Parents and Children:—

When we last wrote to you we were all in good comfortable health but now it is far otherwise. Last evening we retired to bed as usual between 9 & 10 o'clock all well but in one hour we were awakened from our sleep by fire. Mary went upstairs with John and Katharine to bed. They had not been long asleep before Mary awoke by reason of her bed being on fire. She immediately called the children and John ran down the stairs and called Mother Mother we are all on fire. I awoke took little Sarah Ann who was in bed with me and ran out of the house and saw that we were truly on fire. Peter called his father and John ran upstairs after sister Katharine again for he had left her upstairs not being able to get her down first—we then tried again to get her out of the window for the house was on fire below. We supposed it first took fire in the wood house —but to return John tried to get Katharine out of the chamber window but she was so frightened that he could not get her out—he then jumped out of the window where Mary had gone before him but poor Katharine was left in the chamber above. After Father then inquired where is Katharine the answer was she is up chamber he then ran up to get her if possible—and that is the last was heard of him or poor little sister. Your sister and dear little Katharine are no more burned to death last night about 11 o'clock but blessed be God there souls are not burned in Hell we believe and trust. No, but are with Elizabeth in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Mr. John Hours and wife were near you know but they did not get to the house until the roof fell in it being very dry there having been no rain for a number of weeks the house burned very fast. My children you cannot tell what were my feelings when I saw that my husband and little daughter your father and sister were consumed in the flames of our own dwelling. The people have been searching to find if possible some of their remains. They found the body of your father on the hearth the head and limbs all consumed this afternoon. They found a few of the bones of Katharine at the north end of the house near the window where she was when she cried Mother, Mother. Blessed be the Lord I am not like Job bereaved of all my children yet I feel to day like him the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord. All the remains will be put into a coffin and will be interred on the sabbath 30th inst. by the side of Elizabeth. Our things were all burned except the clock looking glass and three drawers but we live in the midst of fine people who have done and will still do all they can to make us comfortable

Your dear father in prayer just before we went to bed O, Lord if Thou should'st see best to take any of us out of the world this night send thine angels to take us home to dwell with thee—and there I believe he is to-night done with all the trials of this world resting from his labors. And now my children I wish you all to come and live with us and help carry on the farm. If you think it would do for you. You must see that we are in an afflicted state. We shall our friends say have another house soon put up and my dear father will you not come and see your afflicted daughter as soon as you can in her deep and sore trials and pray for us the Lord would at this time support us and not leave us to mourn or complain.

Can't I see you. I would tell you many things that I cannot write.

Farewell.

Yours in Love,

JANE DEMOREST.

1073 David died young.

1074 Magdalena married John Curry, June 15, 1807, at Harrodsburg. She died in early married life, leaving two daughters, Phoebe, who was brought up in the home of her uncle Cornelius, and Nancy who was brought up in the home of her Aunt Jane. John Curry married (2) Timmy Smock, niece of his first wife, 1822.

1075 Daniel ran away, it is said, when fourteen years old, lived in St. Louis, especially among the French people there, followed the carpenter's trade, became wealthy as a contractor. He was married five times, it is said.

1076 Geertie (Charity) married Peter Van Arsdale (b. Dec. 20, 1787, in York, now Adams Co., Pa.), September 16, 1809. They lived on Salt River, Mercer Co., Ky., near New Providence meeting house in difficult circumstance of the time. They joined that church in 1818, had four children baptized there. Their nine children were born there about three miles from Harrodsburg. In 1836 they removed to Illinois, starting their journey September 22 and taking three weeks to accomplish it; with the parents eight of the nine children, including the son James Harvey, age 20; three covered wagons, the cows driven before them. They bought land in Indiana, sold it later, did not settle there. They settled on land at Carrollton, later at Brighton, Ill. The daughter Ida Banta Demaree and her husband George Cardwell bought one of the wagons with its two horses and went on to Missouri. The daughters Sarah and Susan were teaching school in Illinois in 1850. Susan wrote a diary, 1847-1855, now in possession of her niece, Mrs. Helliwell of Milwaukee, which may have publication; it gives graphic description of travel, visits with relatives in Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois, 1850: the bad roads, grand prairies, the ravages of the cholera, the religious meetings; "saw the cars running for the first time," "Shelbyville an ugly place," "Indianapolis a pretty place," room and board with relatives for less than $1. a week. Peter Van Arsdale in 1844 wrote for his children a story of his life (also in possession of Mrs. Helliwell). When he was fifteen years of age his father died leaving no property. He was bound out to a blacksmith until twenty-one, to receive at the end a horse and saddle and suit of clothes. He had little education, studied for a time with Dr. Samuel R. Demaree, always coveted, and did accomplish, "good society" and education for his children. He was much stirred on the slavery question, greatly desired a home in no-slave country, and did make this move.

James G. Birney, early agitator, candidate of Anti-Slavery party for President of the United States, 1840 and 1844, spoke in his house in Kentucky. In 1853 his children and grandchildren to the number of forty-three gathered in his home in Brighton for Thanksgiving day. His sister Polly (Mary) Van Arsdale married Cornelius, son of Samuel Demaree and Susanna Brouwer. His wife Charity Demaree died February 5, 1857, at Brighton, Ill.

1134 DAVID married Magdalen Christie, September 13, 1810, at the South church. She was the daughter of Captain James Christie and Maria Banta, and granddaughter of William Christie and Catalyntie Demarest, born March 17, 1783. She died July 5, 1842. He died February 3, 1873, aet. 92-1-28. They are buried at the North church. He married (2) Hannah ———. He went to New York in 1835 for the education of his children. He lived at 56 6th Avenue, a red brick gambrel roofed house, among others of the same French sort. His church was the Dutch Reformed at Lafayette Place. His son William became a divinity student and a minister. His youngest child Maria married Rev. Aaron Lloyd. The Lloyd family after some years made their home with her father at the present West Washington Square in one of ten houses he had built. Henry Demarest Lloyd was there until early manhood. He speaks of it as a home of dignity and refinement, of right living and religion. He speaks of David Demarest as his "grand old grandfather" and of him as, at the age of 91, rising in the room to bless his grandson David Demarest Lloyd as he was to leave for Washington to be private secretary to Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase. Family Bible, Mrs. Henry W. Goodrich, Nutley, N. J.

CHILDREN OF (596) GILYAM DEMOREST AND HANNAH BURDETTE

1181 DAVID LOZIER after early life at Demorestville, Canada, attended Cazenovia Seminary, New York State. He taught school for some years. He became much interested in his Demarest ancestry, and in 1840 visited Bergen Co., New Jersey, was welcomed there by ( ) Peter P. Demarest, and was driven by (1367) Daniel P. Demarest to the Demarest settlement, Adams Co., Pennsylvania. After final teaching at Demorestville: "I pioneered into the back woods of Canada, hewing out a home, and for thirty years my efforts (family researches) lay almost forgotten, sacredly preserved." Later in life he resumed the study; he compiled considerable and valuable record. His pioneer home was in Ontario; he built mills there, forty miles west of London. Scotch people settled on his land, a settlement such as told in Ralph Connors' The Doctor. In time it received the name Harrington. At his marriage he built a small house; later,a large one on a hill top with tower for the far view. He was postmaster for 18 years and "host to the entire country side for annual festivals; recitations, music, Scotch bag pipes from Woodstock 20 miles away, brass band from Stratford 10 miles distant, all followed by a sumptuous repast at which 150 sat at one table. Everything furnished by my husband and prepared by my sister and myself." He was very religious, family worship every evening, gave land and stone for church and school, ambitious for education of his children. For their sake he removed in 1866 to Aurora, Ill. A son became a minister; several grandsons became ministers; a daughter became a missionary to Africa; he retired from business in 1884; in 1892 he and his wife made their home with their daughter, Mrs. Hannah Demorest Martin at Aurora. David Lozier Demorest married Elizabeth Leach (b. Feb. 22, 1818, Wolcottville, Conn., d. 1900), June 21, 1845. He died May 24, 1900.

His four children, all boys, were brought up by their mother and their grandfather in the family home, The Flatts, Oradell. He was of especial piety and of some aptness in poetry when but a boy. Some verses on the New Year were written when he was fourteen. The stone at his grave at the North church, Schraalenburgh, carries the inscription:

This Stone
Perpetuates the memory of that excellent man
Daniel P. Demarest
Born May 16th 1791
Died Nov 17th 1822
Aged 31 years 6 months and 1 day

Pious, amiable, just, benevolent useful, he was respected and beloved.
All who knew his worth, lament his death. To them a loss, to him a gain.
He died not only with a calm composure, but with an assured faith. A hope full of in-mortality produced a smile serene which sweetened his last moments. His parting councils at once melted and soothed the heart of every bystander.

Clasp'd in his dear Redeemer's arms
See him resign his breath,
And yield his life amid the charms
Of so divine a death.

The stone at the grave of his first child Leah who died August 11, 1819, aet. 7-10-27, carries the verse:

My Parents dear weep not for me
When in this yard my Grave you see,
My time was short but blest is he
That call'd me to Eternity.

ETHAN DEMAREST and Maryum Elizabeth Sampson were married in 1844 at New London, Henry Co., Iowa.

James Laman Demarest, their son, was born September 16, 1845. He died at Glenwood, Utah, May 18, 1903.

Mrs. Osmond Buchanan, his daughter, lives at Blackfoot Idaho.

John Demarest in 1812, at the age of 18, left Bergen Co., N. J., after the second marriage of his widowed mother and entered the United States Army. In 1822 he married a sister of the wife of Captain W. Easby of Norfolk, Va., where he was then commissary. He died, September, 1824. His widow was still living in 1856. Their children: Susan married Robert Barrett, officer of the U. S. Coast Survey. They had two children. She died February, 1845. Emma married John Simpson, a wealthy planter of Hampton, Va. They had four children. Letter of Thomas W. Demarest, February 25, 1856.

Harriet Demarest of Waterford, N. Y., married James Warrington La Grange. He was the son of James Brasier La Grange and ——— Warrington, married 1776. His grandfather, Bernardus La Grange, was a Tory, living in New Brunswick, N. J., at the time of the Revolutionary War, a prominent lawyer and member of the vestry of Christ church. He married Frances Brasier. His two daughters married officers of British regiments occupying the city, the 26th and 29th Regiments.

FURTHER NOTES

An Historic Burying Ground, by Rev. George H. Ingram: "The writer visited the old Cohansey Burying Ground, near Fairton, Cumberland county . . . the site of the first meeting-house in the Province of West Jersey. It is an out-of-the-way, neglected spot, on the banks of the Cohansey River, a half mile below the town, back from the road and with a modern cemetery in front. Possibly the plot covers two or three acres. It is heavily wooded, with a tangled undergrowth that, in places, makes it difficult to find the graves.

The majority of the inscriptions are legible. I made copies of about eighty of them, all that I found in a rather hasty search. Among the names are the following: Boyd, Clark, Demarest, Fithian, Harris, Nixon, Ogden, Parvin, Sayre, Stratton and Wescott.

"The Budget," Vol I, No. 6, March, 1858, Hartford, Conn. "Fighting for a Wife," by M. T. Rogers. Extended story. Excerpt:

"About a quarter of a mile below the city of New Brunswick in the bold, precipitous southern bank of the Raritan is a singularly interesting cave. During the greater part of the Revolution this section of the State (New Jersey) was in possession of the British. 'Twas the evening of a day in the month of June, 1777. A light skiff approached the shore a short distance below the cave." A youth about to step from it heard the tramp of horses, turned his skiff into the cave. A company of British dragoons dismounted, sat down to eat and talk. The account relates how the young man overheard their talk—especially of their leader: "Old Demarest is rich and his cellar is stocked with rare old wines; his money and the wine shall be your share of the booty. I will content myself with the charms of his pretty daughter. What say you, my lads? You take the gold and ransack the cellar and I'll bear away the haughty Mary." The young man, John Van Cleef, had been on his way to the house of Cornelius Demarest, about three miles from New Brunswick, a short distance from George's Road, whose daughter Mary had promised to become his bride as soon as the war should be ended. He now hastened there. The account tells of the attack of the soldiers and the valiant defence by Demarest, his two sons, Van Cleef and three negro servants, the hand-to-hand encounter, all the defenders wounded, one negro killed: of the raiders "nine dead." "All the Demarest family recovered from their wounds and Van Cleef, as soon as peace was declared, was rewarded with the hand he so nobly defended."

Virginia Historical Index. Tyler's Historical and Genealogical Quarterly, Vol. 2, pg. 306. "Demarest, Mr. tavern of." Diary of Mr. James Gilliam of Petersburg, Virginia, 1816, his trip to Saratoga. "Left Ballston on Sunday morning in a stage drawn by a most stupid inexperienced driver in company with Mr. Eaton Pugh and Mr. Williamson from North Carolina, Mr. Travis Harwood and Roscow Cole from Virginia, a Captain Waterman and a Mr. Henderson—the first from New Hampshire and the last from Maryland. We went to the tavern kept by a Mr. Demarest, where there was a great crowd from Saratoga. Persons mentioned, "George Hay and his wife, Col. Mercer, Mr. Knox, Mr. Gouverneur, etc., the two Miss Livingstons, daughters of J. R. Livingston, I believe, and the two Miss Gouverneurs."

Louis George Demarest married Adelaide Navarro, only child of Don Martin Navarro who had the civil administration of the province under Spanish rule in Louisiana, who was also at one time Intendant General of Florida. "I am descended from Louis George Demarest. He was a broad-minded Catholic, bearing the church yoke lightly and marrying all his daughters to Protestants. His youngest daughter, but one, lived to be ninety-seven years old and has told me that she could never quite make out her father's association with Holland when he always insisted that he was a Frenchman." (Adelaide N. Kean, 1913 S. St. N. W., Washington, D. C. Not recent.)

"Jefferson Davis," by Robert McElroy, Vol. II, pg. 696:

Just before his departure (for home just before his death) little Alice Desmaris, niece of his agent at "Brierfield," presented her album with the request that he write in it. The words which he wrote seem to have been his last written words: "May all your paths be peaceful and pleasant, charged with the best fruit, the doing good to others. 'Brierfield,' 13th Nov. 1889."

Letters of George F. Des Marais, New York, 1937.

" * * * Direct line of descent traced to one Abrams Des Marest (possibly with a small d) who came to the new world to Yamask, Canada, a few miles south of Lake St. Peter, from St. Jacques, Paris, France, about 1659. He was one of two brothers who came over together. The spelling of the family name for those of direct line of descent appears in the records examined as Des Marest and Des Marais. My parents reside in Boston."

Letter of Rev. G. N. Desmarais, Dover, N. H., 1938:

" * * * My first ancestor, Robert Des Marets, came from Paris, France, to Canada in the year 1664 (I am not positive of the date). He was married at Repentigny, P. Q., in 1682, and always lived in the district of Montreal and St. Hyacinth to the 8th generation. His family was from Normandie, a province of France. From 1749 they write their name Des Marais and at the fifth generation in 1795, Desmarais."

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 18, 1938. Nelson H. Demorest, last surviving Civil War veteran in Yates County, died last night at the home of his son John, in Kenmore, Erie County, at the age of 92. He was a member of Company G, 189th New York Infantry, and enlisted when he was 16 years old. He was present at the surrender of General Robert E. Lee to General U. S. Grant at Appomattox. He attended the reunion of veterans at Gettysburg in 1937.

EARLIEST CHURCH RECORDS IN AMERICA

David des Marest Sr. and his wife, Marie Sohier, and his children were no doubt members of the French Church of New Amsterdam and New York from their arrival 1663 or from their locating in New Harlem 1665, the church worshipping in the Dutch Church building in the Fort and later having French services also in New Harlem. No records of this church earlier than 1688 are extant.

The earliest recording of the family in church registry is therefore the rare occurrence in the registry of the Dutch Church of New York, baptism or membership, or marriage.

The next brief body of record appears in the registry of the Dutch Church of Bergen (Jersey City) New Jersey, to which there were transfers of membership from Dutch church or French Church of New York on the removal of the family to the Hackensack, 1677.

References to succeeding membership, in the French church of Kinkachemeck (Kinderkamack), 1682-1696, follow but no registry of that church is extant. A record at Bergen, Feb. 28, 1692-3, refers to it as "de Franse Kercke Van Kinkachemeck in de County van Bergen." Earliest items of record in the Dutch church of Hackensack, from 1696-1699 are of interest, also record of the family's names at the origin of the Dutch church of Schraalenburgh, 1724-1731.

THE EARLIEST CIVIL RECORDS IN AMERICA

The Iconography of Manhattan Island, Vol. IV, ppg. 232, 458-9. Laws and Ordinances, New Netherland, January 26, 1664.

The new Huguenot village on Staten Island is granted an inferior court of justice by the provincial government, which names David deMarest, Pierre Billou and Walraven Lutten, as the first body of magistrates. Appeal is to the supreme court of director-general and council, "from all judgments exceeding fifty guilders." The local court is also "authorized to enact proper Ordinances (providing), that the Cornfields and Gardens" are to be "carefully fenced, kept inclosed, and the broken fences properly repaired." * * *

David de Mareest, pltf. v/s John Archer, deft. Pltf. says that deft, has mowed and removed the grass of the pltf^{s} valley, lot No. 1, situate about Spytenduyvel, notwithstanding he had him forbidden so to do by the Constable. He demands, therefore, restitution of the same hay, with costs. The deft. answering says, in case pltf. can prove that the valley, lot No. 1, mowed by him belongs to the pltf., he will restore the hay. The W: Court having heard parties and the pltfs. ground brief being examined they find the length of said lot No. 1 undefined and therefore by consent of both parties, the W: Court orders the Surveyor Jacques Cortelyou to measure off, in presence of the Magistrates of Haarlem and Fordham so much good meadow for lot No. 1 as the adjoining lots 2 and 3 have and in case it be then found that the mowed valley belongs to the pltfs lot No. 1, the deft. shall be bound to restore his hay mowed to the pltf and to pay the costs incurred herein."

Four other cases against John Archer appear at this session of the Court.

Ppg. 397, 400. "The Commanders and Honble Council of War in the service of their High Mightinesses the Lords States General of the United Netherlands and his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange, etc. Health!

Whereas We have thought proper for the greater advantage and prosperity of this Our City of New Orange, newly restored to the obedience of their aforesaid High Mightinesses the Lords States General of the United Netherlands and his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange, to reduce the form of the Government of this City to the former character of Schout, Burgomasters

Pursuant to a preceding Order, dated 21st inst. the inhabitants of the Village of N. Haerlem presented this day (18th August 1673 ?) in Court a double number of persons as Magistrates over said Village, together with a list of their inhabitants, who have taken the oath, from which nomination the following are elected as Schepens of said Village:—Resolveert Waldron, David de Maeree, Joost Oblinus, Arendt Harmensen; and as Secretary, Hend'k Jans^{n} V. Vin."

Harlem Records.

1665 (Page 220) "Montagne, cherishing the purpose to sell out and leave (arrangements for which he completed only just before his death), now disposed of his village property and bouw land, recently his brother's, with the crop he had just sold thereon, to David Demarest, late of Staten Island, who became a resident of the town, where he at once took a prominent position."

Oct. 6, 1666. Case of John Montagne v/s David Demarest, a claim for property because the latter has not paid as stipulated. The defense is that there was an "arrest" of money in other connection. The verdict was that Montagne make oath of ignorance as to the "arrest" and that Demarest give up the land with costs. See Records of New Amsterdam, Oct. 9, 1666.

Jan. 5, 1667. An appearance before the secretary concerning "Bronx land" and agreement as to certain payment and redemption signed by Le Maistre, Gerretson, Van Oblinus and David Desmarest. Also, David Desmarest was permitted to extend his house lot (erf) out the strand as far as he can.

Jan. 5, 1767. David Desmarest signs as witness an agreement between Daniel Tourneur and a servant.

Feb. 28, 1667. Daniel Tourneur on behalf of Laval demands an "arrest," 70 guilders and a canoe in the hands of David Demarest for a debt of Marquis Forfoij (Marcus Suffoy). The court declares an "arrest" valable.

July 23, 1667. "By a plurality of votes the following persons were nominated for constable and overseers and referred to the Mayor's Court for its approbation:" David Desmarest, Johannis Vermelje, Johannis Verveelen, Cornelius Jacobsen. See Records of New Amsterdam, Aug. 6, 1667.

Sept. 6, 1670. Jean Des Marest, Constable. See Records of New Amsterdam A° 1670.

Jan. 8, 1672. "This was court of inquiry concerning the riding over a child of David Demarest which happened yesterday, and the child died this morning. The following depositions were taken. Cornelius Jansen, Arent Hermanse and Conrad Hendricksen declare that yesterday they were present about the door of Cornelius Jansen's (house) and that about two hours sun they saw Joost van Oblinus' little son 9 or 10 years old coming with his father's horse, and having harnessed him to the sleigh he rode up to the door of Cornelius Jansen and in the commencement of his riding he rode over the child of David Des Marest, without the witnesses being able to say whether the horse or sleigh or the whiffle tree had touched him in riding over the children that were standing round about. This we the attestants declare to be true and worthy of belief.

Dated as above at New Harlem

In the presence of me,
J. Lamontagne, Secretary.

Jan. 8, 1672.

Enquiry and deposition.

Joost Van Oblinis deposes that he did not know of the accident till he was informed of it by others and that he was heartily sorry.

In the presence of me,
J. Lamontagne.

I x x x Feb. 1, 1672. David Des Marest and Marie Sohier his wife come before Jan de la Montagne, magistrate, to make joint will. They leave 25 pounds (?) to the poor of New Harlem and leave property to each other until a re-marriage. They say that, although it is the law of the land that the oldest son should inherit the larger sum, they wish their children to share equally in their estate.

April 23, 1672. The court has before it a dispute—rough words and violence—between David Demarest and Glaude Lemaistre (Delamater). There are witnesses and affidavits. Joost Van Oblinis offers himself as security for Desmarest.

Aug. 26, 1674. A document appears signed by Resolved Waldron, Schout, and David Desmarest, ruling magistrate.

Nov. 19, 1674. David Desmarest is chosen constable.

July 26, 1675. Action as to conveyance of property to David Desmarest, Jr. land, meadows, house, barn, near the town, by Paulus Richard of New York.

Dec. 7, 1676. An action, Resolved Waldron vs. David Desmarest, Jr. concerning damage to a fence.

Feb. 24, 1676. Committee considers an objection by David Desmarest concerning certain land; it is arranged that the Governor will send his surveyor to lay out the land.

Dec. 7, 1676. David De Marest, is indebted from the 23rd of October 1674 for two years salary to the Parish Clerk at 15 guilders a year, amounting to 30 guilders which he must pay by order of the Mayor's Court according to the list of contributors. Le Maistre appears as thus in arrears for three years.

Dec. 19, 1676. Resolved Waldron, constable, and Adolph Meyer having addressed the person of David Demarest and informed him of the claim for such arrears, he gave answer that "if His Excellency the Governor orders it, I will do it."

Dec. 29, 1676. "I will not pay before it has been decided by the Court of Sessions that it must be paid, etc."

Apr. 12, 1677. David Desmarest says that the Governor told him he need not pay, that the Court has been misinformed but that since he "intends removing out of the town" he is willing to pay or cause to be paid, but not in case he does not remove. "You people are parties against me and seek but to drive me into great cost."

Jan. 5, 1677. Concerning gift to David Desmarest of powder, other than for Indian work, by the Governor without burdening the town.

Nov. 15, 1677. Case vs. David and Samuel Des Marest for taking horses out of public pound. Defense is that it was done in ignorance.

April 4, 1678. Case of Daniel Tourneur vs. Jan Des Marest concerning a borrowed axe, not returned. Defense is that it was returned. Verdict was given in favor of Jan Des Marest.

EXCERPTS FROM HISTORY OF HARLEM, BY JAMES RIKER

Pg. 5. "Along the fruitful valley of the Somme were scattered the homes of our Demarest, Tourneur, Cresson, and Disosway, not to enlarge the number; most of them prominent among the Harlem settlers."

Pg. 50. "Very interesting is Picardy, whence came so many of the French exiles who made their homes at Harlem for longer or shorter periods; in all some thirty families of which a full third were Picards or of Picard descent. Of this class were our Tourneur, Cresson, Demarest, Casier and Disosway, all of whom, except the last, served as magistrates."

Pg. 102. "The family Des Marets was of the old Picard gentry and was also prominent in the church at Oisemont, of which David Des Marets, the Sieur du Ferets was an elder."

Pg. 172. "The Church Lane x x x still lives x x x in the memories of a few who x x x trod its grassy paths to the old Dutch church which stood near the Harlem river on the south side of the Lane, in a corner of the old cemetery removed in 1868. Extending from the river, where on its north side stood the Judah house, on its south the Benson house, this ancient road, cutting the modern blocks diagonally, struck Third Avenue at 121st Street, then crossing where was since the Park to Sylvan Place and 120th Street, turned southward just beyond that point and joined the original Harlem and New York road, or continuation of the lower village street, which in early times extended west to the little Mill Creek (north branch of Montagne's Kill) and across to Harlem Lane, now Avenue St. Nicholas x x x . The Benson house aforesaid, yet in good repair, standing cornerwise to the upper side of 125th Street, late occupied by Mr. J. K. Cowperthwait, but early in this century the home of Lawrence Benson, then of Captain Bailey, and later of Judge Morrell, marks the situation of a much more ancient house—that of the original settler, David Demarest."

Pg. 233-234. Full record is given of a proposal January 3, 1667 to the Magistrates of the town by the Honorable Heer Delaval to which ten parties sign agreement including David Demarest, for the stopping up of Spuyten Duyvel, for the making of a road so far as practicable from the town to New York, and for other public matters.

Pg. 239. Statement is made of new application to the Governor March 15, 1667 for a general patent which should include all the lands and meadows held by the freeholders, seeking confirmation of the Dutch ground-briefs, thirteen persons uniting in the petition, including David Demarest.

Pg. 240. "List of the Cattle that went with the Herder, April 15, 1667: x x x David Demarest, 2 oxen, 4 cows."

Pg. 242. "Excise accounts from January 16 to July 22, 1667, charge x x x number of times x x x David Demarest 6.

Pg. 265. "On May 19th (1670) the magistrates, pursuant to directions from the Mayor, appointed David Demarest and Arent Evertsen Keteltas curators over the estate of Kier Wolters, late of Fordham, deceased."

Pg. 267. June 2, 1670, "A small erf lying opposite to Kortright and Delamater, on the south side of the street, was voted to Jean Demarest, who was already in possession, having two years previous married a daughter of Simon the Walloon."

Pg. 275. "Mayor Delavall held this court at Harlem on September 8th, 1671, at which was considered: 1. Complaint of David Demarest against John Archer, for mowing grass in his meadow at Spuyten Duyvel, being no 1 on the Westchester side. x x x Referred to the magistrates of Harlem and Fordham."

Pg. 278. "On December 29th, 1671, Daniel Tourneur, ruling magistrate, and his wife, Jacqueline Parisis, both in health, made their will x x x . Witnesses, David Demarest and Glaude Delamater."

Pg. 278. "On January 7th, 1672, Pieter Van Oblinus, a boy of 9 or 10 years, driving through the village with his father's horse and sleigh, ran over David Demarest's child, Daniel, 5 or 6 years old, who was playing with other children about the door of Cornelis Jansen's tavern. He died the next morning and the magistrates then assembled to inquire into the circumstances. It was shown x x x to have been accidental."

Pg. 278. "On February 1st, David Demarest, ruling magistrate, and his wife, Marie Sohier, in health, but 'reflecting on the frailty of human life,' made their will, giving, 'each of them, 25 gl. to the poor of New Harlem as a remembrance.' The survivor to enjoy the estate until remarriage, and then 'even though the laws of the land provide that one child shall inherit more than the other,' their will is that all their 'lawful children, mutually begotten, shall inherit equal legatary portions.' Witnesses, Daniel Tourneur and Glaude Delamater."

Pg. 279. "On February 8th, the Town leased two parcels of meadow; x x x The other 'a piece of meadow at the North River' (called a little later Moertje David's Fly) was taken for the same term [six years] by David Demarest at the yearly rent of 24 gl."

Pg. 279. David des Marest is one of five who as "Hon. Magistrates" sign a deed for land of Jan de La Montagne, releasing whatever claim the town might have acquired from Governor Nicolls' Patent.

Pg. 281. "The Town Court was busied April 23, 1672 with an investigation sought by David Demarest as to an assault made upon him the day before by Glaude Delamater. x x x As Demarest was a magistrate, the board had to refer the case to the Mayor's Court. x x x . Joost Van Oblinus became bail for Demarest's appearance."

Pg. 284. An order of Governor Lovelace is stated. "Whereas the Meadow ground or Valley by the Creek beneath the town of Fordham at Spuyten Duyvel is claimed by some of the inhabitants of New Harlem, but is at so great distance from them and lying unfenced, and so near the Town of Fordham, that those of Harlem can receive little or no benefit thereby, as the inhabitants of Fordham can not avoid being daily trespassers there, if the propriety there shall still continue to Harlem x x x I do refer this matter to Daniel Tourneur and David des Marest, with John Archer, to make inquiry hereunto, and make report thereof unto me with all convenient expedition. Given, etc., this 9th day of November 1672."

Pg. 286. The name of David Demarest appears in the list of 16 owners of house lots (erven) made liable to certain charges, one erven opposite his name.

Pg. 286-7. "Meynard Journee being sick, January 25th, made his will x x x . Appoints Sieur Demarest and Oblinus overseers of his estate." 1673.

Pg. 287. The name of David des Marest appears in a list of creditors of the town of New Harlem. 1673 the 6th of March.

Pg. 288. The name of David Demarest appears in the list of those who have paid certain amount on assessment, then paid on the patent.

Pg. 289. March 8, 1673, David des Marest is the first of seven signers, inhabitants of New Harlem, as also owners and possessors of the land called Montagne's Flat, setting forth certain proposals touching this land. David Des Marest, Claude Le Maistre, Daniel Terneur, Cornelis Jansen, Resolvert Waldron, Laurens Jansen, Jan Dyckman.

Pg. 293. "On March 30th, being Sunday and Pass, the quiet and good order of the village was broken by a most shameful affair, the more scandalous considering the standing of some of the parties." Several members of the leading families were concerned in it especially Samuel Demarest and Jean Demarest and David Demarest, sons of the senior David. The fathers of the several participants also became involved x x x . "The younger combatants might glory in this general knock-down and little fear the opprobrium; but for the two elderly ones holding high positions, Demarest a magistrate and Tourneur a deacon, sober retrospection no doubt brought shame and regret. But we must discriminate between Tourneur rash, even dastardly, and Demarest more temperate in his Picard impulses, and probably acting in self-defense only. The latter, a few weeks later (August 23rd) was re-elected to the magistracy."

Pg. 294. "Simeon Cornier had bought Le Roy's house and lands x x x but selling his lands July 26, 1675, to Paul Richard x x x The day he bought it, Richard sold Cornier's property to David Demarest, Jr."

Pg. 295-6. "This chapter of incidents may fitly close with a glance at the village of New Harlem as it was in the Autumn of 1673 x x x . Here at the river and where, about the tavern, smith-shop, church and ferry, gather the stir and business activity of the village, is the comfortable home of the French refugee and newly-appointed schepen, David Demarest. His house and barn occupy a lot 'abutting on three streets from which it is fenced' and extended 'toward the strand as far as he can' by virtue of a town grant of January 5, 1667. It contains a double-erf, or two erven, the upper, facing the Great Way, being that gotten from Montagne (and where now the oldest house and relic of the village stands), the other once Domine Zyperus'. This last looks out to the south upon the square or green about the landing-place. Demarest's neighbor over the cross-street is Glaude Delamater, recent magistrate."

Pg. 301. Dutch authority having displaced the English in 1673 "The Burgomasters and Schepens of the City of New Orange 22nd August" call the inhabitants of the town of New Harlem to "assemble and by a general vote to nominate eight from the same as magistrates, (all such being also of the Reformed Christian Religion)" from whom four would be elected as magistrates for the town. The people met and nominated the eight, David des Marest the first in the list. He was then one of the four who were appointed magistrates and who took the oath of fidelity to the States General and the Prince of Orange.

Pg. 301-2. In the list of other inhabitants to whom, called together on August 25, oath of allegiance was administered are, Jean des Marest and, in the group of young men i.e., unmarried, David des Marest junior and Samuel des Marest.

Pg. 302. Jean Demarest and the younger sons of David Demarest pledged aid in the construction of palisades for the city defences.

Pg. 303. Jean Demarest and Arent Harmans were appointed to take charge of the plantation of Captain Richard Morris following upon visit by the overseers pursuant to orders from Council of War.

Pg. 306. October 4, 1673, Governor Colve held a council at Harlem. The inhabitants of Fordham appeared at Harlem and took the oath of allegiance at the hand of Governor Colve and before other officials; "Resolved Waldron and David Demarest being also present."

Pg. 307. David des Marest with the three other magistrates as "the Schout and Rulers of the Town New Haerlem," sign a petition to the "Noble, Right Honorable Lord, the Governor of New Netherland" concerning obligations of Captain Thomas Delavall and certain desired property adjustments in relation thereto.

Pg. 308. In the list of Free-Will Contributors to the voorleser's office for the year ensuing David des Marest appears as subscribing f. 15. He also appears among four who are to pay rent of the meadows beginning 1st of May 1671, f. 24, the largest individual rent listed.

Pg. 308-309. 1673, 7th November. Night Watch was organized for the protecting of the community from disorder and damage. Four companies were organized, six men in each company. In the second company appears the name of Samuel des Marest; in the third company the name of David des Marest Jun; in the fourth company the name of David des Marest.

Pg. 314-5. At a public sale, July 5, 1672 of the estate of the late Lubbert Gerritsen x x x "His lot No. 4, Jochem Pieters, with its meadows and a garden (No. 11) for a building plot 'west of the village and north of the street' and 'between Cornelis Jansen and Joost Van Oblinus' was sold to David Demarest Sr. for 925 fl."

Pg. 318. English government restored. "The Mayor's Court again resumed its jurisdiction and by its order the town on December 7th, 1674, nominated a double number of persons from which to fill the places of constable and overseers. The next day the Court acted upon the nominations. Schout Waldron gave place to David des Marest as constable."

Pg. 320. The name of David des Marest, Jr., appears in the list of those subscribing to the support of the parish clerk and schoolmaster. Glaude le Maistre and David des Marest Sen. declined to subscribe.

Pg. 321. "Among the newly-arrived French refugees before noticed was Jean le Comte with his wife Mary Laurens and one child. For want of a dwelling they were allowed by the constable, Demarest, to put their household effects in his barn."

Pg. 327. Certain Indians, having been ordered by the Governor "to remove within a fortnight to their usual winter quarters within Hellgate upon this island," in attempting "to pass up the Harlem river were stopped at the village by Constable Demarest; x x x they could show no pass. Demarest thereupon detained them and dispatched a letter to the Governor." The reply dated New York, October 21, 1675, and addressed to "Mr. Constable" commends him for his action and gives directions as to the retaining and accommodating of the Indians for the present "and that you double your watch" and is signed "Your loving friend, E. Andros."

Pg. 328. In the list of the four companies of the night watch, seven men in each company, the name of David des Marest appears in company 1, the name of Samuel des Marest in company 3, and the name of David des Marest Jun. in company 4.

Pg. 330. When new fence-masters were appointed April 24, 1675, "Cornelis Jansen and Conrad Hendricks to succeed Arent Hermens and David Demarest Jr."

Pg. 332. The name of David des Marest and the name of David des Marest Jun. and the name of Samuel des Marest appear in a list of 22 people of the town of New Harlem who request that in the distributing of certain lands each of them "may be allowed a part of the same to build upon and plan etc."; 30th August 1676. Governor Andros favored this application but referred it to the magistrates for their preparing of list they approved. In this list about one-third of the petitioners are omitted, including David des Marest Jun.

Pg. 333. "The Out-Gardens 'lying at the west side of the village' were also laid out by numbers' February 5, 1677 x x x Demarest buying 11, gave it back to the town being allowed to survey 16 instead. The present owners were x x x David Demarest 16, 17, 18."

Pg. 333-4. David Demarest Sen. assisted in the repairing of the school house but David Demarest Jun. refused to contribute toward the repairs upon the town-house, probably offended because he was omitted from the list of those recommended for land assignment.

Pg. 334. "The elder Demarest and Glaude Delamater x x x had for some time ceased to contribute to Vander Vin's (voorleser) support, the first being two years in arrears and the latter three." The Mayor's Court ordered that the payments be made. "Demarest refused but added 'If the Heer Governor order that I pay it, I shall do it'," and again after ten days insisted "I will not pay before the Court of Sessions decide that I must." Various citations were issued and finally Demarest said "that the Heer Governor had told him he was not bound to pay. x x x Yet as he intends to remove out of this town he will pay or cause it to be paid but not if he should not leave. x x x The contest was ended as to Demarest who, having promised, kept his word." The point at issue was that "they of the French congregation in the time of Governor Francis Lovelace having received a preacher the aforesaid Governor had said that 'the French of the Town of New Harlem should be free as to contributing to the Dutch voorleser.' x x x Demarest was now engrossed with a scheme of some magnitude—the purchase from the Indians of a large tract of land on the Hackensack River with the declared purpose of making a settlement of 30 or 40 families to be transported from Europe. He and his son, David, contracted with Paulus Richard of New York, merchant, apparently on the same date March 12, 1677, to sell him their property in Harlem, but only the deed from David Jun. has been found given April 12, pursuant to the articles of sale previously executed. On June 8th ensuing, Demarest effected his Indian purchase of 2000 acres to which he prepared to remove with his entire family, including Jacques el Roe, on the first of May, 1678, until which date the two Davids had reserved the use of their respective dwellings, the father then occupying his 'new house.' "

Pg. 337. A certain claim and cancelling of obligation in which David Demarest and Daniel Tourneur are concerned is related in detail.

Pg. 348. "The French refugees were gradually leaving, drawn principally to Bergen County N. J., Staten Island and up the Hudson, where they found other French families and land more abundant and to be had at a trifling cost. Gerard Magister was of the number that left. He had lately drawn one of the New Lots and at the same time by deed of August 9, 1677 bought from Joost Van Oblinus for 400 gl. in grain, the erf, house and barn lately owned by and yet in the occupancy of David Demarest Jr."

Pg. 349. "Upon the 4th of April, 'The Constable was authorized and empowered to collect and receive the debts which to this town must be paid according to the assessment of the 19th February 1677 as from Jan Louwe, David des Marest, Glaude le Maistre and others. Desmarest settled up in full with the town on April 26, his son David had done so on the 23rd, and soon after this the whole family with Jacques Laroe removed to their new home on the Herring River, now the Hackensack."

Pg. 349. "Demarest's 'two miles square' (6 m. by 2 m.) purchase from Mendawasey and other Tappan chiefs was commonly called 'The French Patent.' From what is now New Bridge, on the Hackensack, two miles above Hackensack village, it reached up the river to a little beyond Old Bridge; and from the river eastward to the 'North River Mountains,' or present line of the Northern Railroad. On the part lying above the Old Bridge, upon the bank of the Hackensack, in a charming situation, Demarest built his dwelling and a grist mill, with a dam across the stream. He called his home Essa (a mistake, the word means Essex Co.) perhaps from the old family seat in Picardy, Oise Mont, or Oise, which the Latin authors called Oesia of Aesia. Afterwards buying lands on the west side of the river, he put up there a saw mill, and also a more capacious grist mill. This last was called the Great Mill, and its older neighbor opposite, the Little Mill. Demarest's plan of forming a French colony on his tract failed; though he drew to him several families, as those of Daniel du Voor, Jean Durie, Jacques Laroe and Nicholas de Vaux, and they together organized what was called 'The French Church of Kinkachemeek,' and built a house of worship on Demarest's land near the dwelling upon a knoll just below the Old Bridge, where still remains 'The French Burying Ground.' In midsummer, 1693, David Demarest, the patriarch, died and his remains, with those of his wife, who died first, no doubt rest in the old burying ground aforesaid. His last will, made August 26, 1689, gave his estate equally to his three sons. David Junior had meanwhile died, and his widow married John Durie. On August 13, 1693, some days after the death of David, the elder, a division was made, in presence of Rev. Pierre Peiret, by John and Samuel Demarest, and by John Durie for the children of David, junior; the homestead and Little Mill falling to John, the lands and mills west of the river to Samuel, and heirs of David. After losing its chief patron, the French church declined; Rev. Pierre Daille, Peiret's colleague, who usually preached here, removing to Boston, his visits ceased, and the Demarests and others took letters to the Dutch church at Hackensack. Demarest's cherished creations, the church, the mills, have alike disappeared; only a few piles, the remains of the mill-dam, show their heads at very low water."

Pg. 382. In a certain land case in which reference was made to the Harlem patent and some special patents, the "Defendant endeavored to show that the island so called [Stony Island] was not such till David Demarest made the Ditch between Stony Neck and the Main, in the time of the Dutch, he being then overseer of the Plantation."

Recorded in Liber 1 of Deeds and Patents folio 85.

Letter, August 1933, Lemuel Lozier, Surveyor, Hackensack:

In reply to your letter of July 31, concerning the original Demarest Patent, I do not believe I can give you information of much value as to the lines of the original Patent, and from anything I have been able to gather in looking up the matter since the receipt of your letter I am of the opinion that the records which may be obtained would be quite indefinite as to location today.

Harvey's History has a small map of Bergen County, marked off into some 33 tracts which he refers to in the text of his book, stating that his lines are very indefinite and may be quite inaccurate. On the enclosed map I have sketched therefrom (how accurate the same may be I cannot say) tracts 17, 18, 19 and 20, which he states (together with land north thereof) David DeMarrie bought from the Indians, which, however, gave him only a part title to the tract; and that subsequently he obtained a Patent to lots 18 and 19 only from the Proprietors of the Province of East Jersey.

The Westervelt History says the Patent was conditioned on his bringing in 45 families on the site, and which Patent was attacked by other prior Patentees; that the Governor withdrew the grant from the sons of David De Marrie, and gave them a smaller grant, known as the French Patent.

I have marked on the map a line on the ridge which separates the farms on the Flatts Road and southward along the Hackensack River to New Bridge from the farms on the Schraalenburgh Road and which was commonly spoken of, years ago, as the Patent Line. That line carries down to and probably through Prospect Avenue. (running on the west side of the Old South Church at Bergenfield) and continuing on southward, as indicated from farm lines, probably to the southerly line of section 17. I believe that was the easterly line of the French Patent. The Hackensack River was the west line, and I am inclined to believe the French Patent extended from the north line of section 19 to the south line of section 17. All the records of these Patents are recorded in the office of the Proprietors of East Jersey Province at Perth Amboy.

A number of other patents or grants from the Proprietors on the west side of the Hackensack River contained in Mr. W. H. Wurts' papers are bounded on one side or other by David DeMarrie, but where they may be I cannot say; from which I believe David DeMarrie and his sons were the original patentees to other large holdings on the west side of the river at River Edge. In fact, the "Westervelt History" says his home was there, on the west side of the River. I think it is generally believed the original settlement of David DeMarrie was on the easterly side of the river at River Edge, where I have marked "Original home."

All the above, as you will note, is quite indefinite and may not be very satisfactory.

EXCERPT, HISTORY OF BERGEN CO., 1630-1923, FRANCES A. WESTERVELT, SUPERVISING EDITOR:

He (David Demarest) was to settle forty-five families on the site. He died 1696 [1693]. His will states: "That I, David Demarest, in the County of Essex in New Jersey, Yeoman & Miller, &c." His home was on the west bank of the Hackensack River, in what is now called River Edge, firstly Old Bridge. This site was in Essex County after 1682, until 1709-10, when it was changed to Bergen County.

It was probably in view of this declared intention that the patent was granted him; for it must have been known by the Governor or the land office that the grant was already covered, in large part at least, by the prior patent given to John Berry for 2,000 acres. Mr. Demarias and his associates, it is stated, were so harassed by the claims of various persons during half a century that the land was purchased by them no less than four times. Berry, however, at the request of the Governor, waived claim for a time in view of the prosperous settlement, and, in case of its failure, was promised a similar grant in some other locality. On July 1, 1709, Demarias having failed to fulfill his stipulation in regard to the Settlement, Berry petitioned the Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Provinces of New Jersey and New York, etc., to listen to a demonstration of the invalidity of a pretense of John Demarest & Company to 3,000 acres of land which they received from the Indians. The Governor subsequently withdrew the grant from the sons of David Demarest, according to the representation of Berry, and gave them a smaller grant, which included a part of the thousand acres of Berry. This later grant was known as the French Patent, probably because the Demarests came from France.

MEMORANDUM, FRANCIS C. KOEHLER, PRESIDENT BERGEN CO. HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 1938.

On the Easterly bank of the Hackensack River (opposite the present River Edge Railroad station) he (David Demarest) erected his home and mill. As the river traffic grew the place became known as "des Marest Landing" and many years was an important shipping point for merchandise en route to New York City. As a boy I often paddled my canoe over the spot where ruins of the mill dam could be plainly seen. Much of the iron ore mined and forged at the Manor and Forges of Ringwood, which during the Revolution was the home of Surveyor General Robert Erskine and is today historically famous, was carted to "Demarest Landing" by mule and oxen for shipment to England via New York City.

A short distance to the East of the bend of the road, his son David Jr. erected his home, which was later occupied by his son Jacobus and by the descendants of Jacobus for several generations. It still stands in perfect state of preservation on the bend of the road.

A half mile downstream, David des Marest's son Samuel erected his home and mill. The house, one of the oldest in New Jersey, stands overlooking the river.

In 1682 the little colony which consisted of the Demarest families and those of Jacques La Rou, Andries Tiebout, John Du Rij, Daniel Ribou, and Nicholas de Vaux, erected a small church east of the home of Samuel Demarest, where they worshipped until 1696. Whether the building was entirely or partly constructed of red sand-stones cannot be determined, but in 1696 when the congregation of the Dutch Reformed Church on the "Green" in Hackensack was built by William Day and John Stage, stones with inscriptions were placed into the walls of the new church on the "Green" as evidence of affiliation with that Church. These stones can be seen today in the easterly wall of the present church, the since famous "Demarest Heart Stone" being one: D. DMR 1696.

It seems but yesterday, when I, a small boy, stood nearly fifty years ago beside aged "Granny" Lozier on the bridge at New Bridge, as the setting sun cast its shadows across the broad reaches of the river, over which redbirds and blackbirds were circling in great numbers. "There around that bend of the river," said she "suddenly appeared a dugout canoe, paddled by two young Frenchmen, one in the bow and one in the stern. In the center amid her worldly goods rested their mother. The banks of the river were lined with curious Indians, some of whom rushed into the water and pulled the canoe ashore, welcoming them with the hospitality for which the Hackensack Indians were famous. But small-pox had broken out in the village and the old lady contracting the disease died and was buried among the wild roses of the little French cemetery up the road."

Yes, in that "little cemetery up the road" the forefathers of a great family sleep, many of whom suffered untold hardships during the Revolutionary War, for after Washington and the Continental Army passed through New Bridge on November 20th, 1776, in that memorable retreat across the Jerseys, British foraging parties constantly raided the Hackensack Valley and the Dutch and Huguenot farmsteads.

Excerpt, Genealogical History of Hudson and Bergen Counties. Cornelius Burnham Harvey, Editor:

After the forfeiture of the titles to section 17, 18, and 19, James Bollen claimed them under an alleged patent procured by him in 1672. Berry also claimed section 18, and the subsequent patentees of these three tracts were finally compelled to procure releases from both Bollen and Berry.

David Demarest, Sr., purchased from the Indians, June 8, 1677, (by estimation) about 5,000 acres, including sections 17, 18, 19, and 20, and lands north of them, but received patents for only sections 18 and 19. Upon his death, in 1693, his lands were divided between his sons John, Samuel, and David, Jr., his nephew, John Durie, and his numerous grandchildren.

PETITIONS TO LORD CORNBURY, GOVERNOR

LAND PAPERS III. 182.

To his Excellency Edward Viscount Cornbury Capt. General & Governour in chiefe in & over the Provinces of New Jersey & New York, and all the Territories depending thereon in America and Vice Admiral of the same &c. in Councill.

The humble Petition of John De Marest, Samuell De Marest and David De Marest of Hackingsacke in her maj^{ties} Province of New Jersey Planters, all sons of David De Marest late of Hackingsack afores^{d} Deceased.

Most humbly sheweth

That the said David De Marest your Excellency's Petitioners' father aforesaid, haveing about the year of our Lord 1677 for valuable considerations in divers sorts of goods paid by him to the Indians purchased of them a large tract of land lying & being on Hackingsack River in the Province of New Jersey aforesaid for him the said David De Marest his heires and assignes forever together with all woods, underwoods, trees, marshes, meadows, pastures, mines, mineralls, creeks, runns, rivoletts, hawkeings, hunting fishing and all other commodities, benefits and improvements that are or shall be thereunto belonging and appertaineing as in and by the said Deed of purchase thereof, relation being thereunto had more fully may appear. The wh^{ch} tract of land ever since the date of said purchase Deed hath been quietly and peaceably held and enjoy^{d} by yr Excell^{cy} said Petitioners and their said father. But you excell^{y} haveing of late caused a line of division to be runn between her maj^{ties} Governments of New York and New Jersey afores^{d} yr Excell^{ncy} said Petitioners are doubtful that 3000 acres or thereabouts of the said tract of land so purchased by Yr Excell^{ys} Petitioners father as aforesaid and lying north of the said Purchase are cutt off and upon a strict examination of the same will be found to lye within her Maj^{ties} said Province of New York: Anr your Excell^{ys} Petition^{rs} being very desirous still to hold and enjoy the same as formerly

Do most humbly beseech your excell^{cys} favour therein & pray that your excell^{y} will be pleased to grant unto them your warrant of survey, whereby to know the true quantity of acres aforesaid and to afford y^{r} excell^{ys} said Petitioners her Maj^{ties} Grant and Confirmation thereof under the seal of her Maj^{ties} s^{d} Province of New York to them and their heires.

And your excell^{ys} said Petition^{rs} as in duty bound shall ever pray &c. &c.

L. P. IV 19

To his Excellency Edward, Viscount Cornbury Capt. Gen^{ll} & Governour in Cheife, &c., &c.

The humble petittion of John Berry, Most humbly sheweth,

That whereas John Demarest and Comp^{a} have preferred a petition to your excellency therein praying to have a grant for about 3000 acres of land (whereof your petticoner a right to 2000 acres) pretending they have the Indian purchase and have had the quiet and peaceable possession and enjoyment thereof ever since the Purchase Deed as by the said Petticon doth appeare. This petticoner therefore humbly prayeth your excellencyes permission to demonstrate the invalidity of the former pretence and the untruth later. True it is that about the time exprest in their petticon David Demarest their father did apply himselfe to Philip Cartrick the then Govern^{r} of New Jersey desireing a grant for a considerable tract of land for the settling of 30 or 40 ffamilyes which he proposed to be transported out of Europe to settle thereon, unto which the Govern^{r} and Councill consented & when the said David had nomminated the place he desired to be upon Hackingsack River it was found that there were some pryor grants for part of the same (among which this petticoner had one for 2000 acres) the Govern^{r} and Councill unwilling to let slip such an opportunity of settling the Province proposed to this petticoner to wave his right to the s^{d} 2000 acres and that he should have the like Quantaty in some other place to wch he consented provided the settlements were compleated, whereupon the s^{d} David settled himselfe and his sonnes and two or three ffamilyes which sometime after removed thence. After the expiration of six or seven yeares no ffamilyes out of Europe or others appearing answerable to the quantaty of land the s^{d} David seemed to claime and probably had purchased from the Indians the Government thought not fitt to grant so large a tract for so few ffamilyes and therefore granted him a proportion largely sufficient to the ffamilyes he had settled (the rest to remain in status quo prius) of which the s^{d} 2000 acres claimed by this petticoner is his exclusive: and whereas the said Demarests set forth in their petticon that the said tract of land ever since the purchase Deed hath bin quietly and peaceably held and enjoyed by them and their father (in case they include therein the 2000 acres claimed by this petticoner which they seem to doe) this they know to be untrue and appeares to the contrary by what is here sett forth, nor had their father any grant thereof, but possatively denayed the same and the remainder which was not granted him granted to other persons and out of Demarest's possession to this Day and for divers yeares past and of this they are not Ignorant.

The aforesaid circumstances considered y^r^ petticoner leavts it to the judgment of this Board whether his Tittles are not good to the s^d^ 2000 acres by virtue of Govern^r^ Cartrick's grant (it being granted him upon good consideration) if the same lay in the Province of New Jersie, but since it is found to lay in the Province of New Yorke this petticaner doth most humbly beseech your excellency's favor herein and to afford him his Maj^ties^ Grant and Confirmation thereof.

And as in duty bound he shall pray, &c.

John Berry.

Memorandum of Peter D. Demarest, The Flatts, Oradell, N. J.

The following is a copy of the oldest writing that is found among the oldest papers belonging to this House. Other papers of conveyance for the remainder of the Original Tract containing not far from three hundred acres are not to be found. They are among the missing. They may exist somewhere, but they are not where they should be. The whole of this tract was in the possession of Daniel Demarest the grantee named in the following Deed of Conveyance and by him divided in 1763 into 2 parts. The North part of which division he conveyed to his son Peter Daniel Demarest (these premises) and the South part to his son Jacobus Daniel Demarest. It being the land now in the possession of Cornelius Blauvelt and contained at that time about 130 acres. This Daniel died on these premises in 1767. He was a grandson of David Demarest, the father of the whole family and of all the Demarests in America. And I suppose he was a son of David, one of the 3 sons and brothers. Copy of the Deed:

To all Christian people to whom this writing shall Come or may concern—Whereas Our Father Grand Father David Demarest by his last Will and Testament bearing date the twenty sixth day of August in the year of Our Lord Christ One thousand six hundred and eighty nine, did devise and grant unto us and our heirs and assigns forever, all the estate real and personal which he should die possessed of. To be equally divided amongst us, We the said Samuel Demarest Senr. and Abraham (Broman) and Pieter Demarest, heirs, executors, and administrators of the last will and Testamen tof John Demarest late deceased of Hackensack, all of Hackensack of the one part, have for us, and of us our heirs—executors and assigns given granted, alienated, released, enfeoffed(?) and confirmed, and by these presents do give grant, alienate, release, enfeoff and confirm unto Daniel Demarest of Hackensack and do his heirs and assigns forever, a certain parcel of land lying in the County of Bergen, on the East Side of Hackensack River being a parcel of land granted by the Lord Proprietor to our said Father grand Father David Demarest deceased and part thereof to Pieter Sonman according as we are agreed at these presents, and have made a division between us to be and remain and continue so forever without any alteration to be made therein by division. Beginning at a White Oak Tree marked on four sides, which is commonly called the Second, Marked Tree on the North of the plain—the marked Tree of John Reid being the North line of Daniel Demarest—His lot running from said Tree about west northwest all along the line and limit of Abraham Brower and Pieter Demarest Executor and Administrator of the Testament of John Desmarest deceased, fifty five chains more or less to a small black oak Tree by the River marked on four sides—and from thence all along the River so as the water runs unto the limits and bound of his own lot of land and so all along the line of his lot Easterly to the place where it first began containing thirty three acres of land English measure—Being bounded Northerly by Abraham and Pieter Executors—Westerly by and on Hackensack River—Southerly by his own land—Easterly where it first began—To have and to hold the said thirty three acres of land according to the bound and limit herein specified—Together with all the right Title interest—profit—easement—wood—underwood and advantages whatsoever, thereunto belonging unto him the said Daniel Demarest his heirs and assigns forever, to the only sole use benefit and behoof of him the said Daniel Demarest his heirs and assigns forever, without any let suit trouble or eviction whatever—And the said Samuel Demarest Senr. and Abraham Brower and Pieter Demarest or either of us our heirs or assigns or any other person in our behalf the said Daniel Demarest paying the quit rents on proportion the land to the Lord Proprietor according to the Patent. and I the said Samuel Demarest Sen^{c}. do further covenant, promise and agree for me my heirs and assigns to and with the said Daniel Demarest to will will warrant and forever defend the said premises with their appurtenances thereunto belonging, of the Patent of Peiter Sonman, so commonly called—In witness whereof we the said Samuel Demarest Senr. and Abraham Brower and Pieter Demarest each, according to his own promise have hereunto subscribed our names and affixed our Seals this twenty fourth day of December in the sixth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George over Great Britain and King Anno. Domini one thousand seven hundred and nineteen.

EARLY HOUSES

House of David des Marest (Demarest) at the French Cemetery, north of New Bridge

Plate 82

(From Pre-Revolutionary Dutch Houses and Families in Northern New Jersey and Southern New York. Rosalie Fellows Bailey.)

This is the oldest house but one of the existing Bergen Co. houses. Built within twenty years after the first permanent settlement of New Jersey, it can be considered typical of the home of a well-to-do pioneer of this period. The roughly cut stone and the very steep slant of the roof are characteristic, also the plan of the interior, which consists of two adjoining rooms, each with its outside door. The west room has an early panelled mantel and over-mantel of unusual beauty.

David des Marest (De Maree) was born about 1620 at Beauchamp in Picardy, son of Jean. The members of his family were French Protestants, and removed for greater freedom in religion to Middleburg, Walcheren, on the Island of Zeeland. There he married July 24, 1643, at the Walloon Church, Marie, daughter of François Sohier of Nieppe in Hanault. In 1663 David emigrated with his wife and four children in the ship Bontecoe, and soon settled at Harlem in New Netherland. In 1677 he refused to support the Dutch Church there as he was a member of the French Church at New Amsterdam, and contributed to the funds of the latter. This was the immediate cause of his removal to New Jersey. On June 8, 1677 he bought of the Tappan Indians a tract two miles wide and six long on the Hackensack River. For some reason he did not patent this and other purchases immediately (and some lands not at all) with the result that others made claims and he eventually had to pay for it three times. He and his family immediately removed here in the spring of 1678 and lived in a temporary shelter, while they leveled off and built retaining walls for a plot of ground on which to erect their permanent stone home, built 1678-80. David's wife died here of smallpox shortly after Oct. 3, 1681. Other Huguenots soon settled in this region. They left the Dutch Church at Bergen which they had helped to build and organized a French Church here, which was occasionally supplied by a pastor from New York City; the foundation of the church building was to be seen until very recently in the cemetery adjoining the Demarest house; they gave up this church in 1696 in favor of the recently organized Dutch Church at Hackensack, and also generously contributed to the building of the latter church. In 1681, his house completed, David Des Marest built a mill and dam nearby on what came to be called French Kill. Between 1686 and 1689 he removed to his lands on the west side of the Hackensack River (then in Essex Co.), and built another mill there. On Aug. 26, 1689 he made his will, in which he declared himself as a yeoman and miller of the County of Essex, dividing his estate equally between his three surviving sons, except for a 100 acre legacy to his maid Anna Counk (free servants were very unusual). He died shortly before Oct. 16, 1693, when his heirs made a division of the property.

The eldest son Jean[2] des Marest, b. April 14, 1645 at Middleburg, d. 1719, received the land around New Bridge, but resided on a farm on the west side of the river (in his father's house?), probably on land bought by him and his father jointly. Jean married three times and had five sons and six daughters. He left his farm on the west side to his grandson David, son of David deceased, and his property on the east side at New Bridge to his son Peter. Peter's son by his first wife, Peter, Jr., b. 1715, later inherited it; he married Altie Van Horn in 1740, and they kept a tavern at New Bridge in 1768; the property was inherited by their only child Maria, b. 1741, who married Abraham Eli in 1764. This house has long since disappeared. By his second wife, Peter had a son called Squire Jacobus Demarest, b. 1735, who married Maria Smith in 1758, and built a house (now much modernized) inland from River Edge, near the Schraalenburgh Church.

The second son David[2] des Marest, Jr. (1652-1691) died before his father, and his young children were represented at the agreement of 1693 by their "cousin" Jean Durie, who (at that time or by 1696) married David's widow; David, Jr.'s heirs received the lands at "The Flats," near Oradell. The eldest son David settled near the present Dumont; so did Daniel, who built a house there in 1724, still standing but rebuilt on the old lines after a fire. Peter built a house at The Flats, later rebuilt in 1819 by a descendant, and recently removed to a new site nearby. Jacobus lived at Old Bridge (plate 83). David, Jr.'s youngest son Benjamin may have inherited the old house near the cemetery.

The third son Samuel[2] des Marest, b. 1656 at Manheim on the Rhine, d. 1728, married 1678 Maria Dreuyn and had five sons and six daughters. In the division he received lands near Closter.

In the division of 1693, the great mill at Old Bridge (now River Edge) with the land adjoining was left jointly to David's heirs and to Samuel, and it was decided that two houses should be built for them equal in size to Jean's. Whether these were ever built or not, we do not know.

We have little further knowledge of David des Marest, Sr.'s house behind the French cemetery. It may have been considered a part of Jean's New Bridge tract, although the latter lived on the west side of the river, and probably inherited his father's house over there. It may have been on David, Jr.'s property which was north of Jean's, but if so, why should provision be made for a new house for his children? At all events, it was owned during the Revolution by a grandson of David, Jr.'s (Erskine's map).

David des Marest, Jr., born 1652 at Manheim on the Rhine, married at New York April 4, 1675 Rachel Cresson, born at Delft, whither her father Pierre Cresson had fled from Picardy. David died about 1691, and Rachel married secondly by 1696 Jean Durie, a widower and her neighbor (see plate 86); she married thirdly April 25, 1702 Roelof Vanderlinde, a widower, who died about 1708. David and Rachel had six sons and six daughters. Their youngest son, Benjamin[3] De Maree, born about 1691, married Nov. 7, 1713 Elizabeth Pieterse De Groot, and had numerous children, including Beletje, born about 1718, married Oct. 12, 1739 Nicholas (or Claes) Romeyn, bap. Dec. 16, 1711 at Hackensack. They resided in the Demarest house by the cemetery and had nine children. The house has since passed through various hands: in 1876 it was owned by C.G.F. Heina, in 1912 by Mrs. E. Riemann; it is now owned by Henry Riemann, and rented to the Pochard Club, a group of artists.

The house stands on the east bank of the Hackensack River behind the old French Cemetery, some distance from the River Road, and is between Old Bridge (now River Edge) and New Bridge (now North Hackensack). Another view can be seen in Boyd's article, p. 33.

Plate 82. House of David Des Marest (Demarest) at the French Cemetery, north of New Bridge.

This is deservedly one of the best known of the very early houses still in existence. It was built in 1679-80 by David Des Marest, a Huguenot who became identified with the Dutch settlements. This type of house was very prevalent in the late seventeenth century. It consisted of only two rooms, each with its outside door. The irregular stonework was originally laid in a clay mortar the color of the stones. The very steep pitch of the roof is characteristic of the earliest houses and the beautiful curving overhang was developed about the middle of the seventeenth century. The dormers of course are a later alteration.

(From Pre-Revolutionary Dutch Houses and Families in Northern New Jersey and Southern New York. Rosalie Fellows Bailey.)

Jacobus Demarest is the first known inhabitant of this house. A son of David[2] des Marest, Jr. (see plate 82), he was born at Hackensack, bap. Oct. 30, 1681 at Flatbush, died 1763. He married first March 8, 1707 Leah, born at Bowery on the Bay, daughter of Peter De Groot, and had six children: David, Pieter, Rachel, Beletie, Maria and Benjamin. He married secondly Sept. 26, 1719 Margrietje Haring, bap. April 17, 1700, daughter of Cozine Haring of Old Tappan (plate 89), and had by her four children: Johannes, Lea, Gerret and Samuel. His eldest son by his second matrimonial venture was Johannes or John[4] Demarest, b. Aug. 2, 1720,* d. Feb. 5, 1783, married March 7, 1744 Rachel Zabriskie, who married secondly Aug. 1, 1788 Arent Schuyler; she died April 16, 1812. John and Rachel lived in this house and had four sons and one daughter, all of whom lived to a great age, dying between the ages of 78 and 96 years.* The youngest child Casparus[5] or Jasper Demarest, b. April 6, 1766,* d. July 6, 1844,* married April 12, 1789* Rachel Vorhase, b. April 7, 1766,* d. Nov. 14, 1860.* (*Taken from family Bible.) They lived in this house in which all their eight children were born. The property was bought about 1850 by John H. Zabriskie (who lived in the frame house opposite), and inhabited for a while by his father Henry Zabriskie. It was sold by the Zabriskie family about 1908. John A. Gurd bought the property about 1910 from a land company, and it is now owned by his widow.

The time of erection of this house is uncertain. The small wing (remodelled by the present owners with a modern bay window) is very similar in construction to the Demarest house by the cemetery. Possibly it was built for David des Marest, Jr.'s heirs under the agreement of 1693 (see above). If not, it was built by Jacobus[3] Demarest about the time of his first marriage (1707). The main part of the house is also of very early date, and was undoubtedly built by Jacobus[3] Demarest about the time of his second marriage (1719); it was in existence by 1720, as his son Johannes was born here in this year. This son lived here all his life.

Judging by their houses, the Demarest family possessed instinctive taste and a love of beauty. Although totally different in style from the house by the cemetery, this house also possesses great charm. It is built of roughly cut stone, plastered and whitewashed, and is covered by a curving gambrel roof. Below the overhang, the old windows are in uneven alignment with the door. Unfortunately the interior has been greatly changed; only the hall is untouched: a low chair rail is still to be seen, and also the steep enclosed stairway, with a door at its foot. The wing of the house has been marred by the addition of a large bay window, where formerly were a door and a small window. An outside Dutch oven has been demolished. A view of the house in rural surroundings, before the alteration of the wing, can be seen in Boyd's article, p. 39, and Black's article, p. 254. The house stands on the west side of the River Road, at the head of the turn to the bridge over the Hackensack River at River Edge (formerly Old Bridge).

Plate 83. House of Jacobus Demarest, River Road, opposite River Edge.

The small wing, now unfortunately marred by the large brick bay window, is similar in style to the David Des Marest house nearby (plate 82) and may have been built as early as 1693 by the Demarest family. The main house was built by David's grandson Jacobus Demarest before 1720, and was occupied by the family until the middle of the nineteenth century. In style it resembles the more skillfully built Ackerman house at Hackensack (plate 71), erected in 1704. There is undefinable charm about this house which is not merely the quaintness inherent in the crooked set of the old windows and in the plastered stonework. It is felt in the totally different David Des Marest house nearby (plate 82) and presumably must be attributed to the French blood of the builders. Except for the slanting bottle glass eyes which were more generally inserted in doors in the interior of the house, this double Dutch door is typical, with its outside panelling forming a cross in the upper half, and with its massiveness increased on the inside by narrow strips of wood laid obliquely side by side. It will be noted that the roofline is still unbroken by dormers.

The Migration of an Ancestral House

(From House and Garden, November 1927. Hiram Blauvelt.)

Among the most original and attractive contributions of Colonial times to American architecture is the Jersey Dutch Colonial. I say "Jersey Dutch," because these beautiful red sandstone farm mansions with their exquisitely sloping gambrel roofs are found practically nowhere except in the Hackensack Valley as a distinct and exclusive type of architecture, without parentage in Holland, England, or any other known traceable architectural origin. They are simply an indigenous development on and of the soil itself. John T. Boyd, Jr., an authority on this individual and distinctive type of architecture, says: * * * It is in a district beginning some 15 miles northwest of lower New York, in Bergen County, New Jersey, and stretching north along the valley of the winding Hackensack River, from the town of Hackensack to the New York State line, that we find the most important groups of Dutch houses remaining. * * *

One must not be surprised to find the owners and builders of many of these old Jersey Dutch houses to be French Huguenots by name, for a considerable number of these emigres settled in the Hackensack valley long ago, intermarried freely with the Dutch, and built some of the finest Jersey Dutch houses in this rather restricted territory where they originated. Their leader, by name David des Marest, "having disposed of his property in Haarlem, bought from the Tappan Indians a large tract of land lying between the Hackensack and Hudson rivers. * * * Later generations of des Marests (now contracted to "Demarest") built the particular house in question at Oradell, N. J. It was a typical Jersey Dutch Colonial, built a section at a time, as almost all of these old houses were. For example, the average Dutch homestead consisted at first of a foursquare red sandstone house rather smallish in size. As the family grew, or outgrew this, a larger addition was made to one end into which the family moved, leaving the original building as the kitchen, commonly known as the "kitchen wing." As the oldest son grew up and married, often a second wing was added to the other side of the now large central part of the house comparable in size to the kitchen wing, into which the young man moved with his new wife. Almost all of these houses, therefore take on the aspect of a large central main dwelling with the wing at each end.

The particular house in question never had this final wing added at the end, although the builders with true Dutch thrift and foresight had left a doorway cut through the stone wall at the east end, as against the time when such an addition should be made. It would merely be necessary to open up this ready prepared door by simply knocking out the stones.

When the old Oradell homestead with farms and lands was sold to an ex-Mayor of New York City for a country estate, the problem of what to do with the old building, which was then untenanted, immediately arose. In the end it was solved by generously giving the house to Mr. John G. Demarest, of the fourth generation that had been born and lived there.

Mr. Demarest's idea was to take the materials from the old house and reconstruct it as closely as possible in exact facsimile. The thing must be done very carefully, or it would certainly be a failure. No ancient edifice brought to America from across the waters received more care in the taking apart and reconstruction than the old Demarest Dutch homestead. Mr. Demarest permitted no one to direct the work except himself, so that although it went ahead very slowly, it was accurate and painstakingly real in every last detail.

The Demolition

First, careful measurements were taken and an actual drawing made of the floor plans and elevations of the house. Every window and door was given a number on the drawing, and this same number attached to it in the house itself. Photographs were then taken from each elevation to assist exact understanding. Then at every corner the beautifully worked blocks of red sandstone were numbered with chalk and photographed. It was found necessary to make the building absolutely the same size as it originally stood, so that each block might fit into its proper place. Then slowly, timber by timber, stone by stone, the old house was taken to pieces, and each bit tagged with its proper notation so that it might find its true destination in the new building which was to rise on another site, a couple of miles away.

Many interesting things were discovered in the demolition about old methods of construction. To begin with, the walls were from twenty inches to two feet thick, solid red sandstone without, laid up in straw and clay in lieu of mortar which was not only expensive but practically unobtainable in those times. It is said, with reservations of doubt by some architects, that the deep overhanging eaves of these old Dutch roofs were to protect this crude mortar from being washed out by the rain. * * *

The Walls

Between the old original building which became the "kitchen wing" of the Oradell house was a solid wall from the ground, two feet thick of heavy stone blocks, reaching right up to the tip of the roof. This was very unusual, for on account of the water washing the mortar out, the red stone walls seldom went up more than half way at the end of the house, all above that point being shingles or clapboards. In passing, it is interesting to observe that at this time there were some 2300 slaves in Bergen County, and the old farmstead had some forty or fifty of them.

The partitions in the old houses were composed of one layer of hand split oak lath plastered heavily with mud on both sides until it was built up into the thickness of a wall. The studs or upright supports were entirely of oak, mortised at top and bottom and pinioned to save nails. This was a most important consideration in the early days of our Colonial builders. With cheap labor, oftentimes slave labor, it was more economical to mortise and tenon everything than to use nails. In the case of the larger beams and rafters, holes were bored through with hand augers, and wooden pegs, some six inches long and one inch thick at the butt, tapering down to a point, took the place of iron or steel spikes. Herein originated the old expression: "You can't fit a square peg in a round hole," for it was really quite a task to whittle down these pegs to a round shape so that they would fit the auger hole and could be driven home. What nails there were, were all hand wrought, either right on the estate or by some nearby blacksmith. It was rather a task to forge these nails, and an expensive process in comparison to wooden pins and pegs. In many cases when new building was under construction, old structures no longer wanted were burned down for the sake of the nails. As soon as the fire was cooled these were picked out for the new building.

A very unusual thing was found in the old house in the form of a huge solid oak beam fully forty-eight feet long, all hand-hewn. It was fourteen inches by eighteen inches thick on one end, that which had originally been the butt of the tree, and twelve inches by sixteen inches on the other end, tapering off just as had the tree itself. All the adze and axe marks were still upon it. This timber Mr. Demarest used running lengthwise through his foundation as the girder of the first floor of the new house, although in the old house it had been a girder of the second floor. It must have "weighed a ton," and these old Dutchmen surely must have sweated many an hour with their slaves skidding this heavy tree trunk up into place on top of the walls at the center of the second floor.

The shingles were wooden and of local cedar. The trees were felled first, dragged out of the swamp by slaves and oxen, and sawed up into billets three feet long. These were split by hand and axe first, and then shaped smooth with a draw knife. Since the butts were about one inch thick, together with the overlapping, the roof at no place was less than three inches thick, a very welcome protection against the heavy snows and rainstorms of those early winters. In fact the roof was still sound and in good shape when the house was taken down in 1913, fully ninety-four years after the main addition was built, an enduring evidence of the permanency and solidarity with which these old Colonial builders built. The beams of the cellar supporting the first floor were all hand-hewn oak. On the second floor, however, sycamore and whitewood were more popular, possibly because of their lightness in weight. Every detail of the framing was certainly made to stay.

The Bricks

Unlike many of these old houses, this was one of the first to boast of a brick front. This was something very stylish at that time among the country squires, for the brick had to be sent up by water all the way from Philadelphia, coming up the Hackensack River by wind jammer as far as River Edge, N. J., and hauled six miles or so to the site with teams of oxen. In the cellar there were bricks laid over the entire cellar floor, which in itself was unusual, since most of the cellars of that day were merely packed and beaten clay. The huge fireplaces were indeed a problem. On each side was a massive stone upright crossed by a red stone lintel at the top. Each one of these weighed almost a ton, and in order not to run the risk of breaking them in the attempt to get them up on the wagon or truck, they were put upon an old-fashioned drag sledge and hauled over to the new building site.

The interior trim of every room was marked, labelled and bundled together, each bundle with its proper notation. Some of this work was perfectly beautiful. At those times every carpenter had a set of molding tools in his own kit, and used to make his own molding right on the job from the raw wood. Often, however, the beautiful mantels were the work of journeymen craftsmen who drifted on from one house to another carving out mantel pieces wherever they stayed. The mantels in this particular house were lovely and the old folks always said that they were carved almost entirely with an ordinary penknife. At the time of taking them down, as well as the trim, the doors and the doorways, there were so many layers of paint on the woodwork that it was impossible to tell what the workmanship was like. Practically a whole winter was consumed by skilled workmen, off and on, in cleaning off the old paint from the trim. The reedings and flutings were so deep and so close together in some places that the only instruments that the workmen could use to get to the bottom in scraping off the caked paint were common nut-picks.

Reconstruction

Mr. Demarest had exercised so much care in taking the old house down and marking every stick and stone that the actual reconstruction was almost simpler than the dissection. At first work was halted because of the difficulty of getting masons who understood how to do this old Dutch stone-work. Four or five different sets of masons were tried, and each time the work they had done had to be torn out because it did not at all catch the spirit of the old construction. At last, after an extensive inquiry, the son of one of the original old-time Dutch stonemasons was discovered, who had learned the trick as a small boy working with his father. He was right at home with the job, and with the aid of the photographs of the original stone work was able to lay up the red stone blocks very much as they had been of old, even to getting the exact color of the whitish mortar joints which the old house possessed.

After that, reconstruction proceeded nicely without interruption. The chief difficulty was the second story. None of these old houses finished off their second stories. Everybody slept downstairs, and the attic under the beautifully sloping roof was reserved for a store-house of great varieties of provisions raised from the farm, shot in the woods or caught in the stream, which had to last the old settlers all winter long. The sloping gambrel roof is therefore very difficult to adapt to a second story with bedrooms, etc., as we know it today.

Having worked out a true Dutch roofline, Mr. Demarest went back to the old Baron von Steuben house built in 1752, which was almost the only house of this type that had used the dormer window successfully. Through the study of this adaptation, a roof was worked out with beautiful dormers which solved the problem of a second story on a Jersey Dutch Colonial house. * * *

So it was that, stick by stone, this old Dutch mansion, part of it probably pre-Revolutionary and the rest Early American, was carefully taken away and transported to a new site to be rebuilt into a charming American country home with all the unusual quaintness of an ancient Colonial country squire's mansion. Had this not been done, the old house would have fallen where it stood, as so many of its companions are piteously rotting and crumbling away today. So, after five generations since the rebuilding in 1819, the direct and immediate descendants of these old early American settlers are still living in the transplanted house which they built so well so many years ago. WILLS OF EARLIEST GENERATIONS

Will of (1) David des Marest and Wife, 1672. Original in French.

In the Name of God. Amen. In the year from the birth of our Lord and Saviour, one thousand, six hundred and seventy second, on the first day of February appeared before me Jan Lamontagne, Secretary of this Town, admitted by the High and Honorable the Mayor's Court; David Desmarest ruling magistrate of the same Town and his lawful wife Maria Sohier (in the presence of the afternamed witnesses) sound in body going or standing—both of them in the full possession of their five senses of their memory and judgment, as it externally appeared and was manifest, reflecting upon the frailty of human life, that there is nothing more certain than death, and that nothing is more uncertain than the hour of the same, and on that account desirous of disposing of the temporal property which the Almighty has vouchsafed to lend them in this world, uncontrolled and unbiassed, the one by the other, or by any one else in any wise, (as they both have declared.) have made and concluded, and by these presents they do make, ordain and conclude this their Testament and their last Will in the following form and manner hereafter written, revoking, cancelling and destroying by these presents all preceding Testaments, codicils, gifts, bequests, by them and each of them made in any manner before the date of these presents made, acknowledged and executed, willing and desiring that this their Testament and Last Will shall be understood and take effect if in the form of Testament, Codicil, gifts or bequests in the view of death or otherwise any one's testament and last will is as far as practicable according to the spiritual and civil law, notwithstanding all and every of the points and technicalities of the laws required here, may not have been observed and maintained and notwithstanding contrary to the statutes of the City, Cities or the laws of the land all which laws and the effects of the same as far as they are contrary to this Testament, they the testators have derogated and by these presents do expressly derogate.

In the first place they the Testators commit their souls as soon as they shall leave their bodies to Almighty God, and their bodies to the Earth in Christian burial, at such place as the longest liver shall choose coming now to the disposition of all and every of their temporal properties which the Almighty God has vouchsafed them in this world. They the Testators give leave and make, each of them the sum of Twenty five guilders to the poor of New Haerlem as a remembrance—As furthermore with respect to all and every their other or remaining properties, personal and real, debts, claims, and ready moneys, credits whatsoever they may be, wherever, where, and at what place the same may be situate, or may be found without any exception, over and above all lawful debts and legacies to be paid, these all, they the Testators give bequeath and make to each other until re-marriage, without that their lawful children shall be grieved concerning their legatary portions even though the laws of the land provide that the one child shall inherit more than the other, On that account

WILL OF (5) SAMUEL DES MAREST, 1695/6. ORIGINAL IN DUTCH.

Praise God above all. the 28th of January, Anno 1695/6.

I undersigned Samuel De Marest aknowledge and declare herewith as my last will and testament to be executed after my death in behalf of my wife and children in order as follows:

Considering in the first place the great wickedness of this world and the many iniquities of mankind and especially the disobedience of children too frequently committed against their natural parents I have deemed it necessary to make good provisions for my wife in order my children should not neglect nor oppress their mother, but should learn to obey, to serve and to honor her.—In the first place, my wife shall have for life the full possession of my land on which I have lived and whereon I have planted my orchard, to live, to sow and to mow thereupon and to enjoy the fruits thereof and to dispose according to her own free will. And when Marey Druwien, my wife shall die, the said lot of land shall go into the perpetual and hereditary possession of my children so that each child shall have an equal share.—Futher shall my wife remain possessor of all movables, as negroes and negresses, horses and cows, sheep and pigs and all other personal estate untill her remarriage; the aforesaid personal estate shall then be brought together and appraised by 4 or 5 men; and one half of said goods shall go into the possession of my present wife, Maria Druwienne and the other half shall go in equal shares to my children as soon as they shall have become of age; my oldest son however shall have in advance five pounds, 40 guilders in the pound.—Further shall my present wife Marie Druwien retain for life the full possession of the mills with all their profits and in return of these she shall be obliged to bring my children up as good citizens and lead each of them up to a good trade by means of which they may earn an honest living and to have them taught reading and writing according to the need of their respective trades—All my debts moreover shall be paid out of the estate and the heirs shall be allowed to sell as many of the goods, as the payment of these debts requires.—Further shall each child receive an equal share of the woodlands in full perpetual and hereditary possession.—Further shall the owner of the sawmill not be permitted to fetch neither white nor dark oak nor chestnut from my part of the two thousand "scherf" of woodland, but any other kind of wood, scrubs and trees growing there.—Further shall the children having become of age, be at liberty to grind and to saw at the mills for the use of their households, and of their houses and barns.—The lot near the mills shall remain to belong to the mills for their own use.

CONEWAGO, KENTUCKY AND BEYOND

MIGRATION OF DEMARESTS FROM NEW JERSEY

Certain families of the Demarest name went from Bergen County, New Jersey, just before the Revolutionary War to settle in Pennsylvania on the then furthest border line of farming settlements. There were many other families in this particular westward movement.

"On hearing their names it will be inferred at once that they did not emigrate from the same portion of New Jersey, possibly some may have come from New York or from Long Island. It is impossible to distribute them accurately but doubtless the greatest part were from northern and middle New Jersey. Lott is a Long Island name; Brokaw, New York. The Montforts and Cassatts (Cossarts) who were among the earliest settlers were from Millstone (N. J.). The Van Dykes and Van Arsdales from Essex County near Paterson, now Passaic County. The Houghtalings and Cosines from Rockland County, New York. The Benners from Berks County, Pennsylvania. The Amermans, Boices, Neviuses, Smocks, Van Nuis, Vanderveer and many others came from Somerset, Middlesex and perhaps Monmouth counties (N. J.). The Ackermans, Bantas, Bogarts, Brinkerhoffs, Browers, De Bauns, Demarees, De Motts, Voorhees (?) from Bergen County beyond a doubt. In regard to the Bantas, Brinckerhoffs, Demarees, I have found the same names in the baptismal records of Hackensack or Schraalenburgh, then in Conewago records, and account of them in Kentucky books." (David D. Demarest.)

The Demarest family, leaving their New Jersey homes for the new colony, always in their new residence spelled their name Demaree, expressing the original French pronunciation of the name. This spelling, this pronunciation, continues to this day among the descendants of the Conewago settlers, descendants found especially in Kentucky and Indiana and other parts of the Middle West.

Such westward movement had more than one motive behind it no doubt. There was the old-time pioneer spirit, the spirit of adventure, of exploration, of new acquisition; there was the lure of the wide-spreading land and its fertility. Probably a major motive was the ability to secure generous land at very small cost; the selling price of a farm in New Jersey would buy enough land for distribution among the numerous children in the usual family. It has been suggested that a disturbed colonial condition on the seaboard, the murmurings of a war that was to come, had weight in the matter; but there it little to support such conjecture. There may have been some proposing or urging by authorities or companies interested in the development of the further country. There was, it appears, some such action as early as 1730, an effort to get German and Dutch people from nearer the seaboard to occupy the Shenandoah Valley.

The colonists did not all go in one group; a large group went first; others followed within a very few years. The period of migration was about ten years, 1764 to 1774. The first recorded land deed known is of 1768, but it refers to lands owned adjoining and to debts of 1765. The Demarests, or the first of them, made their journey apparently in 1771. The settlement is described usually as "in Adams County," Pennsylvania, and the more local name identifying it was Conewago. It was near the border of York County; in fact the land occupied was originally in York County. It was all widely known as the Shenandoah

Country. The name Conewago has now disappeared, save as attaching to a small stream. The place is identified by the church which the colonists built. It was one mile east of the present Hunterstown on York Pike, near present Dutton railroad station; later, a new building was built on a new site, one mile south of the present Hunterstown, a site now identified by the so-called Black's Grave Yard. The new home of these New Jersey families was only a few miles, therefore, from the present town of Gettysburg. A Demarest home was about where, nearly one hundred years later, the battle of Gettysburg was fought; the battle, it is said, was in considerable part on land owned in the early time by David Demaree.

Walter L. Jones, Canton, Ohio, writes Dec. 17, 1929: Elizabeth Demaree, (mar. Jacob Essick) was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania in a house which afterwards overlooked the battlefield of Gettysburg; and I am informed by Mr. John Essick, now about eighty years of age and the last of that family, that he as a young man was on this land on many occasions, and that all or a greater part of the land occupied by the Gettysburg battlefield belonged to David Demaree and Adam Essick(father of our Jacob).

A road, now identified as from Hunterstown to Two Taverns, joining the Baltimore Pike, was known as the Low Dutch Road, the term Low Dutch being used in common speech in distinction from the High Dutch, or German, and under this term the French Huguenots, who had lived with the Dutch, intermarried with them, and were now making new colonies with them, were readily included. The Low Dutch Road is thus named in the Comte de Paris' History of the Civil War, in its map and in its narrative. Along this road the Confederate Cavalry under Stewart were moving when met by the Union Cavalry under Kilpatrick and Gregg, July 3, 1863.

This large colony of, it is said, one hundred and fifty families, all from congregations of the Reformed Dutch Church, naturally built a church building and organized a church congregation as soon as possible. The plan of the building, surprising to relate, is extant. It gives the pews with the name of the family occupying each. There is a broad middle aisle; half-way up on the right are the Demarees. There are two narrow aisles at the side-walls and a continuous bench encircles the room. Place for the elders and the deacons is on either side of the pulpit. A stove is at either side of the main entrance. The pulpit is of the fine old type, high, wine-glass in shape, opposite the door. The building no longer stands. Near where it stood is a graveyard dating from the early days; and two other graveyards of like early origin are within the area of the settlement.

The church was organized in 1769 as the Low Dutch Church of Conewago. It was under the auspices of the Classis of New Brunswick, and the presiding minister was the Rev. John M. VanHarlingen of Hillsborough (now Millstone), New Jersey. The Millstone from which came some of the colonists, the Montforts and the Cassatts or Cossarts, was the present Harlingen. From the same classis on after occasions came Rev. Jacob R. Hardenbergh, minister of the Church of Raritan, and Rev. John Leydt, minister of the church at New Brunswick. These three were all ministers of distinction, leaders of the Reformed Dutch Church of that time, and all intimately related to the founding and early life of Queen's College, now Rutgers University. The first settled minister was Rev. Cornelius Cosyne (Cozine), no doubt of the migration family of that name. He was pastor apparently from 1772 until his death in 1788. Rev. George Brinkerhoff, again a migration family name, was then pastor from 1789, the time of his ordination, until 1793; he then accepted a call to New Jersey. The service of the church from that time was difficult and irregular. It was far from the other churches of the denomination, far from its source of ministerial supply; the denomination had not ministers enough even for its New York and New Jersey group of churches. Moreover, just at this time, 1793, there was a large migration again, now from Conewago to country both south and north. Repeated appeals were made to the General Synod of the Reformed Dutch Church; as delegate in the synod of 1794 Nicholas Gardiner, elder of this church, was present; and a missionary, Rev. Andrew Gray, and then another missionary, Rev. John Cornelison, sent by the synod, served them for a short time. Then Rev. John Black, a Presbyterian minister, a Scotchman, gave the church occasional service for several years, 1794 to 1801. Then Rev. Alexander Dobbin, a Scotchman again, often preached for them. He was pastor of the Associate Reformed Church near Gettysburg, so-called Covenanter church. The families of the Dutch migration were now, however, very few; and with but infrequent service they began to connect themselves with other churches, some to one, some to another, most of them uniting with Mr. Dobbin's church, now the United Presbyterian. The minutes of the General Synod of the Reformed Dutch Church list the church of Conewago from 1771 to 1811; and they seem to recognize a second church, of Hanover, though this may be the same church. Possibly Conewago and Hanover were different places and churches; in October, 1793, Mr. Gray reported that he had "resuscitated the congregation of Hanover and organized a new congregation on the Susquehanna, having received 45 members and administered Holy Baptism and the Lord's Supper, and frequently preached the gospel to said congregation and in adjoining neighborhoods." Though the membership had merged elsewhere, and the building became disused. the church was still existent in a preserved board of trustees. And in 1817 a petition was presented to the legislature of Pennsylvania, asking that the privilege of selling the property be given to certain men functioning as successors to Francis Cossart and David VanDine and David Demaree to whom conveyance of the land had been made by Cornelius Cosine for the church erection. The petition was granted, the property was sold for less than $300 and this amount was applied to the building of a stone wall around the graveyard adjoining. It is said that only five Dutch families remained at that time in the vicinity. The trustees as an official board continued until 1820. In the passing years from 1764, among the families at Conewago, there were, of course, a considerable number of deaths. Few stones or legible inscriptions have endured to recent time—only three recording the Demaree name. One inscription reads:

In Memory of
David Demaree
Born in the east of New Jersey in Bergen Co.
November 1731
and departed this life
November 1808
aged 77

The other two are of Isaac Demaree and Jane, wife of Garret Demaree.

By fortunate circumstance the earliest baptismal records of the Conewago Church were preserved and have been copied. When the church had become inactive a member of it, and officer no doubt, Peter Monfort, removed further westward, carried the book with him. It passed down in his family to Rev. J. G. Monfort, Editor of the Christian Herald at Cincinnati His grandfather had come from Millstone to Pennsylvania and on to Ohio with the record after the church disbanded in 1800. When historical inquiry arose concerning the church about 1880 it reached him and discovered the record. He very generously gave it to the Rev. John K. Demarest, minister of the Presbyterian Church of Gettysburg, who placed it with the State Historical Society at Philadelphia. The record begins October 23, 1769. On that day thirteen children were baptized, by Domine VanHarlingen no doubt. On May 27, 1770, thirteen children; and on June 3, a week later, two children were baptized by Domine Hardenbergh. On September 8, 1771, eight children were baptized by Domine Leydt. On May 31, 1771, twenty-seven children were baptized by Domine VanHarlingen. Then, beginning October 11, 1771, baptisms were administered by the settled pastor, Rev. Cornelius Cosine. The first baptism of a Demaree child is in 1771—or May 31, 1772, perhaps that of Anatie, daughter of David Demaree and Lena Voorhees, May 31, 1772; but the name of mothers, Demaree, occurs earlier. The Demarees of the record are, some of them, found in earlier records of the churches of Hackensack and Schraalenburgh, N. J. Records of transactions of the church deacons of no little interest were also in the Monfort family keeping; they are at first in Dutch; the last in that language, December 2, 1791; the first in the English language April 16, 1790. Beside these church records the county civil records at York present items of interest in the story of the Conewago life.

Not many descendants of the Dutch pioneer families remain there. Their influence, however, was and is noteworthy, and the Demarees appear to have been of the best. They were a sturdy people in character and community life, well-to-do, honored, and influential. They were farmers, of course, but also, it is said, carpenters and painters.

The Conewago settlement, as said, lost largely its distinctive Dutch predominance in a surprisingly short time. The same spirit of pioneering, the same lure of new, spacious, fertile and cheap land drew them on. A colony of nine families in 1793 began the migration to the now-called Finger Lake country of New York State. Decisive victories there over the Indians, driving them westward, never after to be an annoyance, opened the way to what seemed attractive lands, then called the Genesee country. These families went in the manner of the pioneers, a covered wagon party making the journey of many days to the shore of Cayuga Lake. Other families followed to the same or nearby destinations. The Demarests of this migration were Luke Demaree and Albert Demaree. Luke Demaree enlisted in the War of 1812 and was killed in battle at Detroit.

So numerous were the Dutch families devoted to the Reformed Dutch Church, coming from Pennsylvania and as well direct from eastern New York and from New Jersey, that the land of their occupation was called the Holland Purchase, and a considerable number of churches were quickly established—the churches of Owasco, Owasco Outlet, Ovid, Farmer, Sempronius, Geneva. Some of these yet survive, of small membership but of fine tradition and influence. The coming in of people of other church connection in larger number, and the passing on of one family and another of the Dutch to Canada and elsewhere, led to a general weakening of the Reformed Dutch churches and the strengthening of other churches in the neighborhood. There are still existing, however, such churches as Interlaken (Farmer Village), Owasco, Owasco Outlet (Sound Beach), Sodus. The ideals and life quality of these people still characterize the communities of that lake country far beyond the bounds of present church membership or present Dutch family names.

The migration from Conewago of greatest proportion and most enduring family residence and influence, however, was that to Kentucky. The present state of that name knew virtually no fixed settlement in 1774. The land still fell in the area of Virginia. In that year James Harrod and his party, having traversed the wilderness to the present Harrodsburg and established there a fort for their protection from the Indians and that of any settlers who might follow in their train, founded the first Kentucky settlement. In 1779-80 the first company of the Dutch, a large one, made their journey from Conewago to Kentucky, to new farms and homes, 900 miles through the wilderness, a journey of much difficulty and distress, of much peril from the Indians and from wild animals, over rivers and mountains and through thick forests. Theodore Roosevelt, in his "Winning of the West" says: "Thus this spring (1780) a congregation of the Low Dutch Reformed Church came to Kentucky bodily to the number of 150 (?) heads of families with their wives and children, their beasts of burden and pasture, and their household goods; like most bands of new immigrants they suffered greatly from the Indians." (See also Collins' History.)

Banta, in his monumental work on the Banta family says: "At that period Conewago was almost at the western limit of settlement, and between it and Kentucky was an unbroken wilderness of over six hundred miles. The road by which these pioneers travelled was doubtless that known as "The Wilderness Road," which passed through the valley of Virginia between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghanies and across the mountain by Cumberland Gap to Fort Harrod. The road was really only a "trace." No wagon passed over it until at least fifteen years later, and these colonists were compelled to journey on foot and with pack horses. The pack-saddle was a forked branch of a tree fastened on the horse upon which were hung all the household goods and provisions. One of the early accounts of such a journey in 1799 describes the "men on foot with their trusty rifles on their shoulders, driving stock and leading packhorses, and the women, some walking with pails on their heads, others riding with children in their laps, and other children sitting in baskets on horses, encamping at night, expecting to be massacred by Indians, subsisting on stinted allowances of stale bread and meat, encountering bears, wolves and wildcats in the narrow bridle path overgrown with brush and underwood."

The families migrating from Conewago left their minister, Rev. George Brinkerhoff, behind with those who stayed there. Descendants of his still live in that vicinity near Gettysburg.

In this company were nearly 50 heads of families and with them were enrolled about 100 more heads of families intending to be part of their colony. Groups did follow from time to time. Some kindred families of the Dutch came also direct from New York vicinity, from Bergen County, New Jersey. A large body came in 1793. Definite information as to names and dates appears in a notable document of quite surely 1783, "To the Honorable President and Delegates of the Free United States of America in Congress assembled: The Memorial and Petition of a number of Inhabitants of Kentucky Settlement of the Low Dutch Reformed Church persuasion in behalf of themselves and intended settlers, Humbly Sheweth, That in the Spring of the Year 1780 they moved to Kentucky, with their families," etc. The names of "Inhabitens" follow: then the names of "Intend Friends."

In the list of Inhabitens, then, appear the names of Peter Demaree, John Demaree, Samuel Demaree, Peter Demaree, Jr. and Samuel Demaree, Jr.

In the list of Intend appear the names of Samuel Demarest and Cornelius Demaree.

In the spring of 1780, then, was the great initial migration, a migration entirely forgotten a century later at Conewago until historical inquiry rediscovered it for any kindred people still dwelling there. The first stop was at White Oak Station, one mile from Boonesboro, "John of Boonesborough," eighteen miles southeast of the present Lexington. The first settled home was in Lincoln County, land after 1785 in Mercer County and since 1842 in Boyle County, at Harrod's Station, six miles from Harrodsburg, then at Harrodsburg itself. Many families remained there permanently. Many families, however, soon went on into Shelby County and Henry County, perhaps fifty miles beyond. Some of the land was bought from Squire Boone, Jr., brother of Daniel Boone. Rachel Demaree married (2) John Van Cleave whose sister Jane married Squire Boone, Jr. In 1784, just after the memorial to the President and Congress, the purchase of 12,000 (?) acres of land was effected by the colonists, known as the Dutch Company, and this vast holding was called the Low Dutch Tract. The Centennial of its acquisition was celebrated in 1884.

This tract was divided into thirty-four sections, purchased by about thirty proprietors, a few taking more than one section each, among them Samuel Demaree.

The families remaining in the then Mercer County were immediate in the erecting of a church. It was built at Harrod's Station, or Cane Run, six miles south of Harrodsburg, three miles north of the present Danville, not later than 1783. "In that year," says Theodore Roosevelt in his "Winning of the West," "the first court sat at Harrodsburg but as there was no building where it could properly be held, it adjourned to the Dutch Reformed Meeting House six miles off." Humphrey Marshall, early Kentucky historian, mentions this in History, 1824. Filson's map, 1782, the first map of Kentucky, shows the Dutch settlement just there, just south of Harrod's Station.

Mayor W. O. McIntyre of Danville writes, May 4, 1929: "We believe that the Dutch Church near Danville was the first Church building of any kind erected in the United States west of the Alleghanies. * * * James Harrod, for whom Harrodsburg was named, lived at Boiling Spring near the Dutch Church and was doubtless a member of that congregation. * * * The old Dutch Church erected prior to 1783 no longer exists, but the old log cabin used as the home of the pastor still stands. The Courier Journal recently printed that picture." He adds: "Kentucky was originally Fincastle County, Virginia; after that, Kentucky County, Virginia. In 1780 Kentucky was divided into three counties, Lincoln, Jefferson, and Lafayette. All this entire section—a third of the state—was Lincoln County. Stanford was the county seat from 1780 to 1785 when Mercer County was created with Harrodsburg as the county seat. Boyle County, of which Danville is the county seat, was created out of Mercer and Lincoln in 1842."

No church was organized at once; measures for this were impossible in that far wilderness. Occasional services in charge of a minister who might reach the people were held no doubt, at first apparently by Rev. David Rice, and services perhaps quite regular in charge of some layman, an elder perhaps in the church of earlier home from which he came. Appeals to the General Synod were made from time to time; and finally, in 1796, a missionary was sent, Rev. Peter Labagh, who remained with them for three months, organizing a Reformed Dutch Church of about 100 families, and administering the sacraments, baptizing, no doubt, a goodly number of children, many quite beyond infancy.

In the Proceedings of the Synod of 1800, convened at Albany, New York, is the following minute: "The attention of this Body is also called to our forlorn churches in Kentucky. A letter dated Mercer Co., June 17th, 1797, from the Consistory of the Reformed Dutch in that place and two other letters from the same Consistory dated August 7th, 1799, addressed respectively to the Rev. Dr. Livingston, to candidates in the vicinity, and to this Rev. Body are now in the possession of your committee. These letters are full of mourning on account of the destitute situation of our churches in that country, and convey most earnest wishes that Synod would use every means to supply their wants. The people invite a minister to come and preach among them, whom they promise to call if he and they should be mutually acceptable to each other; and whom they would pay well for his trouble if it were found necessary that he should return. A great harvest is probably springing up in that growing country and your committee would be happy if your Rev. Body could send forth laborers into it." A committee was appointed to seek for a man for this field and given full power to carry out any arrangements; their attention ended there. But just then, in 1800, a Saturday Evening Prayer Meeting was organized which had a remarkable record for religious power and community influence and long continuance. It was held at three o'clock Saturday afternoon twice a month, before the second and fourth Sundays, from house to house. In 1900 the centennial of its founding was celebrated with special ceremonies. The last meeting was held in 1911.

In 1800 also a new church building was in mind, and a new location was decided upon, two miles from Harrodsburg, on Salt River, by which name the church was thereafter known. "Henry Commingore went to New Jersey and solicited funds; he made the trip on horseback, six weeks either way. A deed, December 22, 1800, conveys three acres of land for four pounds, ten shillings from David Adams and wife to John Verbrycke, Isaac Vanice (Van Nuis) and Peter Carmine (?) as trustees, agents and overseers of the Reformed Church "for the sole benefit and use of the said Reformed Church as a place for divine worship." The church then erected still stands, The Old Mud Meeting House. In the absence of any minister of their own order, the synod failing to provide one, they secured in 1802 the Rev. Thomas Kyle to serve them. He was their minister for fourteen years, until 1816 when he became a Methodist. Thereupon the Classis of New Brunswick advised the church to make connection with the Presbyterian body, a growing group of churches in that section. This as a church they never did, but for a further time they were served by the pastor of a nearby Presbyterian Church—Rev. Thomas Cleland. He writes of his work in 1816: "The fourth Sabbath in each month was engaged by a small church of the Dutch Reformed, four (?) miles south of Harrodsburg. For my services they paid me promptly $50 in semi-annual installments. This church after a while became extinct as a separate organization and was amalgamated with others, principally with the Presbyterians of their vicinity. The young people tended toward Harrodsburg." (Possibly as a Reformed Dutch Church it was served by Mr. Cleland until as late as 1825.)

The building, however, had continued use thereafter. The Cumberland Presbyterians had become an organization and they occupied it from 1826. "This society located at the Mud Meeting House is the oldest in the Kentucky Presbytery," says a writer of the time. For twenty years they worshipped in it until, in 1847, they built a new church building a few miles off at Bethell. Occasional services were thereafter held in the old church, a particular period of monthly visits by Rev. John Montgomery being of especially fruitful results. No doubt the Saturday Evening Prayer Meeting greatly contributed—and a Sunday School was continuously active. The building was, for a time, used for a week-day school. In 1850 and again in 1900 the building was largely renovated. The title has never passed from the original body, the trustees of the Dutch Reformed Church. The old Mud Meeting House was so called because of its construction. Collins, in his History of Kentucky, describes it: "First apparently a foundation of boulders was laid and over that a layer of logs from which the walls took their rise. Upright logs were placed at intervals and to these were fastened planks to form the inside walls. Planks also were nailed to the outside to form the exterior wall, while in between mud was thrown and packed down as hard as circumstances would permit, so that really the walls are of mud with an outer and inner wooden lining. In the case of the latter, lath was then added and plaster on the top of that. The great double doors on the south side with the narrow porch in front and the lofty wine-cup pulpit with its spiral stairway on the north were all surmounted by the old Dutch roof with the gables toward the rising and setting sun."

Among the Dutch families that went to Shelby County and Henry County there was, so far as known, only one Dutch Reformed church. It was built at what was then called Six Mile, now Pleasureville, in Henry County. A minister of the denomination could not be secured. They were served for several years by Rev. Archibald Cameron. Here, as at Conewago, and at Harrod's, the Dutch language was being displaced by the English language, and coherence through the old blood and speech was waning, and church life was dependent on nearby society of churches. So, soon there came about a change into the Presbyterian connection; and the Presbyterian church in Pleasureville today is in effect the continuance of the original Reformed Dutch church. Historical Discourse: The Old Mud Meeting House, Dr. and Prof. H. A. Scomp, 1900.

The Demaree family in this Kentucky settlement was of substance and importance. Samuel Demaree of its earliest period was perhaps the most well-to-do. The several families of the name have passed the name down through the generations to the present day. In Mercer, Henry and Shelby Counties it is in wide occurrence. They have been people of property, community importance, enduring moral and religious quality. Many families of the name have become Methodists. From these families there are several men in the Christian ministry and in the work of foreign missions.

Of one in the Kentucky record it is said: "David Demaree of Henry County was a farmer and house joiner, but was so much esteemed for his integrity, judgment and general good common sense, that his neighbors elected him to the office of Circuit Judge, an office which he filled with great credit to himself and advantage to his constituents; and when he died, which he did in the harness, his funeral was the largest that had ever been up to that time in central Kentucky. The lawyers from Frankfort, Shelbyville and New Castle, attended in a body."

"Two sons and two grandsons of Judge Demaree became Elders" in the Presbyterian Church.

From these Kentucky settlements and congregations migrations soon went northward and further westward to low-cost government land north of the Ohio, into the Miami country, into the present states of Indiana and Illinois—and still westward into Iowa. Some went to Switzerland County, Indiana, 1820, settling twelve miles west of Vevey, and organized a church there, now the First Church of Franklin. A little later some went to Johnson County, Indiana, 1822, and there organized three churches, Hopewell, Shiloh and Greenwood, and at Shiloh a parochial school; also a church at Georgetown. A third party settled on the line between Park and Montgomery Counties, Indiana, and established a church at Waveland, and an institution of learning. About 1852 families went from Johnson County to Linn County, Iowa, organizing a church at Vinton, the county seat, and at Hopewell, named for the Indiana Hopewell. Other part of the migration went to Kansas where they organized a church at or near Carlisle. That is, in all, at least twelve churches in a short period of time after first departure from Kentucky. They were or became of Presbyterian connection although the people were quite exclusively of Dutch and Huguenot descent and of original Dutch Reformed church connection in Kentucky and New Jersey. It had proved impossible to secure ministers of that original connection or to retain that identity at such great distance from the body of such churches in New York and New Jersey. Eleven of the churches were (1868) in connection with the Old School and one, that of Greenwood, Indiana, with the New School.

MEMORANDUM. O. W. DEMAREE. INDIANA.

Several members of the Demaree family had arrived in Kentucky within eight or ten years after the first permanent settlement was established and began filing land entries in what are now Mercer, Shelby and Jefferson Counties, as early as 1782, 1783 and 1785. Samuel and Peter (presumably brothers) were given grants to adjoining tracts near Harrodsburg in Mercer County while all of the state was still a Virginia county. Peter's wife was Mary Johnson (?). Samuel was married at Harrodsburg, Jan. 15, 1788, to Mary Cozine by the Rev. David Rice, a pioneer Presbyterian minister. Another Samuel, who had married Susannah Brewer, settled in the Low Dutch Tract of Henry County; did not acquire title to land but was a holding member in the Low Dutch Tract Land Company; John O., a descendant, still lives at Defoe. John Demaree (relationship unknown) entered a large tract on Floyd's Fork in Jefferson County about twenty miles east of Louisville; descendants living in that vicinity about 20 years ago.

The Brewer and Cozine families came to Kentucky about the same time. The will of Cornelius Cozine, dated Feb. 9, 1787, and filed for probate at Harrodsburg, May 23, 1787, left his estate to his wife Mary and four children—Daniel, Cornelius, Anna and Sarah. Daniel Brewer's will is a rather interesting document. It was dated Jan. 15, 1791; witnessed by Peter Demaree, Francis Montfort and John Demaree; filed at Harrodsburg, Feb. 22, 1791; contained the following more important bequests:

To son Abraham—Bible and cow.

To son Daniel—my long gun.

Remainder of estate, real and personal, and lands in Penna. to be sold to highest bidder and money divided—⅛ to daughter Leah Stagg, wife of James Stagg.

⅛ to daughter Susannah, wife of Samuel Demaree.

⅛ to son Abraham.

⅛ to daughter Rachel, wife of Henry Comingore.

⅛ to daughter Mary, wife of Samuel Demaree, Junior.

⅛ to son John.

⅛ to daughter Phebe, wife of Cornelius Demaree.

⅛ to son Daniel.

Executors: Two sons Abraham and John, and Samuel Demaree, Senior.

Daniel Brewer was appointed by the Court as first guardian of the Cozine children; after his death, Samuel Demaree, Sr., and Samuel, Jr. They made annual reports to the Court showing what improvements were made on the land and how the income was being expended. When Sarah Cozine was 15 (1791), she and one of her brothers were kidnapped by the Indians. The boy was killed and Sarah held five years when she escaped (1796) and found the way back to her mother's family; followed them in their later migrations to Shelby County, Ky., and Jefferson County, Ind. There is no further mention of the other two Cozine children after the guardianship ended.

The frequent references in Court documents to Samuel, Sr., and Samuel, Jr., are puzzling. Date of the Cozine will, date of Samuel's marirage to Mary Cozine, date of Daniel Brewer's will, a written record handed down stating that "Samuel Demaree was married at Harrodsburg, Ky., to the Widow Cozine whose maden name was Mary Brewer," and the fact that Sarah Cozine remained with the Samuel Demaree family 60 or 65 years seem to be conclusive proof that Mary Brewer, Mary Cozine, the "Widow Cozine" and Samuel, Jr.'s wife was one and the same person.

After living in Mercer County a few years, Samuel and Peter entered adjoining tracts on Lintches Spring Waters of Clear Creek in Shelby County, Ky., three miles southwest of Squire Boone's Station (Fort). Samuel's son, Daniel, was born Nov. 19, 1792; married Polly Underwood at Shelbyville, Ky., Oct. 31, 1811. Daniel died Mch. 26, 1845. Samuel's daughters were married at Shelbyville; also Sarah Cozine to Jesse Blanton, Oct. 28, 1800.

In 1812, Samuel, Mary, Daniel and Polly (probably the married daughters of Samuel and Mary and Sarah Cozine Blanton) migrated to Jefferson County, Ind., and settled on Indian Kentuck Creek about six miles northeast of Madison. Learning of Pigeon Roost Massacre by the Indians near Henryville, Ind., Sep. 3, 1812, the families hastened back to Kentucky. There Daniel's son, William Underwood, was born on Dec. 30, 1812. After the Indian troubles subsided, they returned to the Indiana settlement and remained there. Daniel's second son, Samuel Brewer, was born in Indiana Nov. 14, 1814; a daughter Nancy Ann on Nov. 1, 1816. Polly died two weeks later—Nov. 13, 1816. Wm. U. died Nov. 9, 1880; Sam'l B., May 27, 1891.

Within a few years after establishing homes on Indian Kentuck Creek, Samuel had acquired most of the land on both sides of the stream for a distance of eight or ten miles and built waterpower saw, grist and paper mills. He made several trips to Kentucky to dispose of his holdings in that state. About 1823 he began deeding his land in quarter section tracts to his several grandchildren. His will was dated June 1, 1826, and probated at Madison, Oct. 6, 1826. The court record states he died about fifteen days previous to the latter date. We have no record showing date or place of birth; also no record of Mary's birth and death. Samuel's will bequeathed the remaining 320 acres of the estate to Mary and Daniel; also the mills.

As mentioned before, Sarah Cozine Blanton followed the Demaree family to Indiana. She was probably a widow at that time, as a home was built for her near Wm. U's place where she lived alone. She was then known as "Aunt Sally" and people regarded her as an eccentric character because she always followed certain habits and customs acquired during the Indian captivity. For instance, she would kindle a fire as the Indians did and during the summer months lived outside in a tent or wigwam. She was still living as late as 1855.

There is no doubt that Samuel and Peter were brothers, the latter being "Petrus", son of Samuel and Lea. He remained in Kentucky and died about 1818. Samuel made a trip to Kentucky at that time to help settle his estate which went to his wife Mary and son John.

MEMORANDUM. MRS. J. T. CUNNINGHAM.

One morning in April, 1918, we started driving from Harrodsburg East over the pike leading to Burgin, when, reaching the first cut in the pike, turn to the right up the hill following the dirt ridge road on south about three-fourths of a mile through farms to the residence of Mr. Cowin, passing to the left of this house on up the gradual incline southwest to the top of a high wonderful round hill there came to us a grand view of the surrounding landscape and a feeling of satisfaction to know that this was the true location of the first erected meeting-house in Mercer County, then surely the first in the State of Kentucky. At this place we drop into day-dreaming as we look east, west, north and south, down the gradual incline of this treeless wonderful hill; a feeling of awe comes over us as if we were almost standing on holy ground and the question comes to the mind, Why was this location selected for this first church.

It is well to look back in history to the years 1782 or 1783. At that date we find a circle of settlements or forts at varied distances from this hill: northeast is Dicks River Fort, southeast and south St. Alphs Cove or Boiling Springs, Danville—Crows Station, Logan, Dutch, Wilson, Worthington, Salt River; west is Harrods and north McAfee. Surely from God came the wonderful heart-life and they said among themselves, We will build a house for public worship at this beautiful central location. Think of the great cane-breaks which must have been in sight in the olden time. These were evidently the reason for the name of this first wilderness meeting-house, also near is Hights great spring. At this time, 1918, there is evidence of a large burial ground, and the place seems to have been used as a great pasture. The stock have levelled many of the weather worn rock markers, though a few show some carving. At the early time which Cane Run was built and a few years after it was necessary for the male members of the congregation to carry their rifles with them to all the services, and one of their number always remained outside of the church to give the alarm should Indians appear. As a friend remarked (1918), that she was old enough to remember listening to old people tell how our ancestors took turns standing sentinel at this old Cane Run Meeting House. Members of Cane Run before 1813 Cornelius Demaree Sr. and Polly Demaree (second wife), also Brewers, Comingoes, Covarts, and other Demarees.

This Cane Run is the mother church of Harrodsburg's united Presbyterian Church and the congregation came into Harrodsburg 1816.

Samuel Demaree elected ruling elder 1798.
Daniel A. Brewer elected ruling elder 1801.
Cornelius Demaree Sr. elected ruling elder 1801.
Cornelius Demaree Jr. elected ruling elder May 10, 1823.
Cornelius Covert elected Deacon 1826.

I want to tell you about the name Mud Meeting House. You see when that church was erected in June, 1800, these hard working pioneers were very glad to have that loved church well roofed and finished even if they must leave the mud and sticks showing on the outside. I suspect then many homes were in the same condition. Therefore they left mud and sticks showing on the outside until another generation—date 1849. At this time, my uncle, Cornelius Scomp, then a young carpenter, was chosen as the architect to remodel the Mud House. Then for the first time it was weather boarded, painted white, with green shutters, front doors put in the east end and all of the interior re-arranged as it was until about 1920, when about all of the neighborhood had changed owners. Then weather, Gipsies, neighbors and school children did the work. Several years ago the Historical Society used about $60 in having that burial place put in better order and we have a small amount of money from friends but not much interest from that. There are not many grave markers as the first ones were all native rock and closely filled in. My father was trustee and I have the old survey of half acre added to the west end of graveyard in 1857. Only a few of the ones who love that old place have been buried there since 1900.

The Low Dutch tract lay in Henry County on Six Mile Creek about the modern R. R. Station, Pleasureville. It consisted of between 6000 and 7000 acres. About 1827, the Dutch Tract hive began to swarm. A colony settled in Johnson County, Indiana, and built the first Presbyterian Church in Franklin, Indiana.

NARRATIVE OF THE EXHUMATION OF THE REMAINS OF MAJOR ANDRE.

[Concerning Rev. John Demarest]

By, J. Buchanan, Esq., H. M. Consul, New York.

British Consulate, New York, August 1833.

Mr. Editor,—In compliance with the urgent suggestion of several officers of high rank in the army, I send you a brief narrative of the facts connected with the removal of the remains of the unfortunate Major André, from the place of his suffering at Tappan, in this State, to the Abbey,—there to rest, surrounded by the ashes of the illustrious men who died in the performance of duty in the service of their country. * * * The grave of Major Andre was at the place of his execution, in an open field, with only a heap of stones to mark the spot, as the trees alone would not have pointed it out; and it was an additional reproach that his body had not been even removed to the neighbouring burying ground, and a monument, however humble, erected over it.

Influenced by these observations, (and my own feelings, which participated largely in their truth,) I was induced, in the month of April, 1821, to address a letter to his Royal Highness the Duke of York, then commander-in-chief, with a proposal to remove the remains of Major André to a place of public interment, or to place a suitable monument on the spot where they reposed. In due course I was honoured with a prompt communication, dated Horse Guards, May 16, 1821, from Sir Herbert Taylor, in which he was pleased to state—That he was directed to convey to me his Royal Highness's sincere acknowledgments for the communication I had made, and to assure me how sensible his Royal Highness was of the liberal and patriotic feeling which had produced my proposal, that the bones of the brave and unfortunate Major André should be collected, and should receive that tribute of respect which is due to the remains and to the memory of a meritorious officer, who had suffered an ignominious death in the honourable discharge of his duty. His Royal Highness most readily directed that I should take such steps as I should consider most advisable for collecting Major André's bones, and for having them securely conveyed to Halifax, whence they could be brought to England in one of his Majesty's ships of war, with a view to their being deposited in Westminster Abbey, as his Royal Highness had communicated with the Dean of Westminister, in relation thereto; a copy of whose reply he was pleased to inclose for my information." * * *

Upon receipt of Sir Herbert Taylor's letter, I addressed a note to the late greatly-esteemed and justly-lamented De Witt Clinton, the then governor of the state of New York, praying his Excellency's permission to comply with the orders of his Royal Highness: in reply thereto, I was honoured with a note, of which the following is a copy:—

"New York, 30th July, 1821.

"Sir,—I have received a communication from you relative to the conveyance of the remains of Major André from this State to Great Britain, and have the honour to state in reply, that our laws interpose no obstacle to this measure.

"I am, Sir, with great consideration,

"Your obedient servant,

"De Witt Clinton." * * *

My next step was to proceed to Tappan distant from this city twenty-four miles. Thither I went accompanied by Mr. Moore his Majesty's agent for packets. Upon reaching the village, which does not contain above fifty or sixty houses, the first we inquired at proved to be the very house in which the Major had been confined while a prisoner there, kept by one Dupuy, who was also postmaster; who took us to view the room which had been used as his prison. Excited as we were, it would be difficult to describe our feelings on entering this little chamber; it was then used as a milk and storeroom; otherwise unaltered from the period of his confinement; about twelve feet by eight, with one window looking into a garden, the view extending to the hill, and directly to the spot on which he suffered, as the landlord pointed out from the window, while in the room, the trees growing at the place where he was buried.

Having inquired for the owner of the field, I waited on the Rev. Mr. Demarat (Demarest), a baptist (Dutch Reformed) minister residing at Tappan, to whom I explained the object of my visit, who generously expressed his satisfaction at the honour, "which at length," to use his words, "was intended the memory of Major André" and assured me, that every facility should be afforded by him. Whereupon we all proceeded to examine the grave, attended by many of the inhabitants, who by this time had become acquainted with the cause of our visit; and it was truly gratifying to us, as it was honourable to them, that all were loud in the expressions of their gratification on this occasion.

We proceeded up a narrow lane or broken road, with trees at each side, which obscured the place where he suffered, until we came to the opening into the field, which at once led to an elevated spot on the hill. On reaching the mount, we found it commanded a view of the surrounding country for miles. General Washington's head-quarters, and the house in which he resided, was distant about a mile and a half or two miles, but fully in view. The army lay encamped, chiefly also in view of the place, and must necessarily have witnessed the catastrophe. The field, as well as I could judge, contained from eight to ten acres, and was cultivated; but around the grave the plough had not approached nearer than three or four yards, that space being covered with loose stones thrown upon and around the grave, which was only indicated by two cedar trees about ten feet high. A small peach tree had also been planted at the head of the grave, by the kindly feeling of a lady in the neighbourhood. * * *

Thus furnish, I proceeded upon the 10th of August, 1821, accompanied by Señor Houghton, the Spanish Consul, and attended by Mr. Eggleso, with the sarcophagus, in order to raise the body, previous to removal from Tappan to his Majesty's packet. This mode of proceeding I was led to adopt, as I had been informed that some person had gone from New York, with the view to purchase or rent the field from the worthy clergyman, under the impression I would pay a large sum in order to fulfil his Royal Highness's intention; but to the honour of this worthy, yet poor pastor, he rejected their offers, and stated he would not, on any account, recede from the promise he had made. Arriving at Tappan by ten o'clock, A.M., though I was not expected until the following Tuesday, as I had fixed, yet a number of persons soon assembled, some of whom betrayed symptoms of displeasure at the proceedings, arising from the observations of some of the public journals, which asserted "that any honour paid Major André's remains was casting an imputation on General Washington, and the officers who tried him." * * *

As soon as the stones were cleared away, and the grave was found, not a tongue moved amongst the multitude,——— * * *

With great care the broken lid was removed, and there to our view lay the bones of the brave André, in perfect order. I, among others, for the first discovered that he had been a small man; this observation I made from the skeleton, which was confirmed by some then present. The roots of the small peach tree had completely surrounded the skull like a net. After allowing all the people to pass round in regular order and view the remains as they lay, which very many did with unfeigned tears and lamentation, the bones were carefully removed, and placed in the sarcophagus, (the circle having been again formed.) * * *

Having placed the remains in the sarcophagus, it was borne amidst the silent and unbought regret of the numerous assemblage, and deposited in the worthy pastor's house, with the intention of removing it to his Majesty's packet on the Tuesday following. * * *

On returning to New York, on the evening of the 10th, a citizen of the first respectability called on me and stated, that as political favour was to be obtained by manifesting hatred to every English measure, he had learned that some hot spirits had agreed that they would mark every citizen who should attend, and that they were determined to meet the procession on the way, and throw the sarcophagus into the Hudson. * * *

Determined to act promptly, without informing my family, or any others, of my intention, I called on the commander of his Majesty's packet, and we proceeded to Tappan on the evening of Saturday the 11th, taking a gig, in which we rode, and directed a carriage to follow to a place about sixteen miles distant, and there wait for me, without intimating to the party furnishing the gig or carriage my destination. I delayed my departure to get, as night fell, within about four miles of the village, where we stopped at a tavern to feed the horse and refresh ourselves, having come twenty-four miles. * * *

Unfortunately for our object, it was moonlight; and for the first time in my life did I find moonlight unpleasant. I wished for a cloud,—for total darkness. But, no; it was a clear moonlight night; so light, that only those who have witnessed the clear sky of the United States, in latitude 40°, can have any idea of its brightness. But my anxiety for concealment rendered the light intolerable, as so many people were stirring, or, as it is termed in that Dutch quarter, "frolicking." on a Saturday night. Moving slowly, we entered the village at half-past eleven o'clock; and passing through, I left the gig with my friends under a tree, which obscured them, while I proceeded forward to reconnoitre the worthy pastor's house. To my great annoyance, I heard several voices from a piazza in front of his house, where a number of persons were sitting enjoying the mild moonlight night. I remained under a tree a full hour, within hearing of their conversation, fearing to go forward. * * *

One o'clock having struck, and the voices having diminished, I ventured forward; not without apprehension also of a watch-dog, unprovided as I was, and found the good old minister still outside the house, with some of his relations, who had come to spend a day with him, and see the sarcophagus. I took him aside, before he recognized me, and stated to him the cause of my sudden visit; but he derided my fear; for that such was the feeling of the country and his friends, that he would guarantee all would go off well; and that it would greatly disappoint numbers who were to come to his house next day to see the "rare spectacle of so grand an article as the sarcophagus." In fact, I found the old gentleman was not to be moved from his purpose. I therefore went in with him, and found his wife a subject more likely to be moved by fear; and I accordingly roused her apprehension so effectually, that she joined me in persuading her husband to acquiesce in my purpose, which he did reluctantly, as he felt for the honour of the community, and, in the simplicity of his heart, did not believe there were such miscreants in the world. All this time my companion remained under the tree, his mind filled with the midnight meeting, of the event which led him and myself to our enterprise; from whence I called him into the house. Having the key of the sarcophagus, I had to open it, so that the relatives who had come might see it; and finding that I had paid above one hundred guineas for it, they were astonished at the munificent disposition of his Royal Highness. Having requested the old lady to inclose it in a quilt, we got it placed on the gig; and having taken some refreshment, of which we stood much in need, we departed, and returned to the place where I had ordered the carriage to come, into which we got, and proceeded on to New York, where we arrived about five o'clock on the morning of Sunday. Having arranged to have a boat in waiting from his Majesty's packet, with feeling that never shall be effaced from my memory, I placed the remains under the British flag. * * *

A beautiful and ornamented myrtle among those sent, I forwarded with the sarcophagus to Halifax, where Lieut-General Sir James Kempt, governor of Nova Scotia, caused every proper mark of respect to be paid to the remains. From thence they reached London, and were deposited near the monument which had been erected to his memory in the Abbey, and a marble slab placed at the foot of the monument, on which is set forth their removal by the order of his Royal Highness the Duke of York.

Having represented to his Royal Highness the generous conduct of the Rev. Mr. Demarat, I recommended that his Royal Highness should convey to him a snuff-box, made out of one of the trees which grew at the grave, which I sent home. But my suggestion was far outdone by the princely munificence of his Royal Highness, who ordered a box to be made out of the tree, and lined with gold, with an inscription, "From his Royal Highness the Duke of York, to the Rev. Mr. Demarat." While speaking of this act of liberality, I was unexpectedly honoured with a silver inkstand, with the following inscription:—"The surviving sisters of Major André to James Buchanan, Esq., his Majesty's Consul, New York." They also sent a silver cup, with a suitable inscription, to Mr. Demarat (Demarest). I need not add, that I cherish this ink-stand, (which I am now using,) and shall bequeath it to my children as a memorial which I prize with no ordinary feeling.

I omitted to mention, that I had the peach tree which had been planted on the grave (the roots of which had surrounded the skull, as set forth) taken up with great care, with as much of the clay as it was possible to preserve around the roots, and brought it to my garden in New York, where my daughters attended it with almost pious solicitude, shading it during the heat of the day, watering it in the cool of the evenings, in the hope of preserving it to send to England. Had it reached his sisters, they would no doubt have regarded it as another Minerva; for, though it did not spring out of, yet it was nourished by, their beloved brother's head. * * *

From Paper by William Nelson Read Before the New Jersey Historical Society 1875

Proceedings Second Series Vol. IV. No. 1.

On the arrival of the precious freight in England, the sisters of the deceased, hearing of the marked kindness shown by Mr. Demarest, were anxious that he should receive some testimonial of esteem in behalf of the friends of their brother. The Duke of York, with that kindness which characterized his conduct, at once took it upon himself to see that this was done, and wrote Mr. Demarest, stating the wishes of those interested, and proposing to send him a solid silver communion service, if agreeable. To this the reply of the unpretending Dutchman was that an English communion service would probably be out of place in a Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in America, and that a simpler gift would be quite as acceptable if His Royal Highness insisted upon sending any. In due time there came from England through Mr. Buchanan to Mr. Demarest, a snuff-box, which merits a full description.

This box is round, just three inches in diameter externally, where the lid and bottom join, and two and a half inches internal diameter; the cover and lid bevel outward from the joint, so that the extreme diameter across the top or bottom is three and a half inches; it is an inch and an eighth in thickness, the lid being slightly rounded on top; the snuff receptacle is five-eighths of an inch deep, and the lid, which fits over it (without a hinge), is three-sixteenths of an inch deep. The box is lined with gold, the inlaying of the precious metal being very thick. The box itself is of wood, of the identical cedar that grew over André's grave, and which for years had drawn nourishment from his ashes. The wood shows the heart of the tree, and is exquisitely polished. It shows, moreover, in the lid, a bit of bullet which had been buried in the tree many years before the cedar was moved, and which had marred the symmetry of its growth on that side, and caused a sort of cicatrice in the efforts of nature to close the wound. The shrinkage of the wood of the lid has made a slight fissure on one side. On the inside of the lid, on the golden lining, is the following inscription, exquisitely engraved:

From His Royal Highness
the Duke of York
To mark his sense of the Rev. John Demarest's Liberal Attention
Upon the occasion of the removal
Of the Remains of the Late
Maj. John Andre at Tappan
on the 10th August 1821.

The box is enclosed in a neat and substantial crimson morocco case lined with white satin, just as it was sent over, more than half a century ago.

This interesting memento of the Revolution, of a gallant young soldier's sad fate, and of the Royal gratitude, is now owned by Mrs. James I. Blauvelt, of Paterson, daughter of the Rev. John Demarest (now deceased), who was present at the removal of the remains of André, and from whom the incidents connected therewith, as related above, have been obtained.

"This beautiful mark of appreciation (the snuff box) subsequently fell into the possession of Catherine Demarest, the domine's daughter, and the Mother also of James D. Berdan, and was at one time often seen by Preakness people. It is at present (1899) in the possession of Sarah Ann (Blauvelt, Mrs. George) Andrus of Newark."—Labaw's History of Preakness Church.

THE NAME IN JESUIT MISSIONS TO AMERICA.

The Jesuit Relations and Allied Documents. Original Translations etc. Reuben Goldthwaites. Cleveland. 1896.

Vol. 1 pg. 35. Introduction by Thwaites. Illinois. "When La Salle retired from the region, Allonez resumed the Illinois mission of the Jesuits; and soon after there arrived on the ground fathers Gravier, Marest, Mermet, and Pinet, who because of the more docile character of the tribes collectively known as the Illinois * * * found here a relatively fruitful field."

Vol. II pg. 155. Last Relation of What Took Place in the Voyage made by Sieur De Pontrincourt to New France twenty months ago." (Written 1612-1614)

Pg. 161 "Since the last baptism of which we have spoken there were several others, on the 14th and 16th of August, the 8th and 9th of October, and the 1st of December 1610. And altogether the Pastor calculates that he has baptized one hundred and forty in one year, to whom have been given the names of many distinguished people over here (France) according to the inclinations of those who held the position of god-fathers and god-mothers. * * * As to the women, god-daughters were given to the following: Madame the Princess de Condé * * * Mad. Jeanne desMarets, wife of Sieur Megard, Surgeon at Troyes."

Vol. XXXVIII pg. 199. Journal of the Jesuit Fathers in the year 1653. Concerning New France, about Quebec, Montreal. "On the same 19th (November) Tehanihogan embarks at 3 Rivers with sieurs desMares and la fleur for annien'e." Index says des Mares was "envoy to the Mohawks."

Vol. LXIV ppg. 147, 279. "The 2 fathers sent out this year have reached Quebec safely * * * The two Jesuits who came to Canada in 1694 were Pinet and Gabriel Marest; the latter was the one chosen to act as chaplain for the Hudson Bay expedition of that year."

Vol. LXV, pg. 69, Letter of Binnetau.

"Father Gabriel Marest is doing wonders; he has the finest talent in the world for these missions; he has learned the language in four or five months, so that he can now give lessons to those who have been here a long time; he can endure an incredible amount of fatigue, and his zeal leads him to look upon the most difficult things as trifles. I will never rest, he says, as long as I live. I will never believe that I have done enough."

Vol. LXV. ppg. 79-85. Vol. LXVI. ppg. 67-119, 219-295. Letters of Marest.

Vol. LXV, ppg. 264-5. (Index: Pierre Gabriel Marest.)

Gabriel Marest was born at Laval, France, Oct. 14, 1662; and became a Jesuit novice at Paris, Oct. 1, 1681. He was an instructor at Vannes during 1682-88, and a student at Bourges and Paris during five years more. In 1694, he came to Canada, and was at once sent to Hudson Bay with Iberville (vol. lxlv., Notes 19, 25). As he relates in a letter to Lamberville (vol. lxvi., doc. clxxxi), he was captured there by the English in the following year, and taken to England; but was afterward sent back to France. He returned to Canada at the first opportunity, and was sent to the Western missions. From 1698, he ministered to the Kaskaskias, accompanying them in their removal to the Mississippi; he devoted himself to the civilization as well as the religious instruction of this tribe, taught them to cultivate the soil and raise domestic animals, and rendered them the most industrious and peaceable of the Western savages. Gravier states in a letter to the general (vol. lxvi., doc. clxxxii), written in 1707, that the Kaskaskia village then numbered 2,200 souls; and that all of these, except 40 or 50, professed Christianity. Marest was also an accomplished linguist, as we learn from the statements of his fellow-missionaries; but no MS. of his is known to exist. He died in his mission, Sept. 15, 1714 (not 1715, as in Shea). The circular letter announcing his death, written by Mermet, is in the archives of l'Ecole de Ste. Genevieve, Paris; and an apograph of it is in St. Mary's College, Montreal.

Vol. LXVI. pg. 107: Joseph Jacques (Jean) Marest about 1686. "the scioux to whose country my brother has made two journeys."

Pg. 207: Michikinakinac (Mackinac), "where are two of our fathers, Father Joseph Marest and Father Chandon."

Pg. 267: to Mackinac "in order to confer with Father Joseph Marest, my brother, about the affairs of our Missions of which he is the Superior."

Pg. 281: at a village 100 leagues before reaching Mackinac—"What an agreeable surprise when I saw my brother, who threw himself upon my neck to embrace me. It had been fifteen years since we had separated from each other without hope of ever meeting again." Vol. 71 pg. 228: Correspondence with Cadillac as to the founding of Detroit.

Vol. LXVI. pg. 338.

"The missionary to the Scious" here mentioned was Joseph Jean Marest, brother of Gabriel (vol. lxv., note 12). He was born March 19, 1653, and entered the Jesuit novitiate, at Paris, at the age of eighteen. An instructor at Vannes, La Fleche, Paris, and Tours, successively, he was a student at Paris during 1679-80 and 1681-85; and, after passing at Rouen his last year of probation, he came to Canada about 1686. He spent two years in the study of the Indian tongues, and in 1688 went to Mackinac. He must have gone at once to the Sioux tribes, for his name appears in Perrot's prise de possession (Margry, ut supra t.v.,pp.33,34) as "missionary among the Naudouesioux;" but the length of his stay there is unknown. He made another journey to that region, probably at the time referred to in our text, 1702. Joseph Marest was superior of the Ottawa missions, and resided at Mackinac, from 1700 until at least 1714, and perhaps longer. He died at Montreal in October, 1725.

Vol. LXXI, pg. 26. Letter of Father Bernard Well to Father Alden de Launay of the Society of Jesus at Paris, from Quebec, 17 Oct. 1759. "Pray convey assurances of my Respect to Reverend Father Demarest."

History of the United States. George Bancroft 14th Edition, Vol. 3. pg. 196.

"Before his (Binnetau's) death and before Tonti left Illinois Gabriel Marest the Jesuit—who after chanting an ave to the Cross among the icebergs of Hudson's Bay had been taken by the English and on his liberation at the peace had returned by way of France to America—joined the mission at Kaskaskia and for a season after the death of Binnetau and Pinet had sole charge of it. The more hardy services of the mission fell to the lot of Marest. 'Our life,' he writes, 'is past in roaming through swift woods in clambering over hills, in paddling the canoe across lakes and rivers, to catch a poor savage who flies from us and who we can tame neither by teachings nor by caresses.'

In 1711 on Good Friday Marest started for the Peorias who desired a new mission. In two days he reached Cahokia. 'I departed,' he writes, again having nothing about me but my crucifix and my breviary, being accompanied by only three savages who might abandon me from levity or from fear of enemies might fly. The horror of these vast uninhabited forest regions where in twelve days not a soul was met almost took away all courage. Here was a journey where there was no village, no bridge, no ferry, no boat, no house, no beaten path and over boundless prairies, intersected by rivulets and rivers—through forests and thickets filled with briars and thorns, through marshes where we plunged sometimes to the girdle. At night repose was sought on the grass or on leaves exposed to wind and rain—happy if by the side of some rivulet of which a draught might quench thirst. A meal was prepared from such game as was killed on the way or of roasting ears of corn."

Other Early Occurrences of the Name in Canada

Documents, Colonial History of New York.

Vol. IX pg. 482. 1689-1690. "Three Indians made their appearance a few days after at the Fort of Chateauquay which was commanded by Sieur Demarais a reduced Captain. He had stepped out before they were discovered and was walking with a soldier and his servant. As he was somewhat ahead of these, he could not regain the fort where they were crying, To Arms! He was overtaken by the Indians who knocked him in the head with their hatchets but had not had time to cut it off; they took away only three of his fingers."

Vol. X pg. 50. Paris Documents. Military and Other Operations in Canada 1745-1746. Abstract in Form of Journal. "Sieur Du Bois who is to command the 22 gun frigate named La Martre arrived at ten o'clock this evening. He landed at Bic on the 4th from the ship L'Auguste of St. Malo, commanded by Captain Vincent Desmarais;" this vessel from Brest brought crew of frigate, powder, muskets etc.

COATS OF ARMS

Branches of the Desmarets family in earlier and in later times have had their various coats of arms. In the terms of heraldry those here shown are described as follows:

Demarais: Norm. Limousin. De gu. a la croix ancree d'argent; a la bande de sa., br. sur le tout et ch. de trois coquilles d'argent.

Demarets: Lorr (an. 24 Juillet 1720). De gu. au chev. d'argent acc. de trois croiss. de meme, perces chacum d'un fer de lance de gu

Demarets marquis de Maillebois. Soissonnais. D'azur a un senestrochere d'arg. mouv. du flanc, tenant trois lis du meme sur une seule tige Demarets de Mongarny. Tournai. D'or a trois feuilles de chene au nat.

Desmares—Paris. D'azur a une ruche d'argent posee sur une terrasse de sinople, et un essaim d'abeilles s'envolant de la porte, vers senestre.

Desmarets—Ile-de-France. Ecartele: aux 1 et 4 d'azur a un dextrochere d'argent, mouvant du flanc senestre et tenant trois lis de jardin du meme (Demarets); aux 2 et 3 gueules a une tour d'argent, accostee de six fleurs de lis d'or, 3 en pal de chaque cote (Alegre) S. deux licornes.—Alias: les armes des 1 et 4 seules.

Marez. (Translation) "Oazure a cross argent cantonned with four roses, or, Crowned helmet.—Crest: a Turck issant, habited azure, with a turban of the same, holding in each hand a banner in the arms of the shield and accosted with two banners azure charged with a crescent in pale argent.—Motto: Ex Fide Vivo".

(Description, Netherlands source.) "A silver Cross in blue sealed by four gold roses: A Turk appearing in blue arrayed in gold, wearing a white turban, holding two pennants which follow the shield and appear between two blue pennants, each with a silver semi-lunar placed perpendicularly.

Shieldholder:—Two gold griffins

Motto: "Ex Fide Vivo".

Samuel DeMarez of Maarsbergen and his descendants bore upon the cross a blue heart-shield with a golden lily, for which they had received permission by the King of France.

Some members of this generation had an intersected field, the upper half of which contained three gold roses in blue, the lower two red roses in silver, with an appearing Griffin of gold serving as a cockade for the helmet (literally-helmet-sign).

It is said that as early as the Middle Ages, variations with 3, 5 or 7 roses appeared among the different branches of the Kameryk family-tree."

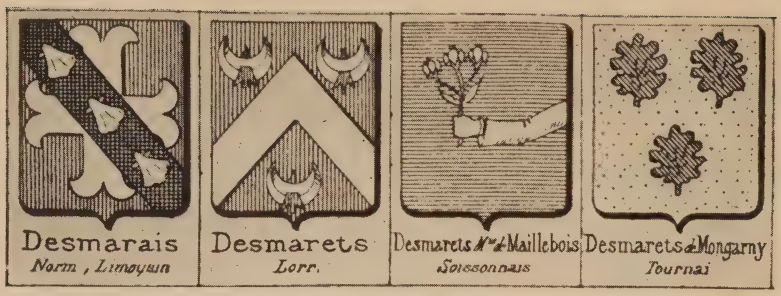
desMarest: Azure, a chevron or, 3 mullets or, Crest out of ducal cornet or, rises laurel wreath natural (p.pr.) Motto. Fide et amore.

MEMORANDUM. DAVID D. DEMAREST.

In the year 1850, in Amsterdam, Holland, Mr. G. H. de Marez Oijens showed me the Coat of Arms with various quarterings through marriages with other families. The Coat of Arms represented a Crusader holding in each hand a flag with the cross; and underneath these are flags exhibiting the crescent. In the centre are four lilies, and in the sides two dragons; and the motto is in gilded letters, "Ex Fide Vivo". It is proper here to say that in a volume on heraldry in possession of Mr. A. Demarest of 179 Broadway there is a Coat of Arms of the Des Marest family which is far more simple. It is a hand holding a lily stalk having three flowers.

MEMORANDUM LOUIS P. DE BOER.

The original Arms of the Des Marests family of Cambray and Cambresis



Coats of Arms
Branches of the Family in France is based upon that of the Barons of Bousis, from which House of Bousis, Baldwin, the first lord of Marets, born about 1050 was a scion. This House of Bousis bore: "Azure, a cross argent." Baldwin I continued the use of these Arms, but it was his son, Baldwin II who according to le Carpentier, added "four roses, or, in each canton". These augmented Arms since then have been continually used by members of this family, although some have altered them, others have augmented them, and others again have entirely given them up. It is rather remarkable that Jean Des Marets (1518-1604) the Protestant refugee, whose greatgrandchildren had lost knowledge of his ancestry, should have preserved these Arms. Still this remains a fact. In this Protestant branch these Arms were so purely preserved that even an undoubted descendant from the old family in Cambresis, Jacques Joseph de Marez de Sancourt, living at Cambray in 1732, corrected his armorials with the help of those of the family of Holland. Arms of early dates are seldom rendered with crests, helmets, or mantlings. This does not signify that certain fixed crests, with the mantlings belonging to them, did not exist then. They, however, were only used in tournaments, and the shield alone was deemed sufficient for the use of sealing etc. The shield, for instance, was affixed above doorways, graves, bridges, etc., but nobody would think of such an absurdity as likewise affixing his crest etc. there.

All indications are there that the crest and motto of the Des Marets family are at least of as ancient date as the roses and very likely little less ancient than the cross in their arms.

THE NAME IN PAST TIME FRANCE

Some interest attaches with any distinguished occurrence of the name in the annals of France. Especial interest naturally attaches with persons of distinction who, born in Picardy and in the same part of it where was the home of the immediate family of David des Marets, and bearing similar given names, are assumed to have been of close relation to the family. This interest is the greater since several were distinguished in learning and in the service of the Reformation; of those thought of as most nearly related are Samuel Des Marets (Maresius), the great scholar and theologian, and his two sons, Henri and Daniel whose names attach with the French version of the Bible printed by Elzevir in 1699. Samuel was baptized at Oisemont, April 16, 1599, the son of Daniel Demaretz and Magdaleine Vauquet.

Accounts of some people of the name well known to history derived from various sources are here generally abbreviated.

Popular History of France. M. Guizot, Vol. 3, Pages 16-18.

Returning victorious from Flanders to France, Charles VI and his uncles, everywhere brilliantly feasted on their march, * * * he re-entered Paris, he alone being mounted, in the midst of his army. The burgesses went out of the city to meet him and offer him their wonted homage but they were curtly ordered to retrace their steps; the king and his uncles, they were informed, could not forget offenses so recent. * * * But fundamental order having been thus upheld, reprisals began to be taken for the outbreaks of the Parisians, municipal magistrates or populace, burgesses or artisans, rich or poor, in the course of the two preceding years; arrests, imprisonments, fines, confiscations, executions, severities of all kinds fell upon the most conspicuous and the most formidable of those who had headed or favored popular movements. The most solemn and most iniquitous of these punishments was that which befell the advocate-general, John Desmarets. 'For nearly a whole year' says the monk of St. Denis, 'he had served as mediator between the king and the Parisians; he had often restrained the fury and stopped the excesses of the populace, by preventing them from giving rein to their cruelty. He was always warning the factions that to provoke the wrath of the king and the princes was to expose themselves to almost certain death. But, yielding to the prayers of this rebellious and turbulent mob, he, instead of leaving Paris as the rest of his profession had done, had remained there, and throwing himself boldly amidst the storms of civil discord, he had advised the assumption of arms and the defence of the city, which he knew was very displeasing to the king and the grandees.' When he was taken to execution, 'He was put on a car higher than the rest, that he might be better seen by everybody.' Nothing shook for a moment the firmness of this old man of seventy years. 'Where are they who judged me?' he said: 'let them come and set forth the reasons for my death. Judge me, O God, and separate my cause from that of the evil-doers.' On his arrival at the market-place, some of the spectators called out to him, 'Ask the king's mercy, Master John, that he may pardon your offences.' He turned round, saying, 'I served well and loyally his great-grandfather King Philip, his grandfather King John, and his father King Charles; none of those kings ever had anything to reproach me with, and this one would not reproach me any the more if he were of a grown man's age and experience. I don't suppose that he is a whit to blame for such a sentence, and I have no cause to cry him mercy. To God alone must I cry for mercy, and I pray Him to forgive my sins.' Public respect accompanied the old and courageous magistrate beyond the scaffold; his corpse was taken up by his friends, and at a later period honorably buried in the church of St. Catherine."

SOURCE?

"In 1435 the English were occupying Dieppe which was under their rule; during the night of November 22, Charles Des Marest, at the head of a few courageous men, surprised the defenders of the city at low tide and scaled the walls, with the aid of several inhabitants happy to be able to shake off the foreign rule; the garrison, caught by surprise, surrendered, and Charles Des Marest, for this glorious feat of arms, was soon named by the King of France, Captain of the City. * * *

Confirmed by Charles VII in his functions as Captain of the city, he devoted himself to repairing and strengthening the walls, in order to put them into condition to resist any attack. Then he endowed the town with a new and formidable means of defense by beginning the construction of a castle on the cliff of Caude-Côte, at the very spot where, according to tradition, the fortress of the Plantagenet had risen of old. He built, especially, on the testimony of the chronicler, Gisbert, the four round towers that form the corners of the last courtyard which is almost square, and something of the other buildings that are there. * * *

Henceforth Dieppe was forever freed from the foreign menace. Charles Marets, who had so well reconquered, then defended, the city, devoted himself from now on to the deliverance of the other Norman towns. In 1449 he was about to drive the English from Fecamp and Arcques, at the head of five companies of men from Dieppe. The following year he was taking part, with a vessel, in the blockade of Cherbourg. * * *

In 1450 the castle received a garrison and Charles Des Marest continued to raise the walls of the fortress which was attacked in 1456 by the Dukes of Brittany and Burgundy, who tried to take it away from the King; Des Marest repulsed the assailants and had further to struggle, in 1472, against the Duke of Burgundy, whose attempt came to naught. * * *

It was about 1443 that the castle of Dieppe was begun by Charles Des Marest, Captain of the city, who had four towers built of which three still exist today. Before that period three forts had been successively erected on the site of the present castle; the first which is supposed to go back to Charlemagne, and which was called Bertheville, was thought to have been destroyed by the Normans; the second was said to have been built by Rollon; the third, constructed by order of Richard Coeur-de-Lion, was razed by Philippe-Auguste at the end of the XIIth Century.

THE CHRONICLES OF ENGUERRAND DE MONSTRELET. * * * Beginning at the year MCCCC where that of Sir JOHN FROISSART finishes, * * * . Translated by Thomas Johnes, Esq. Volume 7, pages 301 to 306. London. 1810.

"The English at this period laid siege to the bridge of Meulan, which the French had lately won, but, from some obstacles that arose, gave it up. In another quarter, the marshal de Rieux and Charles des Marets gained the town of Dieppe, and some others in Normandy, in the following manner.

Soon after the conclusion of the peace at Arras, several valiant French captains, such as the marshal de Rieux, Gaucher de Boussach, the lord de Longueval, and others, having with them three to four hundred tried soldiers, marched, by the invitation of Charles des Marets, on the Friday preceding All-saints-day, to escalade the strong town of Dieppe, seated on the sea-coast, and in the plentiful country of Caux. Charles des Marets entered the town secretly, with about six hundred combatants, on the side toward the harbour, and thence hastened to destroy the gate leading toward Rouen—by which the marshal entered with his men at arms on foot, and with displayed banners. * * *

There were in the harbour numbers of vessels, the greater part of which fell into the hands of the French. The day the town was taken, proclamation was made for all foreigners to leave it, except such as were willing to take the oaths,—and Charles des Marets was unanimously appointed governor for the king of France.

The whole of the English throughout Normandy were greatly troubled and vexed at this capture, and not without cause, for the town of Dieppe was wondrous strong and excellently situated in one of the most fertile parts of the country. * * *

At the same time, the following towns surrendered to the king's obedience, Le Bec Crespin, Tancarville, Gomerville, Les Loges, Valmont, Grasville, Longueville, Lambreville, and very many forts, with little loss to the French.

The count de Richemont, constable of France, now joined this army, to whom, on his arrival, the towns and castles of Charles-Maisnil, Aumarle, St. Germain sur Cailly, Fontaines le bourg, Preaux, Blainville and others, surrendered, in all of which garrisons were placed; and thus, at this season, was the greater part of the country of Caux conquered by the French. It is true, that they were forced from want of provision to leave these parts—but their captains, before they departed, posted strong garrisons along the frontier.

Charles des Marets and Richarville were present at all these conquests: they took the field from Dieppe, and joined the marshal de Rieux, the lord de Torsy, Poton le Bourguignon, Broussart, Blanchefort, John d'Estouteville, and other captains renowned in war. To them, likewise, attached himself Le Kerennier with six thousand of the peasantry, to accomplish their work of driving the English out of the country."

LA FRANCE PROTESTANTE, by Eugene et Emile Haag (Paris 1886) Vol. V.

Robert Des Marais, Seigneur of Saint-Aubin-sur-Arques. There was at Saint-Aubin as early as 1563 a church served by Jean deMonanges who took refuge in England at the Massacre of Saint Bartholomew's Day in 1572. Before that date it was in the Chateau of Robert des Marais that the Protestant church of Dieppe assembled * * * Esaie des Marets, minister of Vals in 1620. The Synod of Le Vivarais, moved by private animosity, had disapproved him but he continued his ministry at Alais; and the National Synod of Castres forced his recognition as "very worthy and very faithful minister of the Gospel, of exemplary life". In 1632 he was condemned to death for not having prevented the inhabitants of the town from following the party of Montmorency. The sentence was not, however, carried out.

Samuel Des Marets, in Latin Maresius, one of the most prolific, if not most learned, Protestant theologians of the XVIIth Century, born at Oisemont August 9, 1599, and died at Groningen March 18, 1673.

Since its conversion to the Reformed religion, the Des Mœrets family had not ceased an instant to show itself very much attached to the evangelical doctrines. Lambert Des Marets, a rich and honored man, had exercised the office of elder in the church, taken into the home of Prince Porcien. His son David, seigneur of Le Feret, not less zealous than he for the cause of the Reform, had established himself at Oisemont, where he fulfilled the functions of ordinary judge, civil lieutenant, and commissioner of the Navy. He had married Madeleine Vauquet of a good Picard family. From this marriage were born: 1. Charles, who studied law at Heidelberg and at Orleans (died at Paris, lawyer, Feb. 14, 1661), 2. Samuel. (The place, Oisemont, and other considerations, suggest the near connection of this family with David desMarest of America.) Devid des Marets, Lord of Feret, a friend of Henry IV, father of Maresius, was an elder in the church of Oisemont, Picardy, about 1595. "In 1625 he represented the church in the Provincial Synod held at Charenton, near Paris". Riker. His son, Charles des Marets was a professor and lawyer in Paris. (Further reference to his son Samuel, Maresius, and Samuel's sons, Henri and Daniel, ministers, follows.)

New General Biographical Dictionary

Marets, (Samuel des,) Lat. Maresius, a learned and very celebrated French Protestant divine in the seventeenth century, was born at Oisemond, in Picardy, in 1599. At the age of thirteen he was sent to Paris, where he made considerable proficiency in the belles-lettres and philosophy; and three years afterwards he went to Saumur, where he studied divinity under Gomarus, and Hebrew under Ludovicus Capellus. He completed his theological course at Geneva; and in 1620 he offered himself as a candidate for the ministry to the synod of Charenton, and was admitted to the ministerial office, and settled by the synod in the church of Laon. He thereupon removed to Falaise, where he was soon after invited to Sedan to succeed James Cappel in the office of pastor and professor of divinity. He was admitted to the degree of doctor of divinity at Leyden in 1625. He then visited England, whence he soon returned to Sedan, where he commenced his labours in the divinity chair, which he held for about seven years. In 1631 he attended the duke de Bouillon into Holland, in the capacity of chaplain to his army; and in the following year he engaged in the service of the States-General, who made him minister of the church at Maestricht. In 1636 he became pastor to the church of Boisleduc; and in the following year he was appointed professor in the Schola Illustris of the same city. In 1640 the curators of the university of Franeker sent him the offer of a professorship, which he declined; and two years afterwards he accepted a similar invitation from the university of Groningen, to which he zealously devoted his services for above thirty years, and raised it to such high repute, that it became one of the most flourishing seminaries in the Low Countries. In 1652 he was made sole minister of the Walloon church at Groningen. In 1661 he declined the chair of professor of divinity at Lausanne; and in 1863 he accepted an invitation to the same post in the university of Leyden, but died at Groningen in May in the same year. He was the author of numerous Dissertations, Orations, Disputations, and controversial treatises against the Roman Catholics, Remonstrants, and Socinians, of which a chronological list is given at the end of his Collegium Theologicum, sive Systema breve universæ Theologiæ, in 4to. This system of Divinity was much used as a text book in the Protestant universities in Germany and other countries, as well as in the United Provinces. The best edition of it is published at Groningen in 1675, in 2 vols, 4 to. He was engaged in controversy with Grotius, Boethius, Daille, Comenius, Labadie, Labadie, and Serrarius. His eldest son, HENRY, was originally bred to the law, but relinquished that profession for the ministry; and he officiated successively in the French churches at Groningen, Cassel, Boisleduc, and Delft. DANIEL, the younger son, was at first his father's colleague in the French church at Groningen; whence he removed to the Walloon church at Middleburg; and afterwards he was called to the French church at the Hague, where his abilities rendered him a favourite at the court of the prince of Orange. These two brothers were jointly concerned in editing that French version of the Bible which bears their name, and was printed by Elzevir in 1699, in a beautiful type, and on large paper, in folio. The laborious notes with which it is illustrated were chiefly the production of Des Marets the father, with the assistance of his two sons.

(A GENERAL DICTIONARY, HISTORICAL AND CRITICAL. MR. BAYLES. MDCCXXXVIII)

[He, Maresius, left behind him two sons, whom I shall give some account of.]

"The eldest was born at Sedan, and was presented to baptism by Elizabeth de Nassau Duchess of Bouillon, who caused him to be named Henry, after the Prince her deceased husband (20). He studied law, and after he had been made a licentiate, he began to prepare himself for the bar under his uncle Charles Des Marets, a celebrated Counsellor of the Parliament of Paris. He likewise pleaded a certain cause with abundance of success, notwithstanding which he threw up his profession all at once, to devote himself to the study of Divinity, and the Ministry of the word of God. * * * He was admitted to the holy ministry in the year 1652, and his first office was to preach in French in the College Church of Groningen. The same year he had an invitation to Cassel, to undertake the charge of Minister of the French Church there. The year following he had a call to the Walloon Church at Boisleduc, which he accepted of, although he was very well satisfied with the Court of Hesse, where he received great marks of favour and respect. * * * He executed his function in the Church of Boisleduc, till he accepted an invitation from that of Delft in the year 1662. From that time till now (this was wrote upon Feb. 4, 1696) he had continued at Delft, and has gained the esteem of all the world. In the year 1669 he declined the call, which the Walloon Church at Leyden gave him.

"Daniel Des Marets his brother was born at Maestricht in the year 1635. Being admitted into the ministry, he was his father's Colleague in the French Church at Groningen till the year 1656; after which he was invited to Middlebourg, and acquitted himself in quality of Minister of the French Church there, till he was called to that at the Hague in the year 1662. His wit, his eloquence, his parts, in a word, his great merit procured him so much esteem at the Court of their Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Orange, that he might very properly be said to be a favourite. The throne of England, to which their Highnesses were raised in the year 1689, gave a new lustre to the favour, which this Minister continued to possess, and which he enjoys to this day in the magnificent and delicious retreat of Hontslaerdijk. His bad state of health obliging him to discontinue his functions as a minister, he retired to that charming house, where he is employed in a manner agreeable to his Britannick Majesty. These two brothers were jointly concerned in that edition of the Bible, which goes by their name, in which Elzevir has spared no charges for a beautiful type and paper. Des Marets their father for his part engaged himself in the great labour of illustrating that edition with notes, and he made use of the assistance of his two sons. * * *

"[I shall say something of his ancestors.] They bore considerable offices in Picardy. * * * The title and offices of David the father of Samuel des Marets were as follows * * * In the year 1588 he married Magdalen Vaucquet the daughter of a considerable man, and zealously attached to the Reformed Church and died in the year 1649. His widow was yet alive in the year 1654. Lambert des Marets the father of David was touched with the same zeal." * * *

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA. (SKETCHES ABBREVIATED.)

Marot, Clement (1496-1544), French poet. His father, Jean Marot, whose more correct name appears to have been des Mares, Marais or Marets, Jean, himself a poet, was escripvain (apparently poet laureate and historiographer) to Anne of Brittany: later was valet di chambre to the King. Clement, educated at the University of Paris, studied law and verse-making; was attached to the suite of Marguerite d'Angouleme, the king's sister; became a great favorite of Francis himself. He entered the humanist and Protestant movement and was arrested for heresy. Francis gave him a house and grounds in the suburbs of Paris. His famous translations of the Psalms then appeared, a powerful influence on contemporary writing and life. They were sung in court and city and are said, with a basis of truth, to have done more than anything else to advance the cause of the Reformation in France. The work was condemned by the Sorbonne; he fled to Geneva, then into Piedmont. He was quite as much a freethinker as a Protestant. His importance in the history of French literature is very great; he became one of the earliest, least affected and most vernacular poets of France, in these points having, with the exception of La Fontaine, no rival. (His father in presenting a work of his to the Queen called himself Jehan Desmarets.)

Desmarets (or Desmaretz), Jean (1596-1676), Sieur de Saint-Sorlin, French dramatist and miscellaneous writer. Introduced to Richelieu, he became one of the writers who followed his literary ideas. His inclination to novel writing and the success of his romance Ariane led to his formal admission to the circle that later developed into the Academie Francaise, of which he became the first chancellor. He wrote for the theatre, a comedy long regarded as a master piece, Les Visionnaires, and tragedies in prose and in verse. He came to official preferment, was made conseiller du roi, controleur-general, de l'extraordinaire des guerres, and secretary-general of the fleet of the Levant. In a long epic he rejected traditional pagan background and maintained that Christian imagery should supplant it. In his later years he devoted himself chiefly to producing religious poems.

Desmarets, Nicholas (1648-1721), Sieur de Maillebois, French statesman. His mother was a sister of Jean Baptiste Colbert who took him in his offices as a clerk. He became counsellor to the parlement, master of requests, intendant of finances. Having to treat with financiers as to coinage, he was involved in legal proceedings against certain of them. There was no proof against him but he was stripped of his offices and exiled to his estates by the king. Authorized to return, he furnished the controller-generals of France for more than ten years remarkable memoirs on the economic situation in France. He insisted on radical reforms in system of taxation, impending ruin of the people, the excessive expense of the king, established himself as one of the great economists of his time. As a counsellor and director of finance he became virtually minister of finance and then actually so. Louis XIV was in much conference with him: Madam de Maintenon gave him support. His reputation in grave situation renewed the credit of the state, and financiers advanced money denied to the king. He introduced an income tax. The honorable peace which Louis was enabled to conclude at Utrecht with his enemies was certainly due to the resources which Desmarets procured for him. After the death of Louis, Desmarets was dismissed by the regent along with all the other ministers. He withdrew to his estates. His enemies even, like Saint Simon, had to recognize his honesty and his talent. He was certainly, after Colbert, the greatest finance minister of Louis XIV.

Desmarest, Nicolas (1725-1815), French geologist. Educated at Troyes and Paris, he taught and gave himself to research. Winning a prize for essay on the ancient connection between England and France, he received appointment to study and report on manufactures in different countries and later as inspector-general of the manufactures of France. Travelling on foot, he pursued his study of the earth's structure, reached original conclusions from his observations, tracing formation to extinct volcanoes. He published his results with geological map, indicating occurrence of volcanoes, the changes caused by them and by erosion. The doctrine of the origin of valleys by the erosive action of streams was first clearly taught by Desmarest. (Geikie). His son Anselme Gaetan Desmarest (1784-1838) was distinguished as a zoologist, and author of memoirs on recent and fossil crustacea. See The Founders of Geology, by Sir A. Geikie. pp. 48-78.

For account of various French families Desmarest, see Dictionnaire des Families francaises anciennes ou notables a la fin du XIXe siecle. Vol. 13.

History of Harlem, Riker pg. 51. In 1626-7 a colony of Huguenots went from Dieppe to the Island of St. Christopher (St. Kitts, West Indies). A Sieur des Marets, an old sea captain of St. Christopher, was beheaded September 7, 1641, by the governor, De Poincy, for joining the people in opposing his tyranny. Oisemont in Picardy, seat of the Demarests, had a commandery of Malta of which De Poincy was commander.

The Times, New York City, December 16, 1929. Another recent acquisition (by the Metropolitan Museum) is an unusual Gobelin tapestry portrait bearing the date 1725 and measuring 3 feet 2 inches by 2 feet six and one half inches. * * * She is thought to be a celebrated actress of the Comédie Francaise, Charlotte Desmares (1682-1753).

Swedish Tercentenary Art Exhibit, 1937. George Desmarees. Born in Osterby, Sweden, died 1776 in Munich. His earliest artistic training was obtained in Stockholm at the School of Martin Meytens, the Elder, an immigrant Dutchman who gained repute for his realistic portraits. In 1724 Desmarees continued his studies abroad. Under the influence of Italian and German painting he created an elegant style, rich in color and quite in accordance with current taste. The remainder of his life Desmarees spent as portrait painter to the south German Princely Courts and is accounted nowadays one of the foremost names among German 18th century painters. Before leaving Sweden, however, he had executed a number of portraits which are highly appreciated for their straight forward realism and simple elegance. Painted portrait of General Karl Gustav Armfelt. Oil painting. Belongs to the suite of portraits of Karl XII's generals at Drottningholm.

NOTES OF PRESENT DAY FRANCE

Letters, Elmer W. Demarest, 1929. Generally I may say that the investigations here are most fascinating, I find four towns in Picardie within a radius of five miles named after the family. The Chateau at Dieppe, which stands at the entrance of the harbor, was built by Charles Demarest who kept the English out of that part of France for many years. One of the principal streets of Dieppe is named after the family.

I spent several days in Beauchamps and the vicinity, succeeded in finding and taking a number of photographs of the ancestral estate, found some people with our name still living upon it and have collected considerable history and tradition relative to numbers of the Demarest family who may or may not have been closely related to David Demarest, the pioneer.

The Mayor of Beauchamps gave me every attention and turned me over to the town archiviste who showed me the records in Beauchamps which, unfortunately, begin in 1627. They contain many reference to the family but are of course too late to identify David Demarest and his ancestors. The same archiviste is examining at Calais, Amiens, Oisemont and Cambrai at all of which places there are records.

Memorandum, not recent. Mrs. Caro Lloyd (Withington) Strobell. It may interest you to know that I visited our ancestral village of Beauchamps, Picardy, and hunted up the last inhabitant there bearing the name, a woman of about 65 years. This Madame Augustine Demarest Poigny wrote me afterwards that she had a great uncle on her father's side with the title of Baron who lived in the Chateau of Beauchamps, he squandered all the family fortune and the chateau is now in ruins. She scorned the idea of any of our family having left the Catholic Church and sent me as a gift a little glass cup "tres ancien" which had long been used by the family to take up collections in the church as a proof.

Annuaire des Chateaux et des Villegiatures, 1933. Paris. (Year book of the castles and county seats). Chateau du Marais: Prince of Sagan (Duke of) (and Duchess Princess nee Anna Gould). Chateau de Courquetaine: Paul Desmarais. Chateau de Coubert: Madame Desmaris. Chateau d'Auxon; Henri Desmarais, Chateau de Montplaisir-les-Autrebois: Francois Demarest.

Memoranda. Robert Desmarets, head of the publicity department of the journal "l'Auto" and Director of the Winter Velodromes, exceedingly well known in the sporting world.

Emile Demaret, Inspector General of the Colonial Reserve Officers' Staff and Personnel Director of the bank known as the "Comptoir National d'Escompte."

Ernest Desmarest, professor and hospital surgeon, an authority on anaesthetics and author of several treatises on the subject.

Henri Desmarest, man of letters and inventor. He has written considerable number of novels and other works, of literary or historical character. His wife, a writer of some distinction, goddaughter of Sully-Prudhomme. His father, Edouard Desmarest (1832-70) Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, writer and economist was, like the son, a thorobred Parisian. The family has a chateau in Auxon (Aube).

A considerable number of teachers of the Desmarest name.

A great number of the name in commerce and trade. "Most extraordinary is the number of cities in which we find the powerful firm, Desmarais Brothers, petroleum dealers and refiners. It is with these veritable oil kings that the name Desmarest would seem to be most widely identified among the general public in France."

To Mrs. Lloyd Strobel

* * * "The words Anciens Chosis, chosen: it means that they were the most important people of the Refugees. Your noble ancestor (?) Hollandais (?) landed and first lived at Sandwich, then a seatown close to Ramsgate and Deal; and the Colony was removed from Sandwich by orders of Her late Majesty Queen Elizabeth. The Dutch section were sent to Norwich; and the French Section sent to Canterbury. Unfortunately, our early Registers were burnt as well as our Royal Charter by a section of our Congregation who embrace(d) the Anglican doctrine and joined the church of England got us expel(led) from our crypt and took possession of it until His Majesty sent his Chancellor to turn them out and replaced us in it. During that periode they burnt our earliest documents. So the Demarest, Demarie, Demaretz, De Desmares were in here in the earliest period of the emigration."

MEMORANDUM, CANTERBURY RECORDS. LOUIS P. DEBOER.

The Records of the Walloon Church of Canterbury, England as printed in The Publications (Volume V, 1, 2 and 3) of The Huguenot Society of London, show many entries concerning members of the Demares, Desmarets, Desmarez family or families from Northern France who had settled there in the late 16th century.

The two branches who seem to have been related were:

1/ that of Guillaume Desmarets, from Lestrem, in the Pas de Calais,

2/ that of Pierre Desmarets, from Cormont, in Boulonnois, also in the Pas de Calais.

A brief summary of the conclusions drawn from these Church Records follows here.

Guillaume Desmarets, from Lestrem, in the Pas de Calais, a place at that time belonging to Artois, was with his family in Canterbury, England, prior to the year 1586. His wife was Jeanne Suret (pp. 627, 655). She was a witness, 1593, March 11, (p. 26).

Their children were all born in the Walloon country and the oldest daughter married and had a family there. They were:

1. (Elisabeth?), b. who married Augustin du Fossey. They lived at Marcque, and had a son Pierre du Fossey, who married in Canterbury, Sept. 28, 1606. (p. 655.)
2. Anthoinette, b. at Lestrem, who married at Canterbury, 1586 (marr. contract p. 627) with Robert Le Clercq. She died as his widow, June 21, 1597. (p. 570.)
3. Marguerite, b. who died 1591, April 15, (p. 563.)
4. Marie, b. who married at Canterbury, 1st, on May 20, 1594 with Pierre Huchon, son of Adam Houchon, b. at Armentieres, (p. 466) and 2nd, on July 28, 1615 Philippe Castel.

Jeanne Suret, wife of Guillaume Des Marets was witness, 1596, July 11 (p. 42), and as his widow, on Sept. 28, 1606. (p. 627.)

Adam Houchon and his wife Jacquemine, were also at Canterbury. They had besides this son Pierre, a daughter Marie Houchon, who married, Feb. 8, 1596 with Andrieu du Forest. (p. 448.) Jacquemine died 1596, No. 14. (p. 569.)

The children of Marie Desmarets and her first husband, Pierre Houchon at Canterbury were:

1. Marie, bap. 1596, July 11. (p. 42.)
2. Jane, bap. 1598, Feb. 2. (p. 48) She died 1602, Oct. 13. (p. 573.)
3. Jehan, bap. 1599, Aug. 19. (p. 52) He died 1600, May 2, (p. 572.)
4. Jan, bap. 1601, Jan. 3. (p. 58.) He died 1603, Oct. 19. (p. 574.)
5. Abraham, bap. 1602, May 30. (p. 65.)
6. Marie Castel, bap. 1616, Sept. 21. (p. 103.)

Pierre Demarets, from Cormont, in the land of Boulogne sur Mer, in the Pas de Calais, if at Canterbury at all, must have died there soon after his arrival. The name of his wife was Jacqueline ———.

Pierre De Maret seems to have been a brother of Salome De Marets, also from the land of Boulogne, who married at Canterbury on April 6, 1593, or otherwise her close relative.

His brother also may have been Esaya Des Marets there. This Esaya Des Marets had a dau. Marie bap. at Canterbury on Oct. 10, 1596. One of the witnesses was, Marte Des Marets, who died 1604, June 18, (p. 43, 575.) He had also a daughter, Jane baptized there, May 20, 1599, Jan Desmare's and Marie Desmarets (born ab. 1580 and 1582 being witnesses (p. 52.) Salome was a daughter of Pierre Des Marets and Guillemette Masquelier the latter witnessing as widow, her daughter Salome's wedding.

The four children of Pierre Des Marets and Jacqueline, according to annotations at the time of their marriages, were all born at Cormont. They were:

1. Jean, born about 1580.
2. Marie, born about 1581.
3. Susanne, born about 1585.
4. Anne, born about 1588.

1/ Jean Des Marets, born at Cormont, Boulonnois, about 1580, married at Canterbury, England, 1st, on Jan. 14, 1602, with Marie Perlin, who died without children, on Apr. 3, 1603. (p. 454, 458, 575.)

He married 2nd, on Apr. 9, 1604, Francoise De Vette. (p. 458.) who died on Sept. 11, 1641. (p. 592.)

Of this marriage the following children were baptized:

1. Anne, bap. 1605, March 3, (p. 72.)
2. Judith, bap. 1609, Feb. 5. (p. 84.)
3. Esaia, bap. 1612, June 19. (p. 91.)

2/ Marie Des Marets, born at Cormont about 1582, became at Canterbury, on August 29, 1602 the second wife of Thomas Herbaud, widower of Marie Saie. (p. 457.) Her husband had of his first marriage three little daughters, Jeanne, Marie and Elizabeth. She had one child:

Thomas, bap. 1603, Aug. 29, on the anniversary of their wedding (p. 68.)

3/ Susanne Des Marets, born at Cormont, about 1585, married twice at Canterbury; first, on Aug. 24, 1606, with Esaya le Chantre, son of the late Pasquier le Chantre; and second, as his widow, on Jan. 14, 1618, Jonas Cousin, widower. (pp. 461, 677.)

Of both marriages two children were baptized:

Le Chantre:

1. Lea, bap. 1607, (p. 79), June 14.
2. Judith, bap. 1609, (p. 85), Aug. 6.

Cousin:

3. Ester, bap. 1618, (p. 108), Dec. 10.
4. Susanne, bap. 1620, (p. 115), Dec. 25.

3. Anne Des Marets, born at Cormont, about 1588, married at Canterbury, on June 17, 1618, Philippe de la Montaigne. (p. 462, 658.) They had one child.

Philippe, bap. 1609, May 21. (p. 85.)

THE DES MARETS FAMILY OF ENGLAND

(Record of Louis P. de Boer. References to Dr. H. J. Koenen and others)

(XIV)

Jacques des Marets, Sr., born about the year 1480, was the father of Jean des Marets (born 1518) and Jacques des Marets, Jr. (born 1519).

Jacques des Marets, Sr., is supposed to have been a son of Jean des Marets, magistrate at Cambray, and his third wife, Catherine Gerardel, or at least one of the named Jean's thirteen children, from either of his four marriages. This at least was the contention of Jacques Joseph de Marez de Sancourt; a contention of which we have not yet found complete proof, although there are many indications to make it acceptable.

Neither has any biographical fact been found of the named Jacques des Marets, Sr., nor even the name of his wife. That the two named refugee Protestant brothers, Jean and Jacques, however, were sons of a certain Jacques des Marets remained beyond doubt.

B. (XV)

Jacques des Marets, founder of the Demares family in England, was born in the year 1519, and the fact that he was a brother of Jean des Marets, born 1518, founder of the de Marees or de Marez family in Holland, has never been doubted. He fled during the religious and political persecutions by the Inquisition and the House of Hapsburg in the Netherlands with his family to Norwich, in England. This probably occurred in 1567. He and his family belonged to the Walloon Reformed Church at Norwich.

Jacques des Marets died at Norwich in 1604, the same year when his brother Jean died at Amsterdam. His wife was Antoinette Suceur.

In a power-of-attorney issued by his widow and heirs in 1604, he is called as having died at the age of eighty-five. This document was in 1732 in hands of Jacques Joseph de Marez se Sancourt, in the Land of Cambray. (See above.)

From the above named document it appears that Jacques des Marets, of Norwich, England, and his wife, Antoinette Suceur, had three sons, namely: Francois, Pierre (who died before his father) and Jean, of whom Francois de Marets and Jean de Marets with their families were living at Norwich in 1604.

An excellent account of "The Walloons and Their Church at Norwich" is furnished by the late vice-president of the Huguenot Society of London, W. J. C. Moens (1888).

B. (XVI).

1. Francois de Marets, or de Mares, as his name appears, was born about the year 1555. At Norwich he was a lieutenant of the Walloon Militia, a body to which the colonists were entitled. He probably lived the last years of his life at London, where most of his children are found registered in the French Church.

Francois de Mares married twice. His first wife, Elisabeth Herbecq, died between 1601 and 1604. On December 24, 1604, he remarried at Norwich with Phebe du Rieu.

Of the first marriage there were five, of the second, six children. Only the last child of the first and all the children of the second marriage were baptized in the Walloon Church of Norwich.

On September 10, 1605, Francois de Mares transferred for himself and for his minor children, named Jacques, Jean, Elisabeth, Anna and Esther, represented by their guardians, Nicolas de Mares and Philip Carlier, to Jean de Mares, son of Nicolas, residing in the Land of Cambray, the fief of Cauroit, near Cambray, inherited by him from his father, Jacques de Mares, in 1604. Witnesses to this transaction were Nicolas de Mares and Louis de Mares, brothers.

The children of Francois de Mares were:

Of the first marriage:

1/ Jacques, born about 1590.
2/ Jean, born about 1592.
(This Jean de Mares was possibly the father of David de Mares, the New Netherland settler.)
3/ Elisabeth, born about 1595.
4/ Anna, born about 1598.
5/ Esther, born at Norwich and baptized there, May 24, 1600.

Those of the second marriage were:

6/ Daniel, baptized Dec. 8, 1605.
7/ Judith, baptized Jan. 4, 1607.
8/ Simon, baptized Aug. 28, 1608.
9/ Janne, baptized Aug. 26, 1610.
10/ Marie, baptized Aug. 11, 1612.
11/ Phebe, baptized Dec. 19, 1613.

Because of the importance of gaining more concise information concerning the second son, Jean de Mares, whom we suppose to have become the father of David de Mares, the founder of the American Demarest family, we give here all the data thus far found concerning his brothers and sisters.

B. (XVII).

1 & 2. Jacques de Marets and Jean de Marets, or de Mares, born respectively about 1590 and 1592, were minors in 1604 when their father inherited Cauroit and in 1605, when, also in their name, he transferred this property to his continental de Marets relatives.

The fact that all their other brothers and sisters after 1625 had left Norwich and settled in London, but that there is no trace of them, nor of their half-brother, Simon de Marets, makes us believe that they had ventured to go back to the continent.

It would be easy for them as soon as they had grown up to go there. Those portions of their ancient ancestral country which were under the house of Hapsburg, the so-called Spanish Netherlands, in 1609 had concluded a "truce" of twelve years with the free or Northern Netherlands, the Dutch Republic, and returning refugees or their offspring in Belgium were not molested during that period by the Spanish authorities. In the French section of their ancient home up till 1610 that benevolent prince, Henry IV, ruled, the promulgator of the Edict of Nantes, which edict also in the first years after him kept its full strength.

Could it be possible that they went there so as to recover some of the estranged ancestrial possessions?

In the Land of Calais there is a region named "Le Cauroy." Could it be possible that this "Cauroy" is identical with the fief named "Cauroit" which their grandfather, the refugee to England, had possessed and which their father had disposed of in 1605?

There lived a Protestant by the name of Jean de Marets at Calais. In 1643, according to the member-list of the French Reformed Church of Middleburg, in Zeeland, a certain "Jean de Marets and his family, from Calais," joined that church. (Entry of 27 January, 1643.)

Now it is rather significant that David de Marets, the later New Netherland settler and founder of the Demarest family in America, whose father was named Jean de Marets, married at Middleburg on July 24, 1643.

David de Marets' wife was Marie Sohier. Two of his sons married daughters of Simon de Ruine and another a member of the Cresson family.

The Sohier, the de Ruine and the Cresson families all had branches who were members of the French Reformed Church at London.

Here are a few clues which in time may lead to the establishing of more definite facts concerning the parentage of David de Marets.

Thus far we have not found the source of the statement that David de Marets was born about 1620 at Beauchamps, which is a small town west of Amiens and south of Calais, just on the Picardy borders.

The data concerning the brothers and sisters of Jacques and Jean de Marets, derived from the Records of the French Church at London (see: "Publications of the Huguenot Society of London," vol. IX.) follow:

B. (XVII).

3. Elisabeth de Marets, born about 1595, married Jerome Hauchart, or Hochart. The first time we find them in London is in 1629, when they had a son, Daniel, baptized as follows:

1629, May 24: Daniel, son of Jerome Hochar.

Witnesses: Daniel Desmaretz,
Anne, wife of Jean Castel,
Esther La Ronde (i.e., Esther Desmarets, wife of Francois La R.).

Several times thereafter, up till 1637, we find Jerome Hochart and Elisabeth de Marets, his wife, mentioned as witnesses.

4. Anna de Marets was born about 1598. Her name appears among those of the five minor children of Francois de Marets and his first wife, Elisabeth Herbecq, at Norwich, in 1605. Her marriage is recorded at London, as follows:

1627, May 15: Adrien Henry, son of the late Nicolas, native of Valenciennes, and Anne, daughter of Francois des Mares, native of Norwich.

Of this marriage we find two children recorded at L. as follows:

1634, Feb. 23: Daniel, son of Adrien Henry and of Anne Desmarets, his wife.

Witnesses: Daniel Desmarets,
Elisabeth Desmares, wife of Gerome Hochar.

1636, Sept. 4: Jean, son of Andre (Adr.) Henry and ———.

Witnesses: Jerome Hauchart, Hester (Desmarets), wife of Francois La Ronde.

On January 1, 1637, Anne Desmarests (sic), widow of Adrien Henry, appears as witness to the baptism of her sister Judith's child.

5. Esther (or Hesther) de Marets was born at Norwich and baptized in the French or Walloon Church there on May 24, 1600.

Her marriage is not found recorded at London. She married about 1625 with Francois La Ronde. His name is also spelled Le Ronde and de Ronde, and the family was originally from the Land of Liége. To this family belonged the Rev. Lambertus de Ronde, later minister of the Reformed Church in North America.

We find eight baptismal entries of their children, as follows:

1/ 1626, Feb. 26: Hester, dau. of Francois La Ronde.
Witn: Salomon Vanderbrouck,
Phebe Desmares (born 1613),
Anne Desmares (born about 1595).

2/ 1628, June 15: Judith, dau. of Francoys La Ronde.
Witn: Pierre Bordeau,
Judith Desmaretz,
Anne Castel.

3/ 1630, Aug. 22: Sara, dau. of Franchois La Ronde and his wife.
Witn: Pierre du Quesne,
Hester Bulteel.

4/ 1632, Dec. 2: Elisabeth, dau. of Francois La Ronde.
Witn: Jacques Cresson,
Elisabeth Hochar (i.e., Elisabeth de Marets, wife of Jerome Hochar).

5/ 1634, Oct. 12: Janne, dau. of Francois Le Ronde and Ester des Maretz.
Witn: Anthoine Le Quieu, and Janne(s) de Maretz.

6/ 1636, Feb. 28: Esther, dau. of Francois La Ronde.
Witn: Francois La Rond (sic), the father's uncle, Esther and Marie Joye.

7/ 1636, Nov. 20: Daniel, son of Francois La Ronde (sic) and of ———.
Witn: Daniel Desmarest (sic), Jenne Desmarest (sic).

8/ 1638, April 22: Jenne, dau. of Francois La Ronde and of his wife.
Witn: Robert Laronde,
Jeanne Laronde.

Francois La Ronde and Esther de Marets appear frequently as baptismal witnesses.

B. (XVII).

6. Daniel de Marets, baptized in the Walloon Reformed Church at Norwich, on December 8, 1605, settled at London, where in the registers of the French Reformed Church of Threadneedle Street, his marriage is found recorded as follows:

1636, April 18: Daniel Desmarets, native of Norwich, and Crestiene (Dambrines), native of Lille.

The Dambrines family was originally from Picardy. There the family of Dambrines de Ramecourt is found recorded.

In the registers of Threadneedle Street Church the name is found most variously spelled. Jean Dambrines and Jacques Dambrines, brothers of Christine, are also found there, with their families.

Daniel de Marets had seven sisters living at London, and frequently we find him and his wife as witnesses to the baptisms of the children of those five of them who had married.

1637, Feb.: Elizabeth, dau. of Daniel Desmarets and Chrestienne Danbryn (sic).
Witn: Adrian Desmarets (unidentified),
Elizabeth (Desmarets), wife of Gerosme Hochar.
Note: This entry should probably read: Adrian ———, Elizabeth Desmarets, wife of Gerosme Hochar.

1638, April 15: Daniel, son of Daniel Desmarets and of Chrestienne, his wife.
Witn: Jacques Dambraine, and Marie Cavelier, wife of Jehan Beauvarlet.

7. Judith de Marets, baptized at Norwich, in the Walloon Church on January 4, 1607, married in the French Church at London, with Jacques Brienne. The marriage is found recorded as follows:

1633, January 31:

Jaques Brane, of Tour(n)ay, and Jeudique de Mare, native of Norwich.

This Jacques Brienne is most likely the same as the one who is found registered in the baptismal records of the French Church at London as "Jacque, son of Jacque Bryenne and of Josynne, his wife, 1602, July 4."

He had a brother, Jean Brienne, who married Janne de Marets, the daughter of Francois de Marets, next following to Judith de Marets, who married Jacques Brienne.

The baptism of this Jean is found entered as follows: "Jean, son of the late Jacques Brienne and of ———, his wife, 1603, Oct. 30."

The Brienne family was originally from Champagne, in France, and had an ancestry equally as famous through its participation in the Crusades, as that of the de Marets family. (Compare generation IX.)

Of Jacques Brienne and Judith de Marets we find the following children baptized in the French Church of London:

1/ 1634, Jan. 12: Judich, dau. of Jacques Bran, and of his wife, Judich des Marets. Witn.: Daniel des Marets, Margeritte Henno, wife of Nicolas Bouch.

2/ 1635, May 31: Jacques, son of Jacques Bran, and of his wife, Judith des Marets. Witn: Jerome Hochart (husb. of Elizab. de M.), Judith, wife of Nicolas Desmarets (unidentified).

Note: It is possible that this Nicolas de Marets is the same as the one who in 1605 was guardian to the minor children of Francois de Marets, at Norwich.

3/ 1637, Jan. 1: Benjamin, son of Jacques Brame (sic) and of Judith Desmarets. Witn: Anthoine Bloyar, Anne Desmarests (sic), widow of Adrien Henry.

4/ 1639, Feb. 17: Daniel, son of Jacq. Bran and of ———. Witn: Francois La Ronde (husb. of Esther de Marets), Anne Stiene.

8. Simon de Marets, baptized at Norwich, on August 28, 1608, is not found in any later record. He may have died in infancy. His name reminds us of possible connections with the de Marets branch of the Walloon Reformed Church at Wesel, in Rhineland.

9. Janne de Marets, baptized in the Walloon Church of Norwich, on August 26, 1610, married Jean Brienne, possibly the one mentioned above as baptized at London, October 30, 1603, son of Jacques Brienne and Josine, his wife.

We find of them only one child baptized at London, namely:

1638, April 8: Anna, dau. of Jehan Brionne (sic) and of Anne Desmarez. Witn: Jerosme Hochart (husb. of Elis. de M.), Marie Desmarez.

10. Marie de Marets, baptized at Norwich, August 11, 1612, was at London on April 8, 1638. We have no further record of her.

11. Phebe de Marest, baptized at Norwich, December 19, 1613, was on February 26, 1626, at London, present at the baptism of a child of Francois La Ronde and his wife, her sister, Esther de Marets. Also of her we have no further record.

B. (XVI).

2. Pierre de Marets, born about 1560, came with his father, Jacques de Marets, to Norwich, England, possibly around the year 1567. He married there, probably in 1594, with Sara Van Hecke.

Their children were the following:

B. (XVII).

1/ Sara, bapt. at Norwich, 1595, August 3.
2/ Jonathan, bapt. at Norwich, 1598, November 26. (All died before 1600.)
3/ Abraham, bapt. at Norwich, 1600, October 19.
4/ Isaac, bapt. at Norwich, June 6, 1602 (born in Dec., 1601?).
5/ Pierre, bapt. at Norwich, Nov. 20, 1607, was born in 1603.

Pierre de Marets died before his father. In the Power-of-Attorney given during the settlement of his father's estate in 1604, the surviving orphan children of Pierre de Marets are named as: Isaac, aged 3, and Pierre, aged 1. (The reading of "7" instead of "1" in the original has possibly led to some confusion as to the age and birth date of this Pierre.) (His father having died and his mother being of the Dutch Reformed Church, his baptism in the Walloon Reformed Church evidently caused some difficulty.)

Of this branch further nothing is known.

B. (XVI).

3. Jean de Marets, born about the year 1566, became a Deacon and later an Elder in the Walloon or French Reformed Church at Norwich, in England. He married, possibly in 1598, Maria de Vos. His wife belonged to the same Flemish family to which Judith de Vos, wife of Lazare Bayard belonged.

B. (XVII).

Their five children were all baptized at Norwich, namely:

1/ Marie, bapt. November 23, 1599. She died in infancy.
2/ Jean de Marets, bapt. 1601, March 15. He died before 1634. He and his wife, Marie ———, had the following children:

B. (XVIII).

1/ Marie, bapt. 1625, Aug. 7.
2/ Elisabeth, bapt. 1628, Jan. 25.
3/ Jean, bapt. 1630, Feb. 13.
4/ Pierre, bapt. 1633, June 30.

We have no further information about them.

3/ Jacques de Marets, bapt. 1603, July 31. He died young.
4/ Marie de Marets, bapt. 1604, July 29.
5/ Jacques de Marets, bapt. 1605, October 6. He held several offices in State and Church at Norwich, as Deacon, Elder, Bailiff, "homme politique" of the Walloon settlement, etc. He married (banns) 26 February, 1634, with Anna Burghart (in French: "Bourchaut"), from the Land of Cambray, but baptized at Norwich, 1615, October 8, daughter of Jan B.

B. (XVIII).

Their children were:

1/ Jacques, bapt. 1635, Dec. 27 (see below).
2/ Anne, bapt. 1637, Feb. 5. She died young.
3/ Anne, bapt. 1641, June 6.
4/ Jean, bapt. 1643, Feb. 19.
5/ Pierre, bapt. 1644, Dec. 8.
6/ Marie, bapt. 1646, April 26.
7/ Esther, bapt. 1648, April 2.
8/ Elisabeth, bapt. 1652, April 7.
9/ Sara, bapt. 1654, Dec. 24.

We have of them no further record, except of Jacques.

B. (XIX).

1. Jacques Demarets, baptized 27 December, 1635, married at Norwich, 18 October, 1657, with Anna Lange.

The following children were baptized at Norwich:

B. (XX).

1/ Jacques, bapt. 1658, August 22.
2/ Marie, bapt. 1661, Sept. 8.
Also of these nothing is further known.

It has been our endeavor to gather notes concerning members of the de Marets family down to that generation to which to our estimation David de Marest, the New Netherland settler, founder of the American family belonged, i.e., the XVIIIth generation down from Jean de Bousis, who was born shortly after the year 1000, whose son Baldwin was the first to bear the name of Lord des Maretz.

In this attempt we here and there continued down to the XIXth, or even the XXth generation, where historical completeness demanded it.

We have stated our belief that this Jean de Marets (XVI. 2) may have been the father of David de Marets, whose father was a certain Jean de Marets.

We have ventured the supposition that this Jean de Marets of Calais was the same as Jean de Marets, born about 1592, second son of Francois de Marets, of the Walloon Reformed Church of Norwich, England, who in 1605 disposed of the manor of Cauroit (probably Cauroy in the Land of Calais) which he had inherited in 1604 from his father, Jacques de Marets, who as a Protestant refugee from the vicinity of Cambray had come to England, presumably in 1567.

Knowing further that the named Jacques de Marets and Jean de Marets, the Protestant refugee to Holland, were brothers, and that the latter's father also was named Jacques de Marets, we have shown the efforts made to connect this Jacques de Marets, Sr., with the old feudal house of the Land of Cambray, by proving his identity with Jacques de Marets, son of Jean Demarets, of Cambray, and his third wife, Catherine Gerardel.

This clearly shows where those links and connections are which still may be strengthened by further historical evidence.

David de Marets married in the Walloon Reformed Church at Middleburg, in Zeeland, on July 24, 1643, with Marie Sohier, daughter of Francois Sohier.

This Sohier family originated from the Land of Cambray and bore in gules a five-pointed star, argent. Branches of this family in Holland as well as in the State of New Jersey, U. S. A., still bear these arms. In the 16th and 17th centuries there was a branch of this family in London, among the members of the French Reformed Church there. At Mannheim there lived in April, 1663, not far from the Neckargate a householder named Anthoine Sohier. (See: Max Oeser's "Geschichte der Stadt Mannheim," Chart at page 48.)

XVI

THE DES MARETS FAMILY OF CAMBRAY AND THE LAND OF CAMBRAY

Louis P. de Boer

(An account of the Des Marets genealogy as commonly accepted as that of their common ancestry by Jacques Joseph de Maretz as representing the Roman Catholic, South-Netherland branch, and by Louis Trip de Marez, as representing the Protestant, North-Netherland branch in 1732.)

This family is said to have sprung from the house of the barons of Bousis, peers at Cambray, bearing in azure a cross argent.

1. Jean, lord of Bousis, who lived in the first half of the 11th century and whose wife was a sister of Eustace, Lord of Picquiguy, in Picardy, had a son Baldwin, who became the 1st Lord of Marets, a fief comprising the town and vicinity of Marets, near Cambray.

II. Baldwin I, Lord Des Marets, is mentioned among the nobles who took part in the Tournament of Anchin, in 1096, the original call-rol of which has been preserved. This tournament was preparatory to the First Crusade, and Baldwin took also part in this crusade. (See: Appendix No. 1.) His wife was Alice de Tyrel, sister of Allard de Tyrel, Lord of Poix, in the Land of Cambray, living at Cambray.

III. Baldwin II, Lord des Marets, received for his bravery in the Holy Land from the King of Jerusalem, in fief the city of "Rhosas," in Palestine (compare note in Appendix No. 1), which fact according to Le Carpentier's named genealogy caused his ancestral Arms to be augmented with four roses, or. These completed Arms, at least the shield, seem to have occurred on a medal which is mentioned in the Will of Baldwin's great-grandson, Baldwin des Marets, Lord of Sorick. (The original Will is still in possession of the descendants of Jean des Marets (1518-1604), the de Marez-Oyens family at Amsterdam. It had in 1656 still the seven original seals, of which at present only one is left intact.)

Le Carpentier, in his above-named work, "Histoire de Cambray," quotes the work of William, Arch-bishop of Tyre, folios 861, 896 and 900, so as to prove that this Baldwin des Marets, together with the Count of Edessa, Josselin de Courtenay, re-occupied the City of Edessa in 1142, taking it from Sultan Noradin, and that he fell against the Turks in 1145.

Baldwin's younger brother, Reginald des Marets, is also said to have gained possessions in Palestine, which fief he named "Maresia" (compare Appendix No. 1), after his home town of Marez. This Reginald des Marets married a daughter of the Count of Edessa. His widow, after he had died without issue, remarried with Almarick, Count of Joppe, who in 1162 became King of Jerusalem. The above-named Will mentions Reginald's sword which was given to him by his father-in-law, the Count of Edessa.

Baldwin II, Lord des Marets, married with ——— Grener, daughter of Eustace Grener, Constable of the Kingdom of Jerusalem, Lord of Sydon and of Caesarea, in the Holy Land. Their son follows.

IV. Baldwin III, Lord des Marets, was the youngest son of Baldwin II and his wife, ——— Grener. After his two elder brothers had fallen in battle against the Turks, and after all his possessions in Palestine had fallen in hands of these "infidels," he returned to Cambresis, the land of his fathers. Some of his ancestral lands there he bequested to the Abbey of Saint Aubert, at Cambray.

His wife was Melisande de Beauvoise. They had three sons:

1/ Baldwin, who follows below,
2/ Goswin, who died in Palestine, and
3/ ———, whose direct line died out in the third generation.

V. Baldwin IV, Lord des Marets, inherited his father's possessions in the Land of Cambray. In 1233 he gave these lands to the Abbey of Vaucelles and went to Palestine. There he fell in the Battle of Ascalon, in 1239.

He had married Gillette de Jauche, daughter of Simon de Jauche, Governor of Cambray. They had the following sons:

1/ Baldwin, who follows below,
2/ Hugo, who still possessed his great-uncle Reginald's sword,
3/ Jean, who became bailiff of Creveceur.

(The Act of Indemnity by which this last named Jean des Marets relinquished his rights to his paternal estate, leaving them to his eldest brother, Baldwin, is dated July 31, 1287. The original is with other family papers still in possession of the de Marez-Oyens family at Amsterdam, descendants of Jean des Marets—1518-1604.)

VI. Baldwin V, Lord des Marets, knight, was Lord of Sorick, Maretz, Vilers, Chesneaux, Hurtebise and Flechin. His Will has been mentioned above.

His wife was Ermegarde de Rambures, whose mother was of the house of Walincourt. They had five sons, three of whom are known:

1/ William, who follows below,
2/ Godwin, whose direct male line died out in the 4th generation,
3/ Hugo, who seems to have become the ancestor of the des Marez branch of Arras, bearing five, instead of four roses.

VII. William des Marets, 6th Lord of Marets, Lord of Loges and Cheneaux, is mentioned, according to Le Carpentier, in Charters of the years 1293, 1331 and 1335, respectively to be found in the archives of the Abbey of Saint Aubert, at Cambray, at Walincourt, and at Verger Abbey.

His wife was Guiote de Hames, daughter of Walter de Hames, who in 1272 was bailiff of Courtenay. (Of this family came the well-known Nicolas de Hames, herald of the Golden Fleece, a Protestant in the eventful days of the beginning of the rebellion of the Netherlands against the tyrant Phillip II.)

In 1293 William des Marets sold much of his land located near the Abbey of Saint Aubert.

Of his marriage two children are known:

1/ Baldwin, who follows below, and a daughter,
2/ ———, who became the wife of Wigbold of Esquencourt.

VIII. Baldwin VI, 7th Lord des Marets, knight, Lord of Hurtebise, of half-Flehan, and of Eth, in Henault.

He married Agnes de Forest, daughter of Herbert de Forest. He died in the year 1331, and his widow in 1335, as appears from the above-mentioned Charters, in which also William, his father, is named.

This couple had five sons and two daughters. Of the daughters, the eldest became a nun. The youngest married with Jean de Lamelin, Lord of Fasnieres, in Henault. The sons were:

1/ Baldwin, who follows below,
2/ Jacques, Lord of Camerin, in Artois,
3/ Jean, Lord of Autrep,
4/ William, Lord of Bossu, in Picardy, and of Fleurbay,
5/ Pierre, who settled in Flandres, and whose direct line died out in the second generation.

The named Jacques des Marets, Lord of Camerin, changed his ancestral Arms, adding to it a chief azure charged with three roses, or. His brother, Jean des Marets, Lord of Autrep, also changed his Arms in manners following: quartered: in 1 and 4, in azure a cross argent; in 2 and 3, in azure four roses, or.

IX. Baldwin VII, 8th Lord des Marets, Lord of Hurtebise. His tomb is in the Church of Saint Andrews, at Catteau Cambresis.

He had for wife Jacqueline de Ranchicourt, lady of Remes, and of la Vacquerie. They had two sons:

1/ Jean, who married a daughter of Walter (VI) of Enghien, and who left no issue. This Jean des Marets died of grief upon the news of the death of his friend, Sohier, Count of Brienne, second Duke of Athens, who had been beheaded at Quesnoy at the command of Albrecht of Bavaria, Count of Henault and of Holland, in 1366.

2/ Baldwin, who follows below.

X. Baldwin VIII, 9th Lord des Marets, Lord of Eth and Hurtebise, by inheritage from his father, and Lord of Remes and la Vacquerie, by inheritage from his mother, became by purchase Lord of Farbus, in Artois.

He married Emma de Neuville, lady of Carnin, in Artois. He died at Cambray, in 1395, leaving one daughter and two sons:

1/ Baldwin, who married and had only two daughters. His inherited lands therefore after his death were sold or divided.

2/ Hugo, who follows below.

XI. Hugo, 10th Lord des Marets, Lord of Farbus, died in 1429.

His wife was Guillemette de Solomnes, of whom he had eleven children. Several of these children, males as well as females, entered ecclesiastical orders, and died unmarried.

Two of his sons became founders of branches, namely:

1/ Baldwin. He was the great-grandfather of Jean des Marets, who married Martha de Bernicourt, which last-named couple by the genealogists Le Vaillant and the Atteveld brothers wrongly were held to have been the parents of Jean des Marets (born 1518) and Jacques des Marets (born 1519). (See above.)

2/ Reginald, who follows below.

XII. Reginald des Marets, Esquire, Doctor of Laws, was a magistrate at Cambray. He marries Agnes de la Saulx, of whom three sons:

1/ Jean des Marets, who follows below,

2/ Pierre des Marets, who married Agnes Chamart, of whom he had seven children, and numerous posterity,

3/ Jacques des Marets, who was Canon of Saint Gery, at Cambray, and who died about A. D. 1500.

XIII. Jean des Marets, Esquire, Doctor of Laws, was a magistrate at Cambray. He married four times, to wit:

a/ Johanna Rosel,

b/ Marie de Franqueville,

c/ Catharine Gerardel, and d/ Aldegonde de l'Aoust.

Of these four marriages thirteen children in all were born.

Son of Jean des Marets and his third wife, Catherine Gerardel, according to the above-named Jacques Joseph de Maretz de Sancourt, was Jacques des Marets, who has became the father of the two Protestant refugees, Jean des Marets (born 1518) and Jacques des Marets (born 1519), founders of the branches who follow and the genealogy of whose descendants has been derived from more modern sources of information. (The following generations XIV to XX in England are noted in preceding section of appendix. The corresponding generations in Holland are not given since they seem to suggest nothing as to the lineage of David des Marest, the pioneer.)

The participation of Baldwin (I) des Marets in the First Crusade can be proven historically. His name appears enrolled among the participants in the Tournament of Anchin, in 1096. Anchin was a Convent situated on a small island in the river Scarpe. Here Anselm, Duke of Ribemont and Valenciennes, called together the chief nobles of his vicinity for a brilliant tournament, shortly after Peter of Amiens had preached the crusade. All participants in the tournament took solemn oath that they would go on the crusade. The document of this oath still exists. Its text has been published in the original Latin, together with a French translation, in: l'Histoire Genealogique de la Maison de Neufville, by A. C. de Neufville, 1859, pages 55-59. The French text can also be found in: Dutilhoeul's "Petites Histoires de Flandres et d'Artois."

The deeds in Palestine of further members of the des Marets family of Cambray and Cambresis have been described by William, Archbishop of Tyre, in Phoenicia, who lived in the time of the 2nd Crusade and who was an eyewitness to many happenings, in his: "Historia Belli Sacri a Principibus Christianis in Palestina et in Oriente Gesti."

This work, after having existed in manuscript for many generations, was finally printed for the first time at Basel in 1549, and again, its Latin text accompanied by a French translation in 1844, by the "Academie des Inscriptions." A copy of this beautiful book is in the Royal Library at The Hague, Holland.

It gives details about Baldwin II, des Marets, and his brother, Reginald, son-in-law of Josselin de Courtenay, Count of Edessa.

In Chapter XIV is described how Baldwin des Marets in a nightly expedition accompanied Josselin with his horsemen, and how they crossed the river before Edessa. After the re-capture of Edessa by the Christian army, Baldwin des Marets was in command of the forces which operated in Northern Palestine, on the western borders of the county of Edessa and the northern portions of the County of Antioch, mainly for the protection of the road used by the Crusaders on their way to Jerusalem. A station on that road was named "Maresia," for the commander. Maresia, however, was never a separate county of the Kingdom of Jerusalem. Formerly the name of the place had been "Germanica Caesarea," so named for Caesar Germanicus. In the mouth of the Turks, "Maresia" has become "Marash."

Of a county named "Rhosas," which le Carpentier says was given as a fief to Baldwin des Marets, and from which the addition of four golden roses to the Arms is supposed to have originated, there is no trace in Palestine. But Edessa, where Baldwin des Marets (II) so gallantly opposed the Turks in 1145, was popularly known among the Crusaders as "Rohes," a modification of the Greek appellation: "Orrhoe," also "Kali-rhoe," likely to be misunderstood by French speaking people as: "Or rose," "rose d'or," "golden rose." Even if not misunderstood, the name might be easily interpreted as such by the romantically and symbolically inclined mediaeval mind.
